The Evening Chit-Chat

By MISS CARROLL

Yesterday we had the long promised symposium of my letter-friend's opinions on the kind of a woman a man likes best, and the opinions expressed were so interesting that I had to let them spill over into to-day's space.

Here is a description of an ideal of womanhood that sends me to my Stevenson to hunt up his description of the ideal married life--for the faults of married people continually spur up each of them, hour by hour, to do better, to meet and love upon a higher ground. And ever, between the failures, there will come glimpses of kind virtues to cheer and encourage. "My wife," says this idealist, "should be thoroughly domesticated, intensely fond of children and allied to the real home life; unostentatious in the best literature, very affectionate and ready to forgive; neat in dress and very exact as to boots and gloves; unselfish, broadly religious, with charity towards other creeds; fond of and willing to entertain genial society, with a knife and fork always ready for 'strangers un-awares.' She must be a true life's partner who would tell the of my weaknesses and failures and help me daily with her woman's intuition and prayers to overcome my many faults; who would make our lives happier, holier and better for our unity. "A married woman" yesterday declared that men would bear her out. Here is one who does. "My ideal woman must be neat, plain, sincere, cordial, generous, large hearted, with a kind, pleasing personality. She must be one who converses on what she has seen, not what she has heard or read. One whose life and character is unquestioned, one who has traveled and with sufficient vocabulary to express herself intelligently; an independent girl and not a flirt or a jollier, and last but not least, a good plain cook who would try to please her husband."

I think this next man ought to get the exceedingly reasonable order that he puts in, filled. Don't you? "Much depends on a man's nature as to what kind of a girl he likes. I have observed that intellectual men usually admire girls who possess good solid common sense, but not overburdened with knowledge; girls who can appreciate a serious conversation and still not be serious enough to lack the sense of humor. Furthermore, a sympathetic girl always appeals to a man, especially if her sympathy leans towards himself. Not too much spirit but some. Some self-control and not too eternally sweet; just a little capricious--that keeps him on the alert. Also one who can keep her spirit sweet and avoid all manner of petty anger. That is an ideal girl and an observant man can find her I am sure."

I asked especially for leaves from personal experience. Here is a rather sad one: "Up to twenty-five or thirty years of age the vivacious and the chic dresser attracts a man, although not always without his having some feeling of fear. Men of this age ignore or are unconscious of the good and endearing qualities which make the woman estimable, companionable and lovable and also the qualities which produce the opposite effect. "After that age, especially if they have been married, a man looks for and likes the woman who is not entirely selfish, who desires to see him happy, whose ideas are to help him and not simply to have him produce substance for her to devour. Then men want a perceptive mind and a woman loyal and not wholly self-sympathetic. As this is a leaf from my experience you will pardon me for not signing my whole name."

Here is an infinitely sadder and yet at the same time infinitely happier experience. "Judging by my experience, I like what I had--a woman who was gentle, affectionate (not effusive), considerate of everybody, respected during thirteen years of married life and revered now eight years after her death. She was a woman that everybody, relatives, acquaintances and servants, loved for her considerateness towards others, a woman whom all children held out their arms to with smiles on their faces, a woman who loved every child she saw in spite of having seven of her own, a woman who went through the terrible ordeals of motherhood with a smile on her face and without a whimper--a woman who was always at the door to greet me with a smile, no matter how trying her day had been--a woman for whom my first love turned into a holy love such as one generally gives one's mother."

I trust my own sex have noticed that beauty has not once been mentioned as a necessary quality, that a sweet temper is generally demanded and that health, love of children, and domesticity are at premium.

IN MEMORIAM.

MRS. LINEHAM.

