

External Affairs

in the days when he was at his height he talked about bankers' toadies as being the most damnable thing on earth, and yet a few weeks ago in British Columbia where we have a Social Credit government, the Canadian Bank of Commerce took on to their board of directors a former minister of the Social Credit administration.

Mr. Speaker: Order.

Mr. MacDougall: I shall conclude my remarks before I am smitten on the fifth rib and die. Before I conclude, Mr. Speaker, I should like to ask everyone in this house and everyone in this country to re-educate themselves individually and collectively in the form of freedom that we all enjoy, and to live within our minds and our hearts the words written by the poet, Arthur Hugh Clough:

And not by eastern windows only,
When daylight comes, comes in the light;
In front the sun climbs slow, how slowly!
But westward, look, the land is bright!

God save the Queen.

Mr. Howard C. Green (Vancouver-Quadra): Mr. Speaker, I am somewhat at a loss as to just what to say in following my good friend and neighbour, the hon. member for Vancouver-Burrard (Mr. MacDougall). He has gone all the way from the Old Testament right down to the present Liberal party in Canada. Believe me, that is a long drop. My purpose in taking part in this debate is to get back to the subject of external affairs, but in view of the hour I would move the adjournment of the debate.

Motion agreed to and debate adjourned.

BUSINESS OF THE HOUSE

Mr. Harris moved the adjournment of the house.

He said: Tomorrow we shall take up interim supply, supplementary estimates and other items that may be available in supply. It is possible that the bill with respect to veterans allowances may be reported. If it is it might be desirable that it be put through its final stages in the house, if the report appears to justify that, so that we may have royal assent before the end of this month if the other place agrees with us.

Mr. Green: What does the minister mean by other items in supply?

Mr. Harris: We will take citizenship and immigration, which I believe has been reported by the committee.

Motion agreed to and the house adjourned at 9.55 p.m.
