Unanimous.

The meeting of the Fish Exporters Association, held in the Board of Trade Rooms, yesterday, was by far the most important session probably ever attended by the members of that body, inasmuch as the public was represented by the reporters of the various newspapers in the city, this being the first meeting which the pressmen had been permitted to attend, consequently yesterday afternoon's issues of the dailies were able to give lengthy descriptions of the proceedings, something which hitherto has been impossible because of closed door assemblies. No person objects to the right of any commercial association to conduct its deliberations with all the secrecy possible, as its business is its own peculiar possession and the conduct thereof its own inherent right. But when a national commercial question is involved, secrecy too often is carried to extremes. The public has a right to be made acquainted with certain outstanding facts, and it is the business of a newspaper with any push, go and initiative to supply such. That is recognized by all, but no newspaper has any desire whatever to pry into private affairs of either associations or individuals. Much of the misunderstanding of the past, arising between the press and certain sections of the exporting trade, was due to the lack of confidence shown by the latter to the former. Hence the press was obliged to collate news from the best sources obtainable, and discuss daily questions from the information thereby derived. But this much can be said that in no one case was the press many yards astray from the line.

As has been said the meeting of yesterday was probably the most important that has yet been held. How supreme that importance, can be deduced from the fact that His Excellency the Governor departed somewhat from vice-regal custom and acted as chairman. All will realise from this the gravity of the present situation. His Excellency's advice was given from a close study of both local and foreign conditions in the chief industry of the dominion, and it is advice worth following. The Prime Minister, at whose instance the meeting was convened, was satisfied that the time had arrived when certain policies should be reversed, and that was the consensus of opinion of the assembly. There was no dissensions when it came to a question of whether or not it was the hour for a reversal of the policy which had previously been followed, and the unanimous expression of the voting power of the members was convincing proof that the Regulations had not been in the best interests of the trade at large. It has taken over a year to make that discovery, one which unfortunately comes too late to save certain units of the commercial community, which have gone down before the financial storm let loose by the operation of the regulations. No single person in Newfoundland or no body of business men, no matter on what portion of the coastline they reside, desires or would assist in creating a slump in the foreign markets. Their aim, as is the aim of every true-hearted citizen is to keep the prices up that fishermen and exporters may benefit alike. The fortunes of all the people, merchant and producer, are inseparably linked. The gain of the one is the profit of the other, and as the time has now apparently come for unity of action and purpose by all, irrespective of calling or position, let there be no hesitation, no yielding, no surrendering to influences. The common cause has to be buttressed and supported by unanimity.

His Excellency's Address

TO THE FISH EXPORTERS ASSOCIATION.

The following is a verbatim report of His Excellency's address delivered at the Fish Exporters meeting held yesterday forenoon in the Board of Trade Rooms:

"It is comparatively rarely that a Governor is called upon to preside at a public meeting in the territory under his administration, and when he does so it means that he recognizes the definite public importance of the business to be considered at that meeting. It is with this conviction in mind that I gladly accepted the invitation of the Committee of the Board of Trade to preside at a public general meeting of all those interested in the export of Fish in Newfoundland, at a moment which requires their united and most careful consideration and counsel."

As I understand it, the object of the Board of Trade in calling this meeting is to ascertain the general opinion of the Trade upon the policy of relaxing certain Regulations which have been established for the marketing of the chief product of the Colony and I believe the Board have approached me in the matter because they know my strong conviction that it was the duty of the Governor to be ready at all times to forward by any means in his power the general welfare of the community.

Now I naturally know something about this question of marketing of the fish. I have, as many of you know, made a habit from time to time of visiting the wharves and informing myself of the conditions under which your industry is carried on, not only in St. John's, but also in the course of my journeys in the Outports, and not only this year but ever since I came here, and in the ordinary course of business in the last three years I have had to consider the difficulties which you have met and not least those which have attached to the Italian market.

Two years ago that market was giving you trouble; last year the trouble was repeated and again this year you are anxious on the same ground. Now please let me say that a great deal of the trouble is due to thoughtless action on the part of some of you who are assembled here. If you had at all times been very careful to send a good article you would, even though you were charging a very high price, probably have had little or no trouble with the Italians. As it is, successive Ministries in Newfoundland have had to face considerable trouble. First of all it was the National Government, then the Government that succeeded them and now my present Ministers. They all, I believe, recognize that combination on the part of the Exporters was the first element of successful business and I am conscious of the efforts which have been made by different men to obtain that co-operation and reciprocal confidence which would best have supported you in any crisis.

Now I should like to explain why that co-operation is particularly important at the present time. During the war Newfoundland had been in a very special position. She had very largely got control of the Fish Trade of Europe. She had had the advantage of very high prices and large profits, particularly to the fishermen, but also to the merchants, but it was inevitable, and some of us foresaw it at least two years ago, that a drop would come and that the danger of a drop was that it should be sudden. I myself most strongly counselled efforts by combination of the merchants to prevent a sudden drop in price.

It was in an attempt to obtain some definite co-operation or its equivalent that the Regulations of this year were made effective, and I suppose there can be no doubt they have had a good effect in staying the drop of prices, but it is at all times difficult to regulate a market. Since the war Governments in all directions have been driven to something of the sort and they have all met different difficulties and setbacks. Our Newfoundland is no exception and it is a question whether it is any longer desirable to hold up supplies or to maintain any measures which may interfere with sale. Some of us probably think one way and there are certainly those who make no compromise as to the other view being the right one. My own feeling is that at such a moment one ought not to do anything in a hurry, but that the action proposed to you to-day should be taken with deliberation and firmness.

