the position the cavalry had now gained they could see the enemy close on the horizon in very large numbers, where upon Russell dismounted the cavalry, and ordered them to open sharp numbers and ordered them to op very gallantry. He soon found that the enemy were being largely reinforced from Tel el Kebir. I could see the trains arriving, and I thought it inconvenient with the traditions of the queen's army to retire before any number of Egyptian troops; so I decided to rived. All day long I had the Egyptian force of 10,000 men with ten guns in my front and right flank. The precision of the enemy's fire was good, but fortan ately they fired common shell nearly all day, and when they did fire showed.

Alexandria, Aug. 29.—Those afloat in the harbor to-day witnessed the unusual sight of keel-hauling three Arab sailors cavalry and mounted infantry. Being reinforced by another battalion he attacked the enemy in front, whilst the First Cavalry Brigade, under Russell, charged them in the flank sabring a considerable number. Graham's dispositions were all that they should have been. His operations were carried only were soon dead.

ened fire with two guns. Pigott dismounted ond his men returned the fire briskly, his men holding their ground well for some time, though eventually obliged to retire upon our camp. At 10 o'clock 4,000 Bedouins appeared on our right and front, extending two miles, but on the guns opening fire on them they retired. About three o'clock their in fantry advanced in open order upon our left, bringing vereral guns, which they placed at short distances from each other, and presently showed several pieces of artillery on our right. Our guns opened fire and our men turned out to face the attack. The fight now waxed warm, and during the whole aftersoon the gallant little garrison made good defence. Meanwhile the cavalry which was five miles in our rear had been twice signalled by Graham to support him, and had advanced almost to our position without encountering the enemy. By 7:30 p.m. the whole force our position without encountering the moment no more was seen till the battle enemy. his men so excellently that he was able to pilot them safely to the point of contact without coming under the fire of the guns, which were pounding the Kassasin camp. He led the way along a ride, with the idea of outflanking the enemy and turning his position. Col. Russell brought his men over four miles of heavy ground, so that by nine o'clock, when they silently halted on the stay line, they found themselves so close to the Egyptians that shells went over their heads in quick succession, landing nearly half a mile in their rear. London, Aug. 30.—The Telegraph's Ismailia despatch of the 28th says:—When morning came great excitement prevailed in camp at Kassassin in consequence of Egyptians showing themselves in considerable force in various directions. General Graham sent Major Hart with an escort of mounted infantry under command of Lieut. Pigott, to ascertain the strength and exact position of the enemy. Hart proceeded in the direction of Tel-el-Kehir, and had gone forward two miless when the enemy opened fire with two guns. Pigott dismounted ond his men returned the fire briskly, his men holding their ground.

Was heard again, and by the heavy and continuous roar it was evident the attack was in earnest. Again the wearied men staddled their tired horses and prepared to advance. The sun was still beating down fiercely, the hot wind throwing the sand clouds so high that it was impossible to see what was going on. As the cavalry moved away, fellowed by the horse artillery, the cannonade increased in violence and did not cease for a moment. The general repeated the tactics of the previous fight, by getting round to the enemy opened fire with two guns. Pigott dismounted ond his men returned the fire briskly, his men holding their ground.

Standard. A merchant in the city was accustomed to demand an excuse of his clerks whenever they arrived late. The excuse given, he invariably added, "Very well; but don't let it happen again." One morning a married clerk, being behind time, was promptly intercogated as to the cause. Slightly embarrassed, he replied, "The truth is, sir, I had an addition to my family this promptly and it was not my family this morning' and it was not convenient to be here sooner." Very well," said the merchant, in his quick, nervous manner, "very well; but don't let it happen again."

Only a few British were killed, but over a hundred wounded. I am proceeding to the front."

London, Aug. 29.—Further advices confirm the report of the battle and repulse of the enemy at Kassassin. Fighting took place by moonlight. The British lost from 120 to 150 men.

London, Aug. 29.—Wolseley telegraphs from Kassassin Lock:—Gen. Graham, commanding this post, was attacked yesterday evening by about twelve guns and eight battalions. Our men, were rapidly gaining grown and would soon have rushed upon our entrenchments, when the roar of our cavalry proved too much for them, and from that moment they be discovered to much for them, and from that moment they can be discovered. About ten o'clock the cavalry came in in high spirits over their brilliant achievement. Many are missing in the darkness, but will no doubt turn up in the morning.
