THE GARLAND.
LOVE ON.
BY ELIZA COOK.
"Love not, love not, ye happy sons of earth."
Mrs. NORFOLK.
Love on, love on, the soul must have a home,
The dustiest breast must find some halloo'd spot;
The God who form'd us left no spark divine In him who dwells on earth, yet loves us not.
Devotion's links compose a sacred chain Of holy brightness and unmeasured length;
The world, with selfish rust and restless stain,
May mar its beauty, but not touch its strength.
Love on, love on—may, even though the heart
Be faintly built on, prove his love the same.
Thought, one by one, Faith's corner-stones depart,
And even Hope's last pillar falls to stand;
Though we may dread that we once believed,
And know their falsehood shadows all our days,
We would not rather trust and be deceived,
Than own the mean cold spirit that betrays?
Love on, love on, though we may live to see The dear face whiter than its smiling shroud,
The sweetest melody that ever was heard,
Allition's glory yet shall pierce the cloud.
The trust that Heaven can give to love,
The sweetest promise that the heart can bestow,
Is the best thought that bids the soul be sure,
That heaven above is loved above.

MISCELLANEOUS.
AN ELEPHANT HUNG IN AFRICA.
"Well, then I will hunt," Lieutenant Moodie was out elephant hunting with a party of officers and soldiers, when one day he was told that a large troop of elephants was close at hand, and that several of the men were out and in pursuit of them.
Lieutenant Moodie immediately seized his gun, and went off in the direction where he heard the firing.
He had farced his way through a jungle, and had just come to a cleared spot, when he heard something of his people calling out, in English and Dutch, "Take care, Mr. Moodie, take care." As they did not he could not see the cause; but he had retreated, hoping that the animals would be seen by the elephants as they were bursting through the wood, and then tremendous screams, such as we rarely hear in the human voice, were uttered. He was terrified, and immediately afterwards, four elephants, about ten yards apart, stood in a line before him, and he saw that they were looking at the open ground, he knew that if he fired and did not hit, he would be the laughing stock of his retreat, hoping that the animals would be seen by the elephants as they were bursting through the wood, and then tremendous screams, such as we rarely hear in the human voice, were uttered. He
