BIG ORDER PAPER FACES COUNCIL

Important Civic Questions to Come Before Monday's Sitting.

For six solid hours, with not a moment's respite, did Toronto's city council attack a volume of civic matters at the regular fortnightly meeting two weeks ago. Judging by the extensive amount of business which has cropped up since then, it looks as if an even more protracted session next Monday would be inevitable. All the civic committees have been hard at work during the last fortnight, and the comprehensive reports compiled by them will have to undergo consideration, and not unlikely, heated debate.

"Will Teravay street be paved at last?" This is the question now under consideration, as this matter comes up for a final verdict at council. This pavement which it is proposed will extend from Dundas street to College street, if constructed according to recommendations of the city engineer, will be 28 feet wide. It is to be laid on a concrete foundation eight inches in thickness, and brick gutters will be constructed along both sides.

Sully Crescent Fill In

A deputation of residents of this locality appeared before the works committee a week ago, requesting that the work of filling in Sully crescent and the extension of Crawford street be commenced forthwith. The committee turned the matter over to Commissioner Harris, asking him to include it under the local improvement plan. Whether this work will be proceeded with, or allowed to hang over for another indefinite period, depends on council's decision.

If council falls in line, the recommendations of Works Commissioner Harris and Finance Commissioner Bradshaw that the southwest corner of Broadview avenue and Gerrard street be widened will receive immediate attention. The Riverside Business Men's Association first brought the

SILK A FABRIC OF ECONOMIC VALUE

Curator of Washington Museum
Stresses Industrial Importance in Speech.

The economic importance of silk as a commodity was brought out in the address given by F. L. Lewton at the Saturday night meeting of the Royal Canadian Institute, held in the physics building of the University of Toronto. Mr. Lewton holds the position of curator of the division of textiles, National Museum, Washington, D.C. The topic of his address was "The Production and Manufacture of Raw Silk."

After giving a short resume of the history of silk, particularly on the North American continent, he pointed out its far-reaching economic and industrial importance. "The United States is now the chief manufacturer of silk in the world," stated Mr. Lewton. "This supremacy was gained during the war."

"We import what is known as raw silk," he continued, "but this term 'raw silk' is really a misnomer, for the product imported by us is a highly manufactured article compared with raw cotton or wool. We do not produce it to any extent on this continent because it has been found that the actual cost of production here is greater than the selling price of the imported article. This is accounted for by the high cost of living prevailing in America and the cheap labor that may be procured in foreign countries."

"Four-fifths of the world's raw silk comes from China, Japan and Italy, and most of the remainder from France and Spain. The cost of exportation to America is more than offset by the cheap cost of production in these countries. In 1919 the U. S. A. imported $24,000,000 worth of raw silk for purposes of manufacture and only exported $65,000,000 worth of silk goods, the greater part of which came to Canada."

War-time Uses.
The speaker then told of the im-

PORTANCE OF SILK AS A WAR COMMODITY.

In this respect it was chiefly used in making bags to contain the powder charge in guns. It was found that cotton bags allowed a certain amount of powder to escape, causing a premature explosion when the next charge was fired. The manufacture of silk for this purpose had to be undertaken on a large scale. When the armistice came, the American government had on its hands some 18,000,000 yards of this article with no use for it in sight. It was finally sold at public auction, and in a few months will appear on the market as "cartridge cloth," and will be used for apparel and upholstery. As it contains nothing but the purest of silk, it is of unusual durability and strength. Mr. Lewton concluded his address by urging that the general public be educated to the value of this product, in order that its sale might be secured, as it has not the lustrous finish of popular retail silks.

CUSTOM HOUSE BROKERS TO INCREASE RATE

The custom house brokers of Toronto find they are compelled to generally increase their brokerage fees to a graduated higher scale, effective from the first day of March, 1920.

JAMES E. GORDON IS LAID TO REST

More than a hundred friends and relatives of the late James E. Gordon, foreman of the malling room of The Toronto World, gathered at the grave-site on Saturday afternoon at St. James' Cemetery to pay their last respects to an old and respected colleague and friend. The Orange and Masonic lodges of Toronto were well represented. Rev. M. Murphy of All Saints' Anglican Church, Sherbourne street, officiated at the residence, 164 Duchess street, and members of St. George Masonic Lodge assisted.

