IN ST. PETER'S CHURCH

Solemn Opening of May Devotions in Honor of Blessed Virgin Mary

The formal opening of the devotions in honor of the Blessed Virgin Mary in St. Peter's church last evening, was solemn, impressive and beautiful, and the services were attended by a congregation which filled the building to the outer doors. During the month of May services will be held every evening in honor of the Queen of Heaven, and although they were in progress during last week, the formal opening did not take place until last evening.

The devotions consisted of the rosary, solemn vespers, benediction and a procession of the little Sunday school children, boys and girls, who, preceded by the acolytes, walked about the aisles strewing flowers and carrying banners, and presenting a scene appealing and fascinating, simple in its nature, yet significant and impressive.

The statue of the Blessed Virgin was carried by Misses Katherine Coughlan, Emma Conlogue, Alice Kelly, Josephine Gossel, Lotetta Gossel, Alice Casey, Mary Dolerty and Geraldine Coll.

Nearly 300 little ones took part in the procession and they made a most charming spectacle, the little girls being particularly pleasing in their dainty white dresses with wreaths and veils. A novel feature was the bearing of silken banners each containing an invocation from the Litany of the Blessed Virgin. There were a large number of these, and they were carried by the little ones in line, while the altar boys acted as acolytes, carrying lighted candles.

Solemn vespers was sung by Rev. Fathers J. H. Borgmann, C. S. S. R., M. McInerney, C. S. S. R., and F. J. O'Regan, C. S. S. R., while Rev. E. J. Holland, C. S. S. R., supervised the singing of the choir, and the Rector, Rev. A. J. Duke, C. S. S. R., marshalled the children in the procession.

SAYS TO BURN THE GARBAGE IN KITCHEN FIRE

Timely Words by Doctor G. G. Melvin in April Health Report

THE BEST WAY TO DO IT

Serious Danger in Accumulation of it in Yard, Especially for Children — April Deaths 72 — More Than in March, But Fewer Than April 1911

The April report of Doctor G. G. Melvin, health officer is as follows:—
The following cases of contagious disease were reported from the city during the month. The figures for the preceding month and for the corresponding month last year are given for comparison.

Disease	April 1912	March 1912	April 1911
Diphtheria	3	2	2
Scarlet fever	6	4	5
Typhoid fever	2	1	2
Measles	1	1	7
Varioloid	0	2	1
Tub.	6	2	14

The following is the usual monthly mortality table. It includes deaths from all causes. It will be noted that, although the death-rate is considerably higher than last month, indeed the highest of the year, so far, it is still measurably below that for the corresponding month last year. The estimated population upon which it is based is 43,000. The figures for March last, and for April, 1911, are added for comparison.

Age-Group	M. F.	Total	Scar. Fev.	Tub. Dis.
Under 5	6	9	15	428

The Disposal of Garbage
Garbage may be said to be the refuse of the kitchen and dining-room. It consists of two principal classes of matter—vegetable and animal. The former is made up of the parings and scrapings of potatoes, carrots, apples, onions and such like, and the parts of vegetables which are rejected as uneatable or not suitable for food, as the outer leaves of cabbage heads, the "hulls" of strawberries and so forth.

Animal refuse is of much greater importance as an insanitary product than is vegetable. It is hardly necessary to specify its varieties. Bones and particles of meat mainly compose its solid materials, and soups and gravies, its liquid.

But vegetable and animal matter are subject to the same law of nature—decomposition—the animal very rapidly, and vegetable much less so. Decomposition is the breaking up, or separating of a substance into its original elements, and, in decomposition, is always a disagreeable process to those close at hand, and, very often may become a dangerous one.

Garbage, therefore, should be carefully looked after by the householder, and should not be permitted to accumulate to any extent either within the house, or in the yard outside.

Many plans have been devised and put into operation for the removal and permanent disposal. Most of them are more or less effective, and all, somewhat expensive. By far the cheapest, most satisfactory and easiest way to get rid of it is to burn it in the kitchen range, day by day, as it is produced. This is not a difficult matter in all ordinary families.

Where the number of people composing the household is large, as in hotels and boarding houses, some other way must be adopted, practicable to burn the garbage of a medium-sized family in the very room in which most of it is produced.

If put in a wide and shallow pan and placed behind or upon the bank of the range for a couple of hours, a great deal of the moisture will dry out, and the material will burn quite readily in a brisk fire. In fact, so treated, it will do something to save fuel.

Save Lives of Children
If this plan were generally adopted, it would, itself, save the lives of many young children each summer. Nothing more readily and quickly poisons the soil of a yard than decaying meat and greasy liquids, and it is from the poisoned soil that most of the digestive diseases come which are so fatal to children in the hot weather.
