

Chignecto Post.

SACKVILLE, N.B., MCH. 23, 1872.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

We have stated the Act of 1865 relating to the Constitution of the Legislative Council, was a fraud, and destructive to Responsible Government. By it was created a small body of men holding Councilorship during life, independent of the Crown, and irresponsible to the people; their position being secured by an Act of the Legislature, no power except the Imperial Government, without their consent, dissolve it, or even change its character. Five, a majority of a petty quorum of eight, can prevent all Legislation and set the Province at defiance; the wants of the people, the exigencies of the public service, the powers of the Executive, even if backed by all the influence and authority of the Dominion Parliament, are all unequal to compel this body to do its duty to the Country, or dismiss them for neglect. It exists a small oligarchical corporation of Bastard Aristocrats, who, swelling with the magnitude of their irresponsible position, arrogate an importance which increases in an inverse ratio to their uselessness.

We see an address by the Crown by this body in 1863, in the very first year of its existence, modestly assuming it to be analogous to the House of Lords, or if perhaps we speak more correctly, we are sensible as the ministerial or representation of that august body in this Province, the importance and usefulness of our duties must necessarily raise us to a corresponding dignity and rank, and consequently give us similar precedence here, as is established by the tables of precedence in England. So that these fungi, on their first appearance, and almost before they had reached the maturity of toads-to-dust with vanity, so intense as almost to be sublime in its absurdity, and exhibited their insignificance and uselessness. The Legislative Council, repressing itself in New Brunswick, the august House of Lords, and gravely demanding a corresponding dignity and rank! Can absurdity reach a higher climax? Our importance and usefulness, say the modest Council, demand a dignity and rank corresponding with the august House of Lords; but while inflated with the new born greatness of being Peers of New Brunswick, they did not even during their first Session, so sight of their being paid, and in 1865, a little over two years after they had burst into being, they passed resolutions insisting on their right to the people's money, and upon the Assembly refusing it, they threw out the application Bill, providing for the payment of the ordinary service, for supporting institutions of public benefit, and for enabling the Government to pay its debts, distinctly on the ground no provision had been made for the payment of expenses. These New Brunswick Lords composed of men, some of whom had been rejected by constituents, many whom had never dared to present themselves on the Hin-tings, and some who obtained there a refuge from popular opinion, thus early practiced and successfully played the game of self-interest, regardless of the injury done the Province, and shortly after, they wrung from the Assembly the payment of their travel and attendance, which they have received to the present day.

This has not improved the character of this body and since the infamous Act of 1865 passed, making these men irresponsible, the same system has been pursued. Could it be expected unless published under the authority of the Council itself, that Mr. Daniel Hampton, holding his appointment of Councillor, from His Honor Gov. L. A. Wilton, under the Act of 1865, could be so inflamed as to wheel discussing the Clerical supremacy. "When he mentioned his privilege, he did not mean mere privileges, but those malignant and most sovereign privileges which have derived from our ancestors and deserve to go down as an inheritance to those who are to come after us." They have a precious heritage and we cannot go too far in extolling the privileges—as careful course the Council took in the Biss-Botsford controversy, the unflinching assertion of childish and puerile claims, the obstinate maintaining a Clerk in defiance of law, the refusal to accept the opinion of the Crown Officers given on the subject, the forcing the government to a second referendum, and again a second time upholding with pride obstinacy, and official disregard by the people, and all the time illegally and fraudulently, including in their Contingent bill, between one and two thousand dollars a year, to pay a man for duties he had no right to perform, is beyond endurance in any free country. While we ask, is responsible government, if the people's money can be taken without their voice and against their expressed opinion? And where but in New Brunswick will a member of the Assembly open his mouth for information, as told by the Government, he had no right to ask the question as it is associated with the privileges of the Assembly. Then the Electors of New Brunswick, Mr. Attorney General says, your representatives must sit in peace without being guilty of trespass—an open road, constructed according to the people's bills, been denied by the Legislative Council, and the notorious fact of the Council in such a bold travesty. The danger, too, to the safety of some of the noble New Brunswick peers, is not to be overlooked, the Legislative Council being a body of gentlemen.

In 1863, the Council threw out the application Bill, because it did not spend more of the people's money than in 1851, the Council having increased it up to that, themselves spending the people's money without the representation of the people being allowed to interfere with it, and of the people's money, they spend on each other thousand & three-quarters of a pound per pounder of paving the expenses of the Legislative Council, sum equal to $555, for each Councilor, and a half day for each day of session of 50 days. These noble Lords are indeed an expensive toy; if they were simply useless and harmless, the extravagant folly of continuing them would be wicked in the financial state of the Province; as is established by the tables of precedence in England.

