It is Flattering To the Original

But Imitations Only Disappoint

If the old saying is true about imitation being the most sincere form of flattery, then Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine must possess a world of merit.

This is a fac-simile of the package, bearing portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D.

There are many imitations and near imitations of this great treatment for coughs and colds. They usually have some sale on the merits of the original, and because they are sold at a lower price appeal to some people, who lose sight of the fact that the imitations are like the genuine in name only.

From a small beginning the sales of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine have grown and grown until to-day they are enormous. The constant increase is undoubtedly due to the genuine merit of the medicine itself, for nothing else could place it at the front as the greatest seller of any similar medicine in the country.

We have told you something of the effectiveness of this medicine in the cure of coughs, colds and sore throat, of how it lightens every mother's heart by curing croup and bronchitis, of the relief it affords to the sufferers from asthma or consumption.

It remains for you to insist on getting the genuine article. There need be no doubt if you insist on seeing the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author, on the bottle you buy. There can be no better recommendation for any medicine. 25 cents a bottle; family size, 60 cents, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Ash Wednesday is past, but every day, to the man who coals a furnace, is ash day.

This is the season of the year when mothers feel very much concerned over the frequent colds contracted by their children, and have abundant reason for it as every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality and paves the way for the more serious diseases that so often follow. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its cures, and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all druggists.

A local dealer in paints and varnishes received an order from a country customer a few days ago reading as follows:

'Dear Sir: Please ship me a can of your striped paint. I want just enough for one barber pole.'

For a sprain you will find Chamberlain's Liniment excellent. It allays the pain, removes the soreness, and soon restores the parts to a healthy condition. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by all druggists.

Get the Habit.

Let's pretend we're satisfied
With the world as God has made it;
Let us cease to be sad eyed,
Let us cease to be afraid it
May be dismal by to-night
Or that storms may come to-morrow;
There is gladness that we might,
If we tried to do so, borrow.

Let us for a little while
Give up fretting and complaining,
Let us try to learn to smile
Sometimes even when its raining;
Let us cease to magnify
[illegible] till we have made it double;
[illegible] may borrow if we try,
[illegible] instead of trouble.

[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
Troubles we should be forgetting;
Let us bravely throw aside
Fears such as possess the rabbit;
Maybe after we have tried
For awhile, we'll get the habit.

How to Spend Money.

A most extraordinary letter came to me the other day.

A woman wrote to ask me to tell her how to spend money.

She is a working woman between 30 and 40 years old.

She is making a little over $20 a week, [illegible]

She had been self-supporting for many years and during the first part of this time she had to save and scrimp and deny herself so stingently that now when she is earning a comfortable sum and could dress decently and have a few luxuries, she actually doesn't know how to spend her money. Her income has increased more rapidly than her tastes and she wants my advice as to how to spend money like other people.

Was ever anything more exactly contrary to the ordinary condition of affairs than this?

For every man and woman whose income has increased more rapidly than his or her tastes, I wonder how many there are in this country whose tastes have increased more rapidly than their incomes? Ten thousand would probably be putting it low.

Isn't it, indeed, one of the greatest causes of unhappiness and envy, of extravagance and discontent, in this country, that so many of us have gotten into the habit of allowing our tastes to race with our income and usually win out.

Let me take a typical case for example. [illegible] a young stenographer, was earning $10 a week and finding it as ample for her need as we ever find any sum. At this time she thought $20 a good price to pay for a suit. Four dollars for shoes, $3 for a hat, a dollar or two for a blouse to wear to work, was her ordinary outlay. Once or twice a month she indulged in the extravagance of a 25-cent manicure, but she shampooed her own hair and looked upon facial massage as the exclusive property of the ladies in the society columns. One of her great extravagances was to pay 10 cents for a cake of toilet soap and twenty-five cents for a good cream. In the summer she took her vacation at a small summer resort, where she paid $10 a week for board. I believe she saved $1 a week.

To-day that girl is earning $22 and constantly crying poverty. Where does it go to? Well, let's see.

Her last winter's suit cost $45. It was marked down from $50. She had meant to have her last year's hat trimmed over, but the suit made it look so shabby, that she bought a new one for $15. For her shoes she pays $5 and $6. Her simplest blouse is a special tailored model for $3. She has a 50-cent manicure every week. She has her hair shampooed and indulges in facial massage now and then. She uses an ultra special toilet soap for which she pays 25 cents and an imported cream for 50 cents.

When she goes away in the summer she stays at a hotel, paying $25 a week for a tiny attic room. I don't think she saves at all.

Now do you wonder that the $22 disappears faster than the $10 did?

