Women Once Invalids

Now in Good Health Through Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Say it is Household Necessity. Doctor Called it a Miracle.

All women ought to know the wonderful effects of taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound even on those who seem hopelessly ill. Here are three actual cases:

Harrisburg, Penn.—"When I was single I suffered a great deal from female weakness because my work compelled me to stand all day. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for that and was made stronger by its use. After I was married I took the Compound again for a female trouble and after three months I passed what the doctor called a growth. He said it was a miracle that it came away as one generally goes under the knife to have them removed. I never want to be without your Compound in the house."—Mrs. FRANK KNOBL, 1642 Fulton St., Harrisburg, Penn.

Hardly Able to Move.

Albert Lea, Minn.—"For about a year I had sharp pains across my back and hips and was hardly able to move around the house. My head would ache and I was dizzy and had no appetite. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, I am feeling stronger than for years. I have a little boy eight months old and am doing my work all alone. I would not be without your remedies in the house as there are none like them."—Mrs. F. E. YOST, 611 Water St., Albert Lea, Minn.

Three Doctors Gave Her Up.

Pittsburg, Penn.—"Your medicine has helped me wonderfully. When I was a girl 18 years old I was always sickly and delicate and suffered from irregularities. Three doctors gave me up and said I would go into consumption. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and with the third bottle began to feel better. I soon became regular and I got strong and shortly after I was married. Now I have two nice stout healthy children and am able to work hard every day."—Mrs. CLEMENTINA DUERRING, 34 Gardner St., Troy Hill, Pittsburg, Penn.

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it will be confidential.

Returned Officers to take Soldiers Vote

Forty-four special returning officers and clerks are being appointed in connection with the taking of the overseas military vote. Twenty-two have been nominated by Sir Robert Borden and twenty-two will go on the nomination of the leader of the Opposition. Half of the special returning officers and clerks will go to Paris and half to London. To ensure fairness, it has been arranged that the special returning officer nominated by one party shall be assisted by a clerk nominated by the leader of the other party. No special returning officer will be permitted to deal with ballots or ballot boxes, except in the presence of two other persons, each the nominee of a different party.

Sem's Entrance Into Verdun

A CHOICE bit of "Un Pekin sure le Front" (and, this time, in a humorous vein) is the chapter describing the entry of Sem, Parisian cartoonist beloved by the French, into Verdun:

"It is morning and it rains. A formidable, uninterrupted rumbling keeps the air vibrating and the rain trembling. Over yonder, just beyond this tragically desolate open space, is Verdun."

"Look out!" says Captain—to me, "we are going to cross a dangerous spot."

"Ah! Ah! I shrink up into the corner of the auto. I roll myself into a ball."

"I make sure of my helmet, entering it as far as I can, pulling it down with both hands, as if I wanted to get my whole self into it. Et allez donc. The chauffeur, a bit pale, makes the motor do its best, the auto plunges into the danger zone and is engulfed in one of the monumental gates that pierce the venerable ramparts of Vauban. Ca y est! I am in Verdun!"

"We drive on toward the citadel on the other side of the city, where we are expected."

"At last, we are confronted with lofty, addled glacis, a sort of geometrically-ribbed hill, at the foot of which opens an arched portal, black as the entrance of a tunnel, whose depths appear to be punctured with tiny bright lights. Soldiers are grouped before it; two sentinels, with bayonets set, mount guard. It is the citadel."

"The auto stops. At the precise instant I step out, our arrival is saluted by four terrible explosions—four German shells that fall I know not where. Surely, not so very far away. As to that, for every self-respecting war correspondent, every shell falls at a distance of from thirty to fifty yards—never more."

"There are something like a hundred paces between me and the citadel entrance, a hundred exposed paces. I do not hesitate. I take my dash, and I throw myself, completely wedged, under the protecting porch."

"Out! None too soon! A second flight of mitraille bursts with a crash as before, near the auto. I am seized with a little nervous panting, relieved laugh, like the people who, surprised by a shower, take refuge after a hurried flight under a porte cochere."

All the same, I am a bit ashamed of my precipitation. In the presence of these impassive soldiers, who are eyeing me, I feel myself grow bright red under my too-blue helmet. There is no mistake about it, I lacked nerve, my entry is a flat failure. I should have arrived smiling, with the easy step of a man taking a constitutional. I endeavor to save my face, to create a diversion. I try to attribute my short panic to the alluvial rain. I snort with affectation. I brush the drops from my coat. I shake myself like a wet dog. Brrr! And I risk a flippant, "Good heavens, what a shower!"

"Monsieur should have taken his riddand!" breathes behind me a bantering voice. I do not insist and I plunge into the darkness of the long tunnel."

"I am unutterably relieved, unspeakably tranquil under the thick layer of rocks and earth interposed between my head and the redoubtable sky which my imagination pictures to me sebraed with obuses."

"After the frightful uproar outside I appreciate deeply this peaceful silence. I even allow myself to forget deliciously the great drama that is being played up above."

"But the General calls me back to reality: 'Messieurs, we lunch at noon. We have just time to go to the fort of X—, where you will have a birdseye view of the battlefield.'"

"Triumph! we were so comfortable here. I have, I admit it, a slight inner hesitation. Is it altogether indispensable to view this battlefield? For that matter, it appears that one sees very little. To begin with, it rains. And then, this subterranean city is so novel, so interesting—How agreeable I find this citadel!"

"Aren't you ashamed, espèce de pekin! Allons, ouste! Into the auto with you!"

"Daylight again, under a shower, in the tumult of the cannon. We cross full tilt the deserted country. At last, on an elevation, the fort. The autos stop. We climb the slope. We enter. Under the sonorous postern, a sound of musket butts, an energetic command: 'Present arms!' The post salutes."

"Just behind the general, between the lines of motionless fixed-eyed soldiers, I advance, convinced of my importance, taking to myself a part of the salute—my hand at the rim of my helmet, in the most approved military fashion."

"Barely past, I look back, just in time to see a sturdy 'pollu' fairly convulsed with hilarity."

"But what is he laughing at? Can it be at me perchance?"

"I begin to distrust my helmet."

"We rest only an instant at the fort."

"After a rather long course across country, we reach a sort of eminence that dominates the entire region. There, the general stops, and, suddenly growing grave, he points to the panorama spread out before us, and says: 'The battlefield of Verdun!'"

"I shiver. Instinctively, I uncover, as in a church."

Planters Buy Pianos.

There appears to be relationship between the coffee industry and the piano business in Guatemala. Whenever there is a good year for coffee in the republic there is a better demand for pianos.

ALWAYS WITH DEPRESSION AND MELANCHOLY.—These two evils are the accompaniment of a disordered stomach and torpid liver and mean wretchedness to all whom they visit. The surest and speediest way to combat them is with Farnellee's Vegetable Pills, which will restore the healthful action of the stomach and bring relief. They have proved their usefulness in thousands of cases and will continue to give relief to the suffering who are wise enough to use them.

The rear end of an automobile locker ot, English invention is made of ground glass, on which a car's number can be painted and illuminated at night by a lamp inside the locker.