So that these fungi, on their first appearance, and almost before they had reached the maturity of toads-to-dust with vanity, so intense as almost to be sublime in its absurdity, and exhibited their insignificance and uselessness. The Legislative Council, repressing itself in New Brunswick, the august House of Lords, and gravely demanding a corresponding dignity and rank!

Our importance and usefulness, say the modest Council, demand a dignity and rank corresponding with the august House of Lords; but while inflated with the new born greatness of being Peers of New Brunswick, they did not even during their first Session, so sight of their being paid, and in 1865, a little over two years after they had burst into being, they passed resolutions insisting on their right to the people's money, and upon the Assembly refusing it, they threw out the application Bill, providing for the payment of the ordinary service, for supporting institutions of public benefit, and for enabling the Government to pay its debts, distinctly on the ground no provision had been made for the payment of expenses.

Are the people prepared to continue this?

A reference to our special Telegram from Fredericton, received since this was written, will show Mr. Wedderburn has introduced a Bill to abolish the Legislative Council. This is a move in the right direction, and a beginning of the end of an unmitigated curse and anathema.

NEW RAILWAY PROJECT.

Toddy's issue contains a notice calling a meeting at Baie Verte to-morrow, in the interest of a proposed Railway across the Isthmus of Chignecto, from An Lac to Cape Tormentine. We are not prepared to lay to give an approximate estimate of the expense of such a railway, or of the proposed method of raising the amount necessary for so large an undertaking. Of the practical utility of such a road there can be no doubt. It would pass through a country of unsurpassed beauty, a country already well settled and developed in an agricultural point.

The question is, "Would such a road pay?" we would like to answer confidently, "Yes," but so few lines of railway in this country do pay the interest of capital invested, besides working expenses, that that the injury done the Province, and shortly after, they wrung from the Assembly the payment of their travel and attendance, which they have received to the present day.

This has not improved the character of this body and since the infamous Act of 1865 passed, making these men irresponsible, the same system has been pursued. Could it be expected unless published under the authority of the Council itself, that Mr. Daniel Hampton, holding his appointment of Councillor, from His Honor Gov. L. A. Wilton, under the Act of 1865, could be so inflamed as to wheel discussing the Clerical supremacy. "When he mentioned his privilege, he did not mean mere privileges, but those malignant and most sovereign privileges which have derived from our ancestors and deserve to go down as an inheritance to those who are to come after us."

They have a precious heritage and we cannot go too far in extolling the privileges—as careful course the Council took in the Biss-Botsford controversy, the unflinching assertion of childish and puerile claims, the obstinate maintaining a Clerk in defiance of law, the refusal to accept the opinion of the Crown Officers given on the subject, the forcing the government to a second referendum, and again a second time upholding with pride obstinacy, and official disregard by the people, and all the time illegally and fraudulently, including in their Contingent not requiring four lines of steamers, packed, & then she already possesses, but shows a soil of remarkable agricultural capabilities, and her trade and population are rapidly increasing. Who shall have a right to her prospective growth? One of her ablest public men, only a few years ago, denounced the project of steam communication with P. E. Island as a wild and reckless speculation. What public man would dare undertake now, and say that a steam ferry and railway at Cape Tormentine are not only practicable, but are also absolutely necessary, to carry on the business of the Island, such a road would place Charlottetown in daily communication with St. John, Halifax, Victoria, &c. &c.

In winter, the present means of transport—an open road, constructed according to the people's bills, been denied by the Legislative Council, and the notorious fact of the Council in such a bold travesty. The danger, too, to the safety of some of the noble New Brunswick peers, is not to be overlooked, the Assembly, especially the hardy scolding men in charge, such knave and dangerous cowards belonging to the past. The day is coming when the ureas of English navigation scheme will be tested to provide a safe & speedy winter route for passengers and freight between Cape Truro and Cape Tormentine. A railway to the latter point is necessary to the national advancement of the Island. Their people need, indeed, be lacking inventiveness and foresight, if they do not make the construction of this road one of the conditions of their treaty by becoming a part of the Dominion.

The distance from An Lac to Cape Tormentine is about 32 miles, marking the distance from Charlottetown to St. John, 11 miles, and to Halifax 18 miles.

OUR HOME INDUSTRIES.

MACKS & MCKINNAN'S CARRIAGE FACTORY, PETTICOAT.

Our Political fact, correspondent sends us some local items from which we select a description of Mack's & McKinna's Carriage Factory. It is situated near the Railway Station.

The Company own a large, commodious building fitted up with all the modern appliances and labor-saving machinery necessary to facilitate the operations of these enterprising Carriage Factories.