The class in this country that has enough and can save is the thrifty lower middle class in which the tastes and standards haven't yet begun to sky-rocket. Many a man earning $22 a week and having a family of five or six is putting by a tidy sum.

Are your tastes growing more rapidly than your income? If they are, look out. Happiness does not lie that way.

Nowadays.

'I'm going to leave, mum,' said the maid.
'Alas!' cried Mrs. Grey,
'I've done all the work myself,
So why will you not stay?'
Then Bridget up and made reply,
Thus ending the dispute;
'Indade, I'll let you know just why,
The work's not done to suit!'

Here is a message of hope and good cheer from Mrs. C. J. Martin, Boone Mill, Va., who is the mother of eighteen children. Mrs. Martin was cured of stomach trouble and constipation by Chamberlain's Tablets after five years of suffering and now recommends these tablets to the public. Sold by all dealers.

The Egg Trade.

During the past year the Live Stock Branch of the Department of Agriculture has been engaged in a preliminary investigation of the Canadian Egg Trade. Certain facts relating to the enormous loss that is charged back against the farmer and the unsatisfactory status of the trade as a whole have been collected and presented in Bulletin No. 16, entitled 'The Care of Market Eggs'. Realizing, however, the necessity of securing more detailed information before [illegible] a policy having for its object the bringing about of improvement in the condition of the business, the Minister of Agriculture has authorized the appointment of J. H. Hare, B. S. A., of Whitby, to undertake the necessary investigation.

Mr. Hare has held the position of District Representative in Ontario county, Ont., for the past four years. He was born at Cobourg, Ont., and received his early training on the farm. He entered the Ontario Agricultural College in 1904 and graduated in 1908. Since taking up the District Representative work in Ontario county he has devoted much time and has been very successful in the organization of co-operative egg circles. Not only has he paid particular attention to conditions of the egg trade as they exist in the rural districts, but he has also made a close study of poultry business in general, and has written numerous articles, among which is a bulletin now in press. By virtue of his technical training and his practical experience Mr. Hare is, therefore, well qualified as a specialist in poultry work.

Mr. Hare will first be concerned with the collection of all data that is available on the grading of eggs as they have been received at wholesale produce houses of Canada during the past two years. The information thus obtained will be used to form a basis for such action as may be taken by the Government in initiating a movement to improve and properly regulate the trade.

Mr. Hare will be located at Ottawa, but will travel extensivly throughout the Dominion, first in the east and later in the west.

Sores from Elbow to Fingers.

ZAM-BUK WORKED A MIRACLE OF HEALING.

REVERNED GENTLEMAN FULLY CORROBORATES.

Miss Kate L. Dolliver, of Caledonia, Queen's Co., N. S., says: 'I must add my testimony to the value of Zam Buk. Ulcers and sores broke out on my arm, and although I tried to heal them by using various preparations, nothing seemed to do me any good. The sores spread until from fingers to elbow was one mass of ulceration.

'I had five different doctors, and faithfully carried out their instructions. I drank pint after pint of blood medicine, tried salve after salve, and lotion after lotion; but it was of no avail.

'My father then took me thirty miles to see a well-known doctor. He photographed the arm and hand. This photograph he sent to a New York hospital to the specialist; but they sent word they could do nothing further for me, and I was in despair.

'One day a friend asked me if I had tried Zam-Buk. I said I had not, but I got a box right away. That first box did me more good than all the medicine I had tried up to that time, so I continued the treatment. Every box healed the sores more and more until, to make a long story short, Zam-Buk healed all the sores completely. Everybody in this place knows of my case, and that it is Zam-Buk alone which cured me.'

Minister corroborates.—The Rev. W. B. M. Parker, of Caledonia, Miss Dolliver's minister, writes: 'This is to certify that the testimonial of Miss Dolliver is correct as far as my knowledge goes. I have known her for a year and a half, and her cure effected by Zam-Bux is remarkable.'

Wherever there is ulceration, blood-poison, sores, cold-cracks, abscesses, cuts, burns, bruises, or any skin injury or disease, there Zam Buk should be applied. It is also a sure cure for piles. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. per box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse cheap and harmful imitations and substitutes.

Senator Dolliver, of Iowa, in a recent campaign told this story to illustrate the logic of an opponent:

'Did you ever hear about the young woman in Fort Dodge? One spring morning she sat on the piazza of her pretty little home sewing a button on her husband's coat. The husband himself appeared, and she said fretfully:

' 'It's a perfect shame the careless way the tailor sewed this button on. This is the fifth time I've had to sew it on again for you.' '

One of the greatest trials a girl has to encounter when she marries is that she has to discharge her mother and depend on a hired girl.

