

Efforts to deal with the problem of proliferation on a regional basis will also have to be appropriately pursued against the background of this comprehensive program and the other activities and processes outlined in this paper. Such efforts will be essential for the longer-term peace and security of all states in the Middle East.