

specific proposal to this effect was put forward by Babst, who suggested the formation of accidental war assessment centres in different nations around the world. Others proposed that new studies be funded, and that a follow-up conference be held with the specific aim of bringing the issues discussed at the conference to the attention of the officials directly responsible for policy in these areas.