A REGRET.

I met the maiden that I loved
One evening on the lea,
And, save a peering star or two,
All by ourselves