MONTREAL BEATS THE TORONTOS.

On Saturday afternoon last the teams of the Montreal and Toronto clubs met on the grounds of the latter here. This was the third game between them, the former having been played at Montreal, resulting in a game for each. On account of the boat race being announced to take place the same day the attendance was not up to the average. The weather was all that could have been desired for lacrosse. At 3:14 the ball was faced, and in a minute afterwaed the ball passed through the Toronto goal. After ten minutes play the Montreals credited themselves with the second game. Toronto won the third game in nine minutes; and Montreal captured the fourth gome and the match in five minutes. The Mail says: "The visitors were consequently declared victorious having taken three games to the home team's one. That they won it fairly and squarely there is no doubt. They played with a will as if determined to win, while on the other hand the Torontos took matters coolly and never seemed to exert themselves. In fact they appeared to be over-confident. For their defeat they have only themselves to blame. Since the last contest in Montreal the twelve had no practice, and they were consequently not in the best condition to meet their opponents, who spent all their spare time in preparing for this particular match.

SHOOTING AT STRATHROY.

The badge for the champion wing shot of Strathroy was lost by Mr. J. Paine at the last regular monthly club shoot, Mr. Isaac Thompson and Mr. Alex. Johnston tieing for the honor. In the shoot-off Mr. Thompson won. Mr. Johnston then challenged him on the spot to shoot on Thursday last. The match came off, when they again tied, but in the shoot-off Mr. Johnston gained the badge. The number of birds shot at by each of the contestants at the two matches and shoots off was 25, each killing 20 out of the 25, and 5 birds that scored against them falling dead out of bounds. We call this good shooting. We understand Mr. L. H. Smith has challenged Mr. Johnston for the badge.

Two parties of sportsmen, numbering 20 each, left Ottawa on the 9th inst., to shoot small birds and squirrels. They met at the close of the day at Bell's Corners, and found that one party had slaughtered 360 head, and the other 230. If they could have only returned 20 more head on each side (those of the shooters,) the count would have been satisfactory. Such pot-hunting expeditions should be put down.

Mr. Frank Hill, while out hunting in the San Miguel country, California, saw a large buck, which he shot, and on going up to the dead deer was surprised to find that he had also killed his mate—thereby accomplishing the remarkable thing of killing two deer at one shot.

A man stole a dog in Cookstown recently. The theft being detected, he promised its return to the owner the following day. At the appointed hour a package was received by the victim, on which was written, "Here is your dog;" but on opening it the astonished man discovered ten pounds of freshly made sausages! He was an editor, and so accepted them.

TWENTY MILE TROT AT SHARON, PA.

Last week was race week, and a rather quiet one it proved. The State Fair at Erie, and county fairs at our sister towns all around us, offered the public too many attractions, and for the first time in the history of the Sharon Driving Park, few horses, poor crowds, and tame races were the result. So we have no hard-fought battles to write about, no equine wonders to speak of, nor aught else of interest to mention in connection with the regular meeting, which closed on Friday last. But, on Saturday afternoon, we had an afterpiece which highly entertained all those whose good fortune it was to witness it; and a goodly number were there too, many more than were present upon any day of the regular races. It came off in the shape of a match race, twenty miles, to wagon, for $1,000, between the Hambletonian stallion, Kirkman, and the Bashaw mare Em, both owned here at home.

Kirkman is a very handsome brown stal-

...parties are gentlemen who, besides be... genuine lovers of horseflesh, are always ready to lay upon the merits of their favorite... interest has centered on the race, the ... and cons have been freely discussed, and many a dollar has been laid upon it since the day the match was made. Though both horses were previously in fair shape, practically only thirty days were given to the grand preparation, and we hardly expected, therefore, to see the animals come to the post in as good condition as they did. Kirkman drew a 100 lb. wagon, and the mare was hitched to one weighing 24 lbs less. The day was very warm, the thermometer standing at 90 degrees. The track, a half mile one, was much worn and dusty, so that the time made was a great surprise to everybody. The horses were matched to go opposite ways of the track, Kirkman to have the pole for the first five miles, the mare the second five, and so on alternately.

Promptly at three o'clock the word was given, and away they went; passing each other for the first time, near the quarter pole, the horse had the lead a couple of lengths, maintaining it to the end of the mile, which was reached in 3:21. The second mile was done in 3:32; and the third, fourth, fifth, and sixth miles were respectively accomplished in 3:11¼, 3:07½, 3:11½, and 3:12½.

The mare was sponged off at the close of the 5th mile, and came along quite fresh again, while the horse, who had been sweating freely, had the benefit of the same process, with the addition of a scrape, before reaching the end of the sixth. When the seventh mile began, with the mare several lengths in the front, many thought she might become the winner; but when it and the eighth mile had been gone over, each in 3.15, and when the ninth and tenth miles were finished in 3:11 and 3:10, making half the distance in 32m. 27½s., the horse now having his old lead of two or three lengths, and going easily, the result of the race became almost a foregone conclusion. The next two miles were trotted in 3:19 and 3:36, both horses getting a good sponging in the last quarter of the twelfth. The thirteenth mile showed the horse driving slow and steadily along in a free and easy style, on the same square open gait, having no sign of fatigue, and looking every inch the king he so gallantly proved himself to be, while the work was beginning to tell upon the plucky little mare, who had thus far been kept busy at pretty near the top of her speed, still she went resolutely on, and the next seven miles were got away with in 24m. 59½s., about a 3:34 clip, Kirkman keeping all the way his stubborn lead of two or three lengths, with which he and his driver seemed quietly content. As the twentieth mile was entered Mr. Kimberley called off his mare, who had now hung out her flag of distress and the horse jogged home an easy winner, in 5 30, amid the ringing cheers of the excited crowd, making his twenty miles in 1h. 9m. 52.3-5s. Coming back to the judges stand, through the crowd that pressed closely around him, as his driver dismounted, and his bearing rein was unloosed, he raised his head and uttered a joyful neigh, as if in answer to the congratulations that were showered upon him.

Thus was settled a long disputed point, and the manner in which it was done surprised as well as pleased the now happy owners of Kirkman. They and the public were wholly unprepared for the fine display of endurance he made. Trotting easily all the way, and closing up with undiminished stride, he seemed to have wind enough left to have doubled the distance, and speed remaining sufficient to have made it interesting had he been tested down the homestretch. Scores of visitors at his stable the next day found him as nimble as a kitten, showing no sign of the previous day's hard work. He is indeed a grand horse, as fine as silk, as handsome as a picture, and right worthy of his lineage. If matched to beat the record, he would find many supporters, and would attempt the feat with the full confidence of his numerous friends.—Cor. Spirit.
