

	PAGE
One asketh	410
One day I got a missive	212
One day upon a topmost shelf	207
One night a tiny dewdrop fell	337
One night aside the fire at hum	437
One night the charming Gerster said	463
"Only an editor's wife," they say	463
Our course lay up a smooth canal	518
Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name	167
Out of the house where the lumberer lay	340
Out of the woods by the creek cometh a calling for Peter	178
Out on the mountain over the town	238
Out spake Horatius Flaherty,—a Fenian bold was he	447
Out yonder in the moonlight, where in God's Acre lies	137
Ovarus mine	390
Over the hills and far away	316
Play that my knee was a calico mare	297
Play that you are mother dear	307
Pompey, what fortune gives you back	393
Prate, ye who will, of so-called charms you find across the sea—	161
Prudence Mears hath an old blue plate	139
Saint Jo, Buchanan County	76
St. Martin's Lane winds up the hill	70
See, Thallarch mine, how, white with snow	369
See, what a wonderful garden is here	303
Seek not, Leuconde, to know how long you're going to live yet	372
Shall I woo the one or other?	434
Should painter attach to a fair human head	374
Shuffle-Shoon and Amber-Locks	300
Since Chloe is so monstrous fair	381
Sing, Christmas bells!	42
Sir Orover quoth: "Let each one here	503
Sleep, little pigeon, and fold your wings—	225
So, so, rock-a-by so!	280
Some men affect a liking	186
Some time there ben a lyttel boy	226
Speakin' of dorgs, my bench-legged fyce	292
Speaking of the banks, I'm bound to say	537
Star of the East, that long ago	153
Still serve me in my age, I pray	409
Stork, I am justly wroth	243
Strange that the city thoroughfare	248
Suppose, my dear, that you were I	140
Sweet, bide with me and let my love	431
Sweet Phyllis, I have here a jar of old and precious wine	379
Sweetheart, be my sweetheart!	177