

BLAZING AUTO CAUSES DEATH

A Young Woman Receives
Fearful Injuries When Car
Strikes Machine— Entire Body Burned.

Detroit, Mich., June 7.—Her body burned almost from head to knees, Miss Iris Strong, 22 years old, who came here two weeks ago from her home in London, Ont., died at the Receiving Hospital here.

The young woman, in company with Miss Amy Nicol, aged 20, and two young men, were driving in an automobile on Charlevoix avenue when their machine was struck by a street car and hurled over on the other track. Just as this occurred a big double truck passed car going in the opposite direction crashed into the wrecked automobile. The automobile was literally crushed to little pieces.

Immediately afterward the wreckage took fire. The two men in the auto had been thrown out at the first crash but Miss Strong and her friend, Miss Nicol, were in the wrecked machine when it was hit for the second time. Miss Strong's clothing was burned from her body. Miss Nicol's dress did not take fire but she was badly cut and bruised.

Both girls were taken to the Receiving Hospital where Miss Strong lapsed into unconsciousness and failed to rally, her death ensuing after 9 o'clock. The body is at the county morgue awaiting word from relatives, who have been notified.

The condition of Miss Nicol, who is also of London, was reported tonight as somewhat improved.

POPULAR WRITER DIES AT NINETY

Marion Harland, Author of Cook Books and Novels,
Passes Away in New York

New York, June 7.—Marion Harland, author of cook books and successful novels whose name in private life is Mrs. Mary Virginia Terhune, is dead. She died after a brief illness. She was ninety years old. She was best known as a writer of numerous cook books and volumes on etiquette, although her novels were widely read.

She began writing when she was fourteen years old and contributed to the papers at Richmond, Va. When she was sixteen a sketch by her, published in "Godey's Ladies' Magazine," was reprinted in England and France. Over 100,000 copies of her first novel, "Alone," were printed.

She married Rev. Edward Payson Terhune in 1868. Although she raised three children, she never gave up her literary work. She was editor of "Babyhood," had departments in "Wide Awake" and "St. Nicholas" and founded the magazine, "Homemaker," which she edited for several years. Her best known domestic science books are "Common Sense," "Biggest, Cheapest and Best," "The Dinner, Yard Book," "National Cook Book," and others.

She attributed her long life to love for work, exercise and a midday siesta.

33RD BABY BORN TO KENTUCKIAN OF EIGHTY-FOUR

Latest Arrival is the Eighth
Child of His Seventh Wife.

Haslan, Ky., June 7.—Robert Baker, eighty-four years old, has become the father of his thirty-third child. Mrs. Baker, the mother, is just past her thirty-fifth year, and she, too, is running her third year of matrimony. She is only fourteen years in length, this was her eighth child. When she and Baker married she was twenty-one and he seventy. She is Baker's seventh wife, his sixth wife having died many years ago while they were on a ranch Baker owned near Seattle, and where he married the seventh.

Baker says he is counting on excellent health until he is 100 years old. Baker is a native Kentuckian, and operates a dairy. He lived for years near Seattle, and after he married his present wife, a native of Washington, they moved to Keokuk, Virginia, where he engaged in the coal industry. Then they returned to Kentucky.

Baker said the thirty-third child had been named before he left home, but he had forgotten what it was called.

Many of the thirty-three children have died, but messages of congratulations on the birth of the latest baby are coming in from surviving children.

NO SPEECHES ON NEXT VISIT

This is Declaration of Lady
Astor Before Sailing for England— "Fagged Out"
After Talks.

(Associated Press.)
New York, June 7.—The next time Lady Astor visits America she intends to make no speeches. That was what she said to reporters before sailing for England.

Few public speakers, or workers of any sort, are ever keyed to the high nervous tension with which Lady Astor seems charged when addressing an audience. Her nervousness may not have been so apparent to listening crowds at her forty-odd public speaking appearances in this country during April and the first three weeks of May. But if one sat near her, the eye quickly observed that she incessantly wrung her hands behind her back and ran her fingers over and under her jeweled bracelets, the muscles of her arms and shoulders quivering from nervousness. Somehow the strain never seemed to affect the clarity of her speaking tones. In fact, her talks to crowds, no matter what their size, were in a manner friendly and informal. Always she was breaking away from her prepared notes to start a sentence with the loose, conversational "now," or "well."

But when the speech was done, the first woman member of the house of commons was fagged out and intensely nervous. That, too, seemed never to rattle her smooth, smiling demeanor, nor did her expression reveal fatigue.

Lord Astor knew how high-strung the lady commoner really was, and he made it his job to keep her from talking too much to friends just before or after a speech. "Nancy," he would call in warning whenever she pitched straight from a speech into chats to which she seemed to give just as much energy.

Reporters seated immediately in the rear of the speaker's dais when Lady Astor gave her farewell address noticed that her shoulders suddenly dropped to a pink flush as she got up to talk. Then, when her message had gone over, and there remained only the two closing paragraphs, the tension was relaxed and the blush faded from her skin.