All hearts went out in sympathy to the bereaved ones yesterday evening when that was mortal of Mrs. Edward Lineham slowly passed down through the town accompanied by sorrowing friends, who thus strove to pay their last tribute of respect to one whom they had seen grow up in their midst, endeavoring herself to every heart as the years passed away. Deceased was Miss Margaret Norris, of this village, and only twenty-four years old. A few years ago she married a Mr. Lineham of Mosquito Island, but the couple settled down in the gay city of New York where the bloom of the youthful wife was faded to receive a blast. Having received the consolation of dear Mother Church, she quietly breathed her last on the morning of November 6th, leaving besides her husband and two darling children, a mother, two brothers and four sisters to mourn their loss. The corpse was enclosed in a magnificent casket, literally covered with floral offerings received from sympathetic friends in New York, Springfield, Boston and many other points in the line of home-coming, and was accompanied by the husband and a cousin. A sister, Miss Alice Norris, at present working for the Slinger Sewing Machine Co., St. John's, met them at Holywood station, whence the funeral cortege started. Interment took place in our quiet hill-side cemetery at 3 p.m. to-day, Rev. Father O'Flaherty reading the burial service. Hard indeed would be the heart that calmly and without a sympathetic sigh could look upon the closing of that young grave, remembering as they certainly must, that there by her side rests the mortality of a fond father and a loving sister who, a few years ago, with an interval of a few months were laid to

CHRISTOPHER'S SECOND VOYAGE

When Christopher Columbus (who, it will be recalled by some of our more gifted citizens, discovered America in 1492) arrived home from his first voyage, he was greeted with a loud acclaim and several gold-filled medals. The American ambassador gave a pink tea in his honor and he was made keeper of record and seals in the royal livery barn entrusted with the grip of an entire apprentice. It is painful to relate that this adulation caused Christopher to swell so appreciably that he had to scratch his right ear at a distance of several feet from his head. After lying around for a few months awaiting a considerable flesh, Christopher decided to run over to America again and subdue the natives with kindness and a bull whip. History states that he sailed in seventeen vessels, but gives no further particulars of his whereabouts. He received a warm welcome from the natives, who plotted a tasty burying ground and proceeded to fill it with alien citizens. Columbus succumbed to an attack of the shingles, due to a lack of building material, and hovered between life and death so long that the first mat emitted a neat obituary poem. But Christopher rallied, introduced a case of Spanish rye into the bed chamber of the best chief, and left upon the natives while they slept, scattering a large number of vital parts about the premises with a repeating shotgun. After this act of valour, he returned home and was greeted with some new medals. Although he discovered America twice after that, the press of the day seems to have looked upon it as a habit, for he was taken off the first page and sandwiched in between the insurance column and the market report. Columbus died at the age of sixty, leaving an imperishable name and no life insurance to speak of.

The Lost Schooner.

The schooner Renown, lost at Little Bay, last Saturday, was owned by J. Baird, Ltd. She was built in England here from Harbor Bretton with a cargo of fish for Mr. Smith, of that place. The Renown was 43 tons burthen and was built in Smith's Sound, by J. Morris, of Trinity.

rest in mother earth after departing this life quite suddenly. It is our sincere and fervent prayer that all three are now happily united in the bosom of their Creator where those who are left to mourn will never cease to pray to meet their loved ones in God's own good time. --Com. Eczema on Face and Hands

Gave up work--Could not shave--Relief and cure obtained from DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

"I had eczema nearly all over the body," writes Mr. John Gordon Campbell, Foreman, Holland Grove Lumber Co., Sudbury, Ont., "head, neck and wrists were blistered and itching with it. I could find absolutely no cure until I obtained Dr. Chase's Ointment. After using this ointment I was almost instantly relieved and soon completely cured." "So bad was the eczema that I had to give up work. Could not shave. I was so bad that they had to take me out of camp in a wagon and send for a new foreman. I cannot recommend this ointment too highly." As a means of soothing raw, burning, irritated skin no treatment can be compared to Dr. Chase's Ointment. It often heals in a single night. You can see for yourself each day the good it is doing. Sample box free, 60c. box, at all dealers or W. H. Woodson, Batek & Co., Toronto.
