Minister of Interior Ordered To Check Anti-American Riots.

Paris, May 3.—The Italian building. His hard work and quiet manner gained him the confidence of all. Over three years, and he became a trusty, and then one day, in the words of the deputy warden. 'He just walked out of the building and became a hunted man.' He effected his escape January 5 of this year, and until his arrest here Warden Claudy has been working on the case.

Letter Gave Him Away.

The prisoner's arrest today was the result of correspondence he had through the mail. A letter written to a friend in the United States fell into the hands of a secret service officer, and the detective department here and the American authorities commenced setting out the dragnet for the lifer.

On the Byers farm. Shearer, when taken lato custody, beyond admitting that he was the man wanted, had absolutely nothing to say. His lone answer to the detective's warrant query was "Yes, I am Shearer." According to information given at police headquarters the wanted man arrived here around January 8. He was an excellent farm hand, steady and industrious, but very quiet.

At police headquarters, Shearer looked anything but an excellent farm hand, at seady and industrious, but very quiet.