Meals!

LOTS of home baked bread, cake and pastry are always welcome. But baking is not always an easy job. Perhaps we can help you. Here is a truth backed by honest proof.

Help:

Regal Flour readily yields the best quality and the utmost quantity of bread per barrel of any flour in the world. Makes light, white loaves. And such meltingly flaky pastry.

Proof:

Try Regal once. If it is not just as good as we have promised, your dealer will return your money. We then have to pay him back. So unless you like Regal we lose completely. Isn't it fair to expect that Regal will mean easier, nicer meals?

Just a Mother.

Mrs. Matilda Pierce had never been prominent in the little community where she dwelt. During her last years she lived in complete seclusion, owing to her age and feebleness. The few neighbors who attended her funeral remarked that 'all the Pierce boys came out,' and these four sons, prosperous men, already past middle life, bore their aged mother to her last resting place on the sunny hill slope above the town.

'She was a good mother,' the youngest son said that evening, as they talked together in the old sitting room. 'I've felt sometimes that I ought to have stayed with her, but when you got me that position in Chicago, she wouldn't hear of my letting it slip. I think she was happy, knowing that we were all doing well.'

'This little room haunted me for years after I went away,' the eldest son observed. 'Remember the potato stews mother'd have when we came from school, hungry as bears? How often I have wished that I could get back here and find things as they used to be evenings, when we were boys!'

'That's why none of us ever loafed on the street nights,' John Pierce laughed. 'Once I spent the night with Joe Cole, and I tell you I was mighty glad to get home. The Coles had everything nice—they had ten times mother's means—but it wasn't the same atmosphere. I didn't wonder much that Joe liked to hang round the stores and taverns.'

'Joe went bad,' the youngest brother said. 'He never would work long in one place. He was down the river somewhere, got into a drunken brawl, and used a knife on a man. I don't believe the family have heard from him since.'

Andrew Pierce looked up with a grave face. 'Joe didn't have anything to look back to,' he said slowly, 'and I did. Perhaps that's all the difference. When I went to New York I fell in with a fast set. I did some things that I knew mother wouldn't approve but I told myself I'd drop it all as soon as I was fairly settled.

'One night a cricis came. The details don't matter, but I knew that I couldn't go any further and be what I'd been before. I fought it out, and —mother stood by me. It wasn't anything in particular she'd said, but as Sam says, this little room haunted me. I could hear her singing 'Nearer, My God, to Thee,' as she used to sing it on Sunday evenings. And I remembered how she'd come tiptoeing up stairs into that cold little room, after we'd gone to bed, to tuck in the clothes. If I was awake, I always listened for her dress to rustle when she knelt down by my bed.'

The big voice broke. 'I slipped out of the place; I didn't even wait for my overcoat and hat, and I ran all the way to my boarding house. If I couldn't have looked back to mother, I might have ended as poor Joe did.'

The Secret of Girlish Beauty.

THE BLOOD MUST BE KEPT RICH AND PURE, AND THE NERVES PROPERLY NOURISHED.

Every parent of a growing girl and every young woman who looks after herself, should be constantly on the watch for symptoms of impoverished blood. Girls in their teens should not be pale, languid and constantly fatigued. Nature intended them to be bright, energetic and active. The happiness of a life time depends upon giving the blood the help it needs at this time, when girls are too frequently allowed to overstudy, overwork or suffer from lack of exercise.

The symptoms of impoverished blood are unmistakable. They are languidness, pale, sallow complexion, shortness of breath, violent palpitation of the heart, particularly on going up stairs, poor appetite, dizziness and headaches, and a tendency to faint. These symptoms of course are not all found in every case, but the more the victim has of them the greater progress has the trouble made and the more imperative is the necessity to at once begin to check it, through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which bring back the glow of health and energy to every part of the body. The case of Miss Jessie Fraser, Hamilton, Ont., offers proof of this. She says, 'For about eighteen months I was in a very bad state of health and thoroughly run down. I had no appetite and suffered from most of the symptoms of anaemia. I went to a local doctor and received treatment from him for three months, and although I took bottle after bottle of medicine I was steadily growing worse, and got so down-hearted and depressed that I felt I would never get better. At this time I read the case of a young lady whose symptoms were similar to my own, who had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to try them. By the time I had used three boxes my appetite had improved and I was feeling more encouraged. I continued the use of the Pills for a time longer and my health was fully restored.'

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A homesteader at Rainy River, Canada, woke up one morning recently and found that he had grown completely baldheaded during the night. Scientists are puzzled to account for the occurance but it is probably that his scalp and hair had a falling out.
