

CONTENTS.

THE UNION OF THE STATES.

CHAPTER I.

oundation of the Union. — The Puritans. — The Mayflower. — Plymouth compact. — The Huguenots. — Poverty of the original states. — The cotton crop in 1792—95 and 1856. — Growth of the nation. — Calhoun. — Webster. — Henry Clay and the abolitionists. — Four crises of the Union. — Fillmore. — George III. and Adams. — Effects of the Union upon European governments. — Resources of the republic. — Kings and emperors against the Union. — Jealousy of England. — Ordinance of 1787, prohibiting slavery. — Missouri Compromise, 3

CHAPTER II.

Pierce's fraud upon the people. — Virginia democratic resolutions of 1798-9, respecting foreigners. — Mutual benefits of the Union. — America for Americans. — Disastrous consequences of a separation of the states. — The man for the crisis, 27

CHAPTER III.

Restoration of the Missouri Compromise impracticable. — Kansas. — Our commercial prosperity. — Material value of the Union. — The remedy for all our national troubles. — Appeal for the Union. — Mr. Fillmore's speech explained, 47

THE PACIFIC RAILROAD.

CHAPTER I.

Invention and effects of printing. — The commerce of the world controlled by a railroad through this continent. — Anglo-American enterprise. — Joel Barlow. — Erie Canal. — Railroad from Portland, Maine, to Nova Scotia, 65