Of course it must be understood that the success attained by Hood's Sarsaparilla would have been impossible without merit in the medicine itself which leads people to take Hood's Sarsaparilla in preference to all others, nor without careful study and thorough pharmaceutical knowledge on the part of those who prepare it. But, having produced such a medicine, the question of success depends upon whether the people need it.

It requires no argument to show that the people do need a medicine that can be depended upon. Just look at the disease and suffering that is in the world, and remember a vast proportion of it is due to impure ber a vast proportion of it is due to impure and impoverished blood. Thousands of and impoverished blood. Thousands of people, without question, therefore, need to have their blood made rich and pure. That is what Hood's Sarsaparilla does for them, and when their blood is purified and vitalized their diseases disappear. Every man and woman who is suffering from rheumatism needs Hood's Sarsaparilla, for this medicine has power to neutralize the acid in the blood and permanently cure rheumatism. Every person who has dyspepsia, undigestion, failing appetite needs Hood's Sarsaparilla, for this great medicine has a "magic touch" in cases of this kind. Every man, woman and child who has scrofula taints in the blood, whether manifested by painful sores, catarrhal affections, or in tons, while the inward carrying business aggregated only some 20,000 tons, the chief reason for the difference being that much of the imports into Canada have been brought through fore'gn ports.

And whereas, it is obvious that steamers can carry more profitably, or at less cost in proportion, cargoes both ways than one way only.

And whereas, it is desirable that the forcing traite of Canada should be done as for painful sores, catarrhal affections, or in some other form needs Hood's Sarsaparilla, some other form needs Hood's Sarsaparilla, for this medicine completely cradicates from the blood every vestige of scrofula. In fact, all who do not have strong, vigorous, robust health, and all who desire to preserve their health, need Hood's Sarsaparilla, for this medicine certainly cures, and its timely use maintains the health and reclongs life, as multitudes of people testify.