The late James Gordon, who had been employed with The Toronto World 25 years, was taken ill with the flu, and every hope had been entertained of his recovery until last Wednesday, when, following a specially hopeful night, Mr. Gordon suffered a severe relapse, from which he never recovered.

"FLU" EPIDEMIC REACHED PEAK

Hospital Authorities Report

Seventeen deaths from influenza and five from pneumonia were reported at the city hall on Saturday. Of this number 11 females succumbed to the "flu" and six males, while included among the pneumonia victims two were males and three females.

The hospital authorities report that the cases coming in at present are mild and not serious, and it is believed that the crest of the epidemic has been passed. Nurses are now more easily procurable, and all under-graduates have been relieved by graduates.

Cheering news comes from the Flu Relief Depot, 87 West King street. A decrease in the number of calls was noted yesterday. Only 13 calls for food were received, which is about half of several days ago. Patients under the care of the depot are all reported on the road to recovery. Voluntary offerings of food and clothing are brought in each day, and volunteer workers are registering daily. Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Bell were among the new-comers noticed yesterday. Mrs. Ernest Vandine said that the office would remain open on Sunday, and Mrs. Michael Healey, convenor of the food committee, will also be on duty. The depot is in charge of the Catholic Women's League of Canada, under the Neighborhood Workers' Association, and the work is conducted on non-sectarian lines.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

The Jarvis building, at 108 Bay street, was purchased last week by a real estate syndicate represented by W. H. Holdge, 32 Victoria street, and the consideration was $225,000. The purchasers will occupy the main floor after Sept. 1 next. Amelius Jarvis & Co. bought the building in 1910 from the London & Canadian Loan & Agency Co. The building was erected in 1888, and measures 47 feet on Bay street, with a depth of 104 feet. It is a five-storey and basement building, with an elevator.

The building at 340 West Richmond street, occupied by the National Chiclet Company, and owned by T. O. Anderson, has been sold to the North American Dyes Company, a United States concern, for about $30,000.

It is understood that a bond and stock brokerage concern are negotiating for the land and building at 107 Bay street, formerly occupied by The Times newspaper. The building is a three-storey brick structure, with about 40 feet frontage, including a private lane. It is owned by Lord Napier of England.

A block of land fronting 32 feet on the east side of Sheppard street has been purchased by the Bell Telephone Company from Mary E. Campbell for $22,000. This piece connects up the lot they have owned for some time at the southeast corner of Sheppard and Temperance streets with their main building on Adelaide street. The land will be used when expansions are necessary.

The Thompson Lunch business on the east side of Yonge street, near King, has been sold to Muirhead's, Limited, for $30,000. The deal involves the lease, which has ten years to run, and the plant and equipment. It is understood Mr. Muirhead will make alterations involving an expenditure of about $25,000.

Mr. Hase Goodenham has bought the W. N. McEachern house on the northwest corner of Elm avenue and Hunt street for $34,000 and Mr. McEachern has purchased the residence at 10 Edgar avenue, formerly occupied by Prof. Ford of Victoria College.

PREHISTORIC ART FOUND IN CAVES

Jose Pijoan Tells Toronto
Audience of Strides in Archaeology Made.

Some of the recent advances in archaeology were comprehensively outlined on Saturday afternoon at a meeting in the physics building by Jose Pijoan, director of the Spanish school of Archaeology at Rome. Mr. Pijoan, who is Spanish by birth, spoke with labored enunciation although his English was flawless.

Mr. Pijoan said that numerous prehistoric paintings were being found every day in Spain. These were usually found in caves and were supposed to have been painted by dwellers in the stone age. One peculiarity about these paintings was that representations of human faces and figures appeared very seldom, the paintings being mostly of animals that were now extinct. The speaker stated that geologists were in doubt about fixing the date concerning the period in which these paintings were produced.

Numerous works of art had also been unearthed in Egypt, Persia and Mesopotamia, said the speaker, and the excavation of the temple at Jerusalem, which was about to be commenced, would no doubt unearth other valuable pieces of art reminiscent of a prehistoric age.

FLAG FROM MONS.

The city on Monday will be presented with a flag from the city of Mons. The presentation will be made by Mrs. Goldwin Gregory, a native of the Belgian city, who met her husband, the son of W. D. Gregory, K.C., of Toronto, in the war.

The flag is red and white silk trimmed with gold. The city hall of Mons is worked in silver in the centre, surrounded by a crown.
