CAMPBELLTON, N. B., JULY 14, 1911.

THE HENLOCK MUST BE DRUNK.

As the moment approaches for final action by the House of Lords on the veto bill there is a marked change of attitude on the part of the militant wing of the Tory party.

The veto bill will therefore be accepted by the Lords "under duress." The Daily Telegraph, owned by Peir, says "the henlock must be drunk," but, forgetting that in Greece he who would drink the henlock was performing his last conscious act on earth, adds that "what is done will not be irrevocable."

Liberals can afford to smile at these protestations. They are of a piece with the statements made by the Peers and their supporters among the landed classes when the general election of January, 1910, proved that the country favored Lloyd-George's land taxation Budget.

TAXATION

Speaking in Vancouver not long ago Joseph Fels, the millionaire Single Taxer of Philadelphia, gave a humorous account of how he first blossomed out as a philanthropist.

Seven years ago on one of his sundry trips from England to the United States "to get another breath of American corruption," a real estate agent of Philadelphia recommended him to buy a piece of property as a good investment.

He said to himself, "Fels, you will certainly get your name in the Doomsday book," but as one of the conditions he decided to get it into as many newspapers as he could, accompanied by his picture. He thereupon became such a celebrity that he was invited to afternoon teas.

ty still there and the agent came to tell him for how much it could be sold. He was told that at that time he could get $100,000 and if he held it two years more he could get $125,000.

"I said to Yokum" said Mr. Fels, "if they want that property at $125,000 tell 'em they can have it."

"Now, ladies and gentlemen, I sold that property for that sum. Now I ask you who made me that $90,000. Did I? No, I did not. Did that property belong to me? No; it did not. It was made $90,000 more valuable by the people of Philadelphia, who increased it by their building, and to the people of Philadelphia it should belong. And I have the courage to say to you that I do not own it rightfully. I know that four-fifths of you here are interested in the land question.

Joseph Fels is honorary president of the Ontario Tax Reform League, which is urging that municipalities be allowed to reduce taxes on build, and other improvements and create taxes on land values, which greatly improved plan of taxation has long been recommended for our own town of Newcastle by Alderman H. H. Stuart.

The city of New Westminster, B. C., has decided by a plebiscite to exempt buildings and all improvements and levy taxes on land values only. Vancouver adopted the same system about two years ago. Edmonton was the first Canadian town to adopt the new idea. It has worked admirably. Vancouver has found it to be the best move it has ever made.

More than 400 Municipal Councils and boards of trade in Ontario have asked that the laws of Ontario be changed to permit any town or Municipality to make the change if it so desires. The same thing was asked of the Local Legislature by Campbellton at last session, and, we trust, the Newcastle Council will demand the same right of the Legislature next Spring.

This is how, says the Dartmouth (N. S.) Patriot, the present system of taxation works out: "A house assessed at $5000, pays at the present rate, from $75 to $100 a year into the town treasury. In thirty years the owner would pay in at $30 a year the sum of $2400. The interest on that sum at 5 per cent payable yearly is worth nearly as much more or over $4400 in at that is the owner pays as much in taxes on his house in 30 years as his house is worth. During all those years also his house is depreciating. Land does not depreciate as a rule: 'A building must be replaced.'"

"When every lot within a city's limits," says the Ottawa Journal, "has to bear its equal share of taxation no rapacious speculator will buy up vast tracts and leave them idle, trusting to the industry of others for immense unearned increments. No home builder will hesitate to add a coat of paint or a verandah, fearing an undue increase in assessment."

Putting all, or the principal part, of taxation on land values, will not solve all the difficulty and injustice in taxation plans of the past, but it will greatly simplify and facilitate the collection of taxes, distribute the burden of taxation more equitably and will greatly lessen the extreme ease with which land is now grabbed up by speculators and monopolized. Our taxation system is hopelessly out of date, and the new way outlined above would be a long step in the right direction.—Ex.

Jeffries laughs at the idea that he was neglected by the British public during coronation week. The champion admitted that Johnson had put quite a dash with his chameleon colored motor car up and down Piccadilly and the Haymarket, "but then," said he, "Johnson likes that sort of notoriety."

Jeffries said he didn't mix up much on the other side. "All that stuff is for advertising purposes," said he, "and I don't have to advertise. I'm out of the fight game for all time. I never had any use for it and you couldn't drag me back into a ring with bull lines."

"I had to stop off here to see my old friend, Frank Chance, who has been playing in pretty hard luck. I think he is one of the gamest I ever knew, and he deserves to have his ambitious realized—that of bringing home another pennant to Chicago."
