"Lost propeller and sails on the 9th. Taken off by the steamer Montreal." We cannot positively tell from the above that the Steinman was abandoned, but the probability is that such was the fact. It is, however, gratifying to know that Messrs. Hayward and it arrived home safely.—Chronicle

Yesterday, while proceeding on his way to Crocker's Cove, a policeman who is an inveterate enemy of dogs, especially mad ones, was attracted by a scene which demanded his interference, that of a large dog in the act of devouring a smaller one. He the policeman procured a picket and therewith made for the voracious animal who, first, disputed the right of interference on the part of the Constable, but on a second thought resolved to make a retreat, but was overtaken and slain, by his zephyr, said ferocious enemy.

In the Assembly yesterday the Revenue bill, the Wreck and Salvage bill, and the Small-pox Prevention bill were severally read a third time and passed. Great crowds of people continue to frequent the chapel at Knock. The piety of the Catholics of this province appears to be awakened by the event and by the circumstance narrated in connection with it. It is not the province of any public writer to state more than that which is told as news, and which is generally attested as true by those living in the district where the events occur. As these news we state that we have been assured by the best authority, that the apparition, of the 21st August last has been attested by fifteen different witnesses. Regarding the miracles that have been reported by those who visit the place of the apparition, it one out of every twenty were true and real, it would amply suffice to show that the source of such surprising events is really supernatural. The subject regarding the miracles said to be wrought has not been brought under the notice of any ecclesiastical authority; all that is known regarding them is, that the people who visit the place say that they have witnessed what to their eyes and ears appear miraculous in their character.—True Witness.

The Missionary Meeting held in the Methodist Church, Centerville, on Tuesday evening last, proved very interesting to the present. The Rev J. S. Phinney was in attendance, and gave them a very able and eloquent speech. The other clergymen present appeared, also, to manifest a good deal of enthusiasm in the cause of missions.
