Parade of Brigades.

Amongst the mose attractive events Coronation festivities was the oint parade of the City Brigades and the naval men from the H. M. S. Brilliant. The marines and seamen came ashore to the King's Wharf at 10 a.m. where they were met by the L. B., C. C. C. and Highlanders. After lining up in processional order hey all marched to the General Hospital grounds by way of Duckworth

Street to assist at the laying of the corner stone of the Nurses' Home. From there they marched to the Parade Ground followed by a large concerns of attitude to the parade for the followed by a large concerns of attitud course of citizens who greatly admir-ed the splendid showing made by the Brigades. The naval men were in front followed by the C. L. B., C. C. C. and Highlanders. His Excellency he Governor arrived at the Parade fround at noon and was greeted with the National Anthem played by the bands; a royal salute was also fired. The Governor who took up a position on a platform on the northern side of the grounds was attended by his suite and a number of prominent citizens, now reviewed the troops being given every possible assistance by Lieut. Pritchard, of H. M. S. Brilliant, who had charge of the parade and who directed the different commanding officers. When the salute was fired from the warship in the harbour at high noon the naval men also fired volley, the bands then played God Save the King and the brigades presented arms. As the flag was borne along in front of the stand with the brigades marching behind cheers rent the air that could be heard all over the city. Meantime the C. L. B. and C. C. C. Bands stationed in midground rendered patriotic airs. His Excellency delivered a forcible and patriotic address in which he dwelt on and eulogized the Brigades for their fine turn out. At the close His Excellency called for cheers for the King and Queen and his request was heartily complied with. Lieut. Pritchard also asked for three hearty cheers for the Governor and Lady which were given with a will. After the Brigades had successfully ac omplished the drill and military manouevres they formed up into line and companied the naval men back to the King's Wharf. The C. L. B. played grand music along the route and at the pier while the tars got into Brilliant. The parade was one of the best seen in the city, there being about 900 men all told.

The Highlanders looked especially well in their white helmets worn for he first time. The Commander of he French warship D'Estrees and of ficers were interested spectators. His Excellency the Governor heartily con gratulated all on their excellence i drill and smart appearance, as did Lieut. Pritchard on arrival near the ling's Wharf. The band of the C B. went to the pier and "played off" the tars as they returned to the war ship. As the C. L. B. halted nea armoury hearty cheers wer given for the boys of the C. C. as they swept past, and these were as heartily returned by the Cadets opposite their own armoury.

The sermon was preached by the President of the Methodist Conference, Rev T Darby, B.A., who took for his text: which he hath made in praise and in which we have attained and to clim name and in honor; that thou mayest | with them the heights of true Chris be an holy people unto the Lord thy God as he hath spoken." The Coronation service, said the preacher, was of men whom Tennyson has sung. no mere pageant, but essentially solemn religious service. The British people were engaged in setting apart in solemn fashion its King for his high office and important function to which it believes God had called him. In illustration of this he outlined some of the Coronation ceremonies to show how religious and solemn the service is. As a nation the English people recognized that the nation belonged to God, and its King rules were special features of the day. In the evening the bonfire, fireworks and illumination of private residences closed a highly enthusiastic celebration and one which will be sanction. The King rules by the will of the people and the King is the visible embodiment of the kingly power of the people. We honour the king as a man and are tive of the nation, and in the latter capacity we do him homage, and when we consecrate our King to God we consecrate the nation to God.
