Contest for Township Council - Its Political Standing.

The Westminster Township Council for 1904 will comprise: Reeve-T. Hardy Shore (acclamation). Councilors - Angus Beattie, Robert Brown, Joseph Dale and J. H. Mair. The ratepayers took considerable interest in the elections, even though there. was no contest for the reeveship, and they turned out in fairly large numbers. Mr. Beattle headed the polls with a vote of 374. Mr. Brown was second, with 355 votes; Mr. Dale third, with 328 votes, and Mr. Mair fourth, with 2% votes The other candidates were: J. Foreman, who polled 295 votes: Caleb Millson Mr. Grant, 196 votes, and David Nicholls, 162 votes. There is talk of a recount on behalf of Mr. Foreman, who was only one vote behind Mr. Mair for fourth place. Of the council three are Conservatives and two Liberals. This is possibly the first time in Westminster's history that the Liberals have not had a majority. The ratepayers of Ekfrid Township were not called upon to leave their homes to vote vesterday, the entire council be-

The sweet, natural fragrance of fresh violets.

Extra Violette...

The most delicate and most exquisite violet perfume made. The modest violets are dainty creatures, and their sweet odors are their songs of thanksgiving and happiness, their voices of rejoicing in pure air and bright sunshine, in the rain and the dewfall. These conditions they enjoy in idyllic perfection in the Valley of the Var, in Sunny France, and there they fill the air with the perfume that hymns their happy lives.

Extra Violette is put up in dainty packages, and makes an ideal gift.

Beware of Pneumonia. Pneumonia displaces cons fatality. In all cities it is more deadly than in the country. Mainly, perhaps. because the conditions of life in cities are less favorable to the maintenance of a good average state of physical strength. Because of these facts the announcement by the board of health of a considerable recent increase in the number of cases is important to the Now that this malady is recognized as an acute infectious general disease consequent upon poisons developed in the system by a microbe, it naturally appears to the people that there is no advantage in knowing of its prevalence, since, though the knowledge might stimulate precaution, no precaution can be of any avail. But this conclusion is erroneous.

The conditions are generally those of lowered vitality. All depressing causes Exposure, privation, unsanitary houses, cessive tatigue, the free use of alco holic stimulants; in short, whatever cause may be imagined as producing debility, may put a man within reach of this dis ease who but for those things would be above it, and whose normal strength would enable him to resist it. Cleanly necessary exposure, may make to many a man all the difference between resistance to a prevalent scourge and counting as one more of its victims.—New York

Early Marriages Happiest. The common experience is that the happiest marriages are those which take place early in life, and that when an elderly man or woman gets married-we are not speaking of widows and widowers-they more frequently make a mess Nilestown, Jan. 5. - Joseph O'Brien, of it. Young people can learn to do this more readily people can learn to do this more readily than older ones. As to the wisdom of getting married and marrying young, there should not be two opinions. Home life is the most wholesome and the very best estate, and every woman should be homemaker. There are many things, as society is now organized, which mitigate against marriages except among the rich and the very poor. Among the very poorest classes of the population poverty is not considered a bar to marriage. But there is a great class in every community which is ambitions to "keep up apafford to marry. A Victim of the Cab Habit.

The cab habit has led a woman cashier to embezzle $37,000. She acquired a craze for cabs and carriages. She went to her work in the morning in a cab. At noon she had a cab to take her to luncheon.
She had another to bring her back to the office after the noon hour. In the evening there was another cab to take her home, and at night she went to parties, always riding in a carriage. This habit finally placed her where there will be no need of cabs or carriages for a long long time. ong, long time to come. This enisode but one in many, reminds us that the taste for luxury and display, the general laxity which has marked our temper, leading from private life into business, and thence into politics, has apparently reached its climax, and is about to ebb. There are signs that simple living will become the fashion, and once this begins
