The telephone must have a new role of rasefulness scored for it. Sir Humphrey de Tradord, near Manchester, has perhaps the finest kennels in England, the kennelman's house adjoining them. From each kennel a telephone arrangement leads to the kennelman's room, so that when any dog is noisy at night the keeper can speak to him so as to be heard without leaving his room.

It will be seen how dangerous it may be for untidy children to scratch each other, through the report of 78 examinations of the impurities under finger nails recently made in the bacteriological laboratories of Vienna. "Bring your feet with you and have them fitted to a pair of our common sense shoes," is the way a Pittsburg dealer advertises. It is a good phrase and one which attracts attention. Study up quaint, pithy or witty phrases to head your advertisements, and not to be too modest in the space they occupy.

Messrs: Hammill & Davidson, of this town, filled an immense ice house here during the boom, and shortly after sold the whole stock as it stood to one Emile Messing, of Tonawanda, N. Y., for $14,000, and realized about $10,000 profit. Not long since Messing was offered $5,000 advance on his purchase, but he declined the offer. The flood ruined the ice house and its contents, and Messing took the matter to heart so much that he committed suicide.

SEVEN DROWNED.

Only One of Them Rescued.

Borron, June 9.—About 6 a.m. yesterday a party of eight young men started for a fishing excursion in a sail boat. When they were about one mile from Thompson's Island, in Dorchester Bay, the boat was struck by a squall and capsized. All but one were swimmers, but instead of trying to swim ashore they tried to climb on the boat, which was so heavily ballasted that their weight would force her beneath the surface, leaving them struggling in the water. In this manner the strength of the men was exhausted, and they sank, one by one, until but one was left. The survivor, Walter Quinlan, had sunk for the last time, when the boat, in rising, came up under thoughton.

The Berlin Tageblatt says the Minister of War has informed the Military Committee of the Reichstag that a credit of 200,000,000 marks will be necessary to build strategic railways.

It is said at Berlin that England has practically accepted Germany's proposals regarding territory in Africa.

A letter from Major Wissmann, Imperial German Commissioner to East Africa, states that the presence of cruisers on the east coast of Africa is not sufficient to suppress the slave trade, which is being carried on there in spite of all efforts to suppress it. Wissmann holds that the only way to put a stop to the business of slave traders is to put military garrisons at different points along the coast.