The woods used are all imported Ash, Hickory and Oak. We imported a very beautiful style of carriage in Willow or Basket pattern which for lightness, strength and gracefulness was unsurpassed. There are a few covered carriages, single and double, Pony Phaetons &c. We noticed some beautiful Boxes in the piano style. The painting and trimming as well as all the other branches, are done in the premises, and cannot be exceeded on this continent. The proprietors informed me that in a month or two they will have built 100 carriages which for lightness, durability and cheapness, cannot be excelled in the Province. During the last season carriages from the Factory were bought in St. John and other parts of the Province. My attention was called to a beautiful Pleasure Cart, the wheels of which were said to weigh only 28 pounds.

STEWART'S QUARTERLY.—The January number of the above Magazine is on our table. In its contents we notice an article on "Thomas Carlyle" by Dr. Clark; "Notes of a trip to the old Land," by Rev. Mr. Harvey, of Newfoundland; "The Three Ages" by Prof. J. J. Cameron, of Kingston, Ont.; a lengthy review of Wm. Murdoch's New Book, "Poems and Songs," Popular Aesthetics by Prof. Gray, the Dependence of mind on matter; Physical Training; about some old girls; some Love Lyllys. We regret that Stewart's Quarterly ceases with this number.

THE SPEECH OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL, WHICH LASTED FROM TUESDAY AFTERNOON UNTIL WEDNESDAY EVENING, WAS A REMARKABLY FINE ONE.

There were no retalliations of private and personal conversations, no reading of private letters, or empty declamations, but from beginning to end it was a grouping together of facts and a drawing of a segment thereof, which could not fail to convince and when he left the defensive and attacked the position of the Opposition on the question of the School Law, showing the world-wide agitation now being made by the Catholic hierarchy and their conduct throughout the Province on the question of Education, he carried the conviction to every honest mind that the protestations of the Catholic members that they had succeeded the situation was a delusion and a sham.

Palmer's honest declaration that there was no way of resisting the conviction that the school bill would not be safe an hour in the hands of some Justice of the Peace, when he however, as others assert, there are only $3,000 difference, as one of the Committee as evils, by all means to have the more imposing and substantial structure. We trust the Sessions will not go headlong into expense, without having before them a more accurate estimate prepared by disinterested and practical men.

INQUEST.—An inquest was held at Bay Verte, 19th inst., before Justices Read and Morris, on the body of the late Samuel Groden. There were several black and blue spots, and some congealed blood on the head of deceased, which gave rise to the necessity of holding an inquest. At the inquest, Dr. Chandler said, after examining the body, that he found certain marks about the head which might have been productive of some serious injury of the brain. Therefore an examination was made of the brain and skull. After a careful examination, only a slight enlargement of the brain was observed, such as that which is frequently found in deceased persons.

The external bruises were satisfactorily accounted for by several evidences, showing that deceased, being of 14 or 15, 84 years, and subject to dizziness, frequently fell and received bruises. Consequently, the verdict of the jury was that he died by the visitation of God.

OFFICERS FOR DISTRICT NO. 12, BOSTON, FOR THE EVENING, ARE: Wm. A. Amos, Dr. D. McKey, Thomas Amos, also Secretary; John Walsh, Auditor; $100 was voted at the annual meeting, at subsequent special meetings, 40 dollars was added to that amount. Total for Teacher, $200. The School House formerly held in slopes was sold to the District for $300. Total to be taxed on the District, $500.

Gough's Speech was a failure—the poorest effort he ever made on an important subject, but he has been worked so hard keeping his party together and whipping up those who show signs of deserting him that every excuse should be made for him.

He was, as usual, bitter and sarcastic, volatile and abusive; he was called to order once by the Speaker,

OUR FREDERICTON LETTER.

FREDERICTON, March 18th.

I don't know that you will get this letter next week or not, but if you don't you must blame the snowdrifts. I have been reflecting on the suspense which these same snow drifts would cause were it not that the telegraph wires bridge them over, and carries the news far and wide in spite of them. The country has learned by telegraph that Hathaway—a veteran poker player, a defender of the faith, as White aptly styled him—escaped being roughly handled by friends of Separatist Schools, and there has been no little excitement caused thereby. The men who did it were partly intoxicated at the time, and it is all put down to that, but, Gough's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized,

er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do it he tried to gag him off. The Speaker ruled that Hathaway had the floor, but Gough endeavored to drown Hathaway's voice by him off continuing to speak. Cries of "Chair," "Chair," resounded through the House and Gough crying out—"On stick a chair down your throat!" Subsidized, er and when he called for Hathaway to answer a question, and Hathaway rose and commenced to do