If therefore you as a body are satisfied that the effort to avoid a slump in the market has gone far enough and that the time has come when free action should be permitted to exporters it is for you to say it. It is always difficult to foresee results. It may be that it would have been wiser to take the step earlier; it may be that it is even now too early, but the one thing I can commend to you is to strive honestly on this occasion to advise that which may be of the greatest good for the greatest number, not in any spirit of evasive haste, but as I have just indicated, with the deliberate effort to do the best for all interests and to keep a brave heart even if things do not answer all your expectations."

Export of Codfish.

Yesterday's Royal Gazette contains the following amendment to the Rules and Regulations previously recommended by the Codfish Exportation Board, and now in force under the Act applying to same:

- (1) All Regulations respecting the exportation of the exportation and sale to, in and for any market or markets of "Labrador" Fish are repealed.
- (2) All Regulations respecting the exportation and sale to, in and for Italy of "Shore" Fish are repealed.

Week of Prayer.

Owing to some unforeseen disorder in the heating of the edifice, the service last night at the Congregational Church was considerably curtailed, and closed at a quarter to nine.

The topic, as announced, was that of the Church Universal, and all the hymns and devotions were along that line of thought. The service was conducted by the Rev. T. B. Darby, B.A., and he was assisted by the Rev. D. B. Hemmison and also by the Rev. Mr. Baird. Though the atmosphere was a little chilly, there was a warmth in the service and the singing was very hearty and reminded one of the words of the Apostle when he wrote to one of the earlier churches about "singing with the spirit and with the understanding."

The service to-night will be held at Gower St. Church, and is to be addressed by the Rev. Mr. Baird. This Rev. gentleman, as already reported, is supplying the St. Andrew's pulpit for a while, and until the pastor-elect arrives. During his short stay he has won golden opinions from our people; and his co-operation at the united services of the Week of Prayer has been very helpful and encouraging. We feel assured that a large congregation will greet Mr. Baird this evening, and if his address will be of the same deep and dignified character as have been his other contributions, then we have no hesitation in expecting a message that will be at once impressive and abiding, and helpful to all the people.

Unique Diary.

We thank the White Commission Company for their 1921 souvenir, which takes the form of a series of pocket diaries, one for each month, designed to fit the vest pocket. Each book contains sufficient space for a complete diurnal record, there being a page allotted to each day, with the day of the week and date at the top. Twelve books make the series, and as a compact and appropriate pocket diary the White Company's 1921 reminder will supply the busy man with something that fills the bill.

Will Press Resolution.

An effort is being made to have Mr. Fred Moore's resolution, which was on the minutes recorded at yesterday's meeting of the Fish Exporters, brought before a general meeting of that body. The proposer does not intend to let the matter drop, and has asked the President of the Board of Trade to convene an early meeting.

Mr. Moore's resolution, seconded by Mr. Hickman, was "That the regulations on all fish shipped to foreign markets be revamped."

Union Men Called Out

AS RESULT OF RETRENCHMENT AT G. M. BARR'S.

Yesterday morning some seventeen employees of G. M. Barr's were informed by Mr. Canning, one of the directors of the firm, that owing to the present financial conditions the firm was not able to retain their services at the scheduled rate of wages. These men have been drawing regular wages at from $21.00 to $30.00 per week and many have been in the employ for a considerable period, some for as long as twenty years. At the present time there was absolutely no work for them to do, but believing that a half loaf was better than no bread, Mr. Canning offered to keep them in the employ at half their usual wages, the employees, except one, were connected directly with the different unions and the matter was forthwith brought to the attention of their executives. The result was that the men of the L. S. P. U. affected were called on to leave the premises, and also the Coopers' Union men, this in virtue of the principles of both unions. Seen by a Telegram representative this morning, Mr. Canning said that he had not then enough work to keep the men going for one hour a day, but that the firm would pay full union wages for hourly men when work was available. The reduction applied to permanent hands and up to New Year they had a staff on their wharves and in their fish stores drawing the full wage, now they were unable to meet the outlay; and instead of sacrificing some and retaining the few, retrenchment had to be applied all around. It was the firm's regret that it had to be done, but no other course was left open. All these men had shared in the firm's prosperity and at least they should be considered in the times of adversity. To-day all their stores were locked up and the men are without any employment.

Delegate Coady of the L. S. P. U. called at Barr's premises yesterday morning and told the story of the men whose wages had been reduced. He later consulted with Mr. Canning and explained to him that it was against union principles to have any men of the union work at less than the schedule rates. He suggested that the men be employed at so many hours each day to make the reduction meet with union requirements, but Mr. Canning refused to accept this proposition. Mr. Coady was then obliged to call the L. S. P. U. men off the premises, and they left in a body. Union men are of opinion that if the principle is allowed to be applied at the premises of Mr. Barr all other firms will follow suit.

McMurdo's Store News.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 5, '21
Shampoo preparations are many, and each type of preparation—powder, paste, liquid, has its particular claims, who prefer their own particular kind; but there is no preparation of the sort more popular or one whom popularity is better deserved, than McMurdo's Emulsified Coconut Oil Shampoo. Somehow, from the start—and Coconut Oil Shampoo has been for some years in vogue—this elegant preparation "caught on," and is now used in almost all parts of Newfoundland, and is well liked in all parts where it is used. Price 40c. a bottle; 45c. carriage paid.

Police Returns.

During the past year the police dealt with over 2,000 matters. Of these, 44 were Prohibition Cases and 128 larcenies. The total number of arrests made during the year was 611. In 1919 there were 119 larcenies and in 1918 there were 208, which tends to show that this particular form of crime is on the decrease.
