Catalina Notes

The exigencies of a fisherman's life demand all his time during the summer months, and so in May month, in most of our outports, we bid farewell to Lodge meetings and close down until November. It was naturally fitting that Caribou Lodge, No. 74, S.U.F., should have a social evening ere terminating the spring's work. Consequently on Tuesday night, May 6th, quite a gay party assembled in the Lodge rooms. An impromptu concert followed by tea, games and dance gave to all present a most delightful evening. We feel assured that these social amenities of Caribou Lodge during 1924 have not been without good effect, and we have no doubt but that our Autumn opening will be the signal for the influx of many new and additional members. "Floreat Caribou."

On Saturday, May 3rd, Messrs. A. Lodge and A. E. Reid, manager and bookkeeper respectively of the business of P. Templeman at Catalina, severed their connections with that firm. Mr. S. W. Miffin has been appointed to take the office vacated by Mr. Lodge. Mr. Miffin has been with the firm now for more than twenty years, seventeen of which have been the position of foreman of the shop, the position of foreman of the shop. Apart from his business experience, the new manager has always taken a big part in the social life of the community, in which connection it is sufficient to state that he is Past Master of the L.O.A., Past President of the C.E.A.A., Past Master of the D.G. Lodge, No. 2, S.U.F., and W. Master of Caribou Lodge, No. 74 at the present time. It is but due recognition of his merit that the management of the business which he knows so intimately, should have devolved upon his shoulders, and we bespeak for the firm continued commercial success under the new regime. Mr. J. W. Clouser has been promoted as foreman of the shop department. Sincere congratulations to both on their promotions.

We note the carpenters are busy remodeling the cottage belonging to Mr. P. Ryan. It is the intention of Mr. Ryan to convert same into a larger and first-class residence.

Mrs. R. House, who had been making a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Harvey, in St. John's, arrived home by S.S. Susu on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Brushett, who had been spending the winter in the capital, arrived home a few days ago.—COR.

London Letter

(By PHANTON HOUSE for the Canadian Press.)

LONDON, April 24.—More people were present at the opening of the British Empire Exhibition by the King on April 23 than at any previous State function. Thousands of visitors from the provinces contrived to make their Easter holiday in London elastic enough to cover the opening of the Exhibition, Easter Monday was the first great public holiday of the year. Large numbers of business houses closed from Thursday night until Tuesday morning, giving their employees a clear four days' vacation.

PICTURESQUE SERVICE IN ABBEY

On April 17 the Ancient Maundy Thursday service was held in Westminster Abbey, when 59 old men and 59 old women received substantial gifts from the Lord High Almoner, representing the King. This service is a relic of the custom, established in the fourth century, that on the Thursday before Easter the King (and other people in high places) should ceremonially wash the feet of the poor. The number of poor people was determined by the King's age, and after the ceremony gifts of money, food and clothes were distributed. In and after Queen Elizabeth's time, the feet of the old folk were very thoroughly cleaned beforehand with hot water and sweet herbs. James II. was the last English Sovereign to observe the custom; William III. delegated the washing to his Almoner, and even the royal almoners did not continue it after 1754.

Nowadays a procession is formed in the Abbey nave, consisting of the Lord High Almoner, the clergy of the

THE LOST FRIEND.

How many times people cherish a grievance which, if they would air it instead of cherishing it, would simply vanish in thin air.

Who among us hasn't lost some friend without knowing the reason why? And who hasn't wondered and puzzled and said, "If I only knew what the matter was." Perhaps here really was a reason, something which we have done, or some change in point of view that made our friend no longer care for our friendship. But it is equally possible that the thing that is keeping us apart is just some misunderstanding which, if he or she would bring out and tell us about it, we could dissipate in a moment.

Lost For Four Years.

I once lost a friend this way. She was lost for years. We had been the best of friends and then one of those inexplicable coldnesses arose. I tried at first to think it was my imagination but I soon was convinced it wasn't. Being foolish, I did not come out and ask her the reason why. And she, being foolish, did not tell me. And I, being proud (and, like all foolish young people, proud of my pride) soon stiffened up, myself, and proved I could be just as cold as she was.

It was four years afterwards that I found my lost friend by accident. It seems that she had sent me a message by a child which the child had delivered in such a twisted way that the answer I sent seemed the acme of rudeness. Something brought the grievance she had been cherishing to light, and we saw how foolish the whole thing was.

They Never Got The Chance.

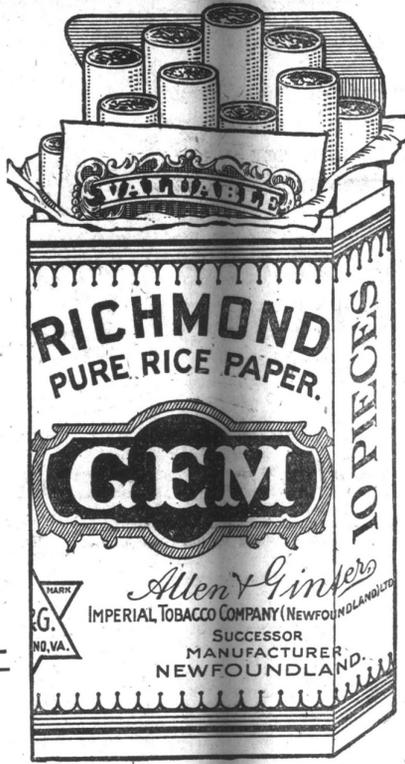

Sometimes, of course, the explanation never does come to light. A woman told me the other day of some young friends whom they had greatly enjoyed one season and looked forward to seeing the next year at their summer place. But next year the former friends never came near them and did not speak when they met on the street. "We never knew what the trouble was," she said sadly. "We think it was a misunderstanding about a bill we paid for them. We could explain if we got a chance. But we never got the chance."

Just Make The Chance.

The older I grow, the more I believe in making the chance, if the friendship seems to you worth the effort. Moreover, I believe in making it, whichever side of the chance you are on. If you think you have a grievance against anyone, don't just stiffen up and hold it against them without giving them a chance to explain. Bring it out into the open and maybe it can be explained.

And if you think someone else has a grievance against you, challenge him with that fact. Get it out of him. Maybe it has no grounds at all. And maybe there is something in it. But by each presenting to the other his point of view, you can straighten matters out.

Real friends are too valuable to lose without a struggle to keep them.
