ROBT. HARRIS DEAD

Young Man Who Was Attacked in Rockland Road

Coroner Kenney to Empanel Jury Tonight to Hold Inquest—Police at Work in Connection With Matter

Robert Harris, Jr., died in the St. John Infirmary about twelve o'clock last night as the result of injuries inflicted by some person or persons unknown. The young man was an apprentice in the employ of Frank S. Walker, plumber, and his remaining at work while a strike was on believed to have led to his death.

On Thursday night, June 14, the young man was walking along Rockland road en route to his home in Pine street and while passing an alley he was struck over the head with some hard instrument. Later he was found by a boy named John Wilson. As he passed he heard Harris groan, and stopping down, heard him pleading in a faint whisper to be taken home. He was conveyed to his home in a coach and laid into unconsciousness. Friday he appeared a little better and in a whisper he told his mother that he had been hit with something terribly hard, he thought a lead pipe or a large brick. He was so weak that he was unable to give any particulars of the assault, but it was thought that as he passed a St. Mary's person stepped up behind him and dealt him the blow. He seemed to pick up a little until Saturday night when his condition became more serious and he was taken to the Infirmary, where he remained until death ended his sufferings.

During the period of the plumbers' strike it is said, he had on several occasions been spoken to by alleged members of the plumbers' union and an endeavor made to have him quit work. On several occasions his name appeared on rocks, old buildings, etc., behind which were the words "plumber scab." That he was a scab is indignantly denied by his people, who say that he was only an apprentice and that he had on a previous occasion been denied admission to the union because he had not served his full time.

Mr. Harris was a bright young man of kind, upright, straightforward and upright character and by his congenial manner won for himself the respect of all with whom he came in contact. He was a graduate of St. Matthew's school and was a member of the Father Mathew Association and of the Irish Literary and Benevolent Society.

Besides his parents he is survived by three brothers—Alphonso, who is a student at St. Joseph's University, but who is now home spending the summer vacation; Gerald and Wilfred; and three sisters—Caroline, Mary and Helen, besides a large number of relatives and a host of friends who will extend their heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family.

Inquest to Be Held

The police had nothing to report up to noon today in connection with the death of Mr. Harris. It is understood that several plumbers were under investigation throughout the morning but there has as yet been nothing learned that would lead to the arrest of anyone.

Dr. F. L. Kenney, coroner, viewed the body in Fitzpatrick Brothers' undertaking parlors in Waterloo street this morning, following which the coroner had a conference with Chief Simpson. Speaking to a Times reporter, Coroner Kenney said an inquest would be held and that he would empanel a jury this evening.

The body bears a slight scar under the lower right lip; another more severe one over the right eye and a still more severe mark on the back of the head.

WHARVES AND WAREHOUSES

The divers who will be employed to recover the ammunition which went through the wharf when No. 5 warehouse collapsed, will also make an examination of the piling foundation for the guidance of the city engineer who must decide whether it is fit to carry the new warehouse before reconstruction is undertaken.

The time and attention required in connection with the damaged west side warehouse have occasioned some delay in preparing the plans for the new warehouse to be erected at Reed's Point.

Repairs to the new pier, east side, which have been in progress, will be completed tomorrow.

SERIOUS STRIKE AT DUTCH MINES

London, June 22—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Amsterdam says that ninety per cent of the Dutch miners of Limburg (a province of southeastern Holland) are on strike for a minimum wage and an eight-hour day. Many Belgian intermed soldiers who have been working the mines joined the strike which involves about 70,000 men. The situation is considered serious. The Holland coal supply is largely dependent on the output of the Dutch mines.

Don't you need New Rugs and Carpets?

Dear Mary:—

There is no necessity now-a-days of a woman having in her home carpets with holes in them or frayed, faded old rugs when for so little money she can go down to Everett's and buy new ones.

Why, rugs and carpets wear out just like clothes do and they are just as essential. If I had worn out, old things on my floors I'd throw them out and get new ones, wouldn't you, Mary?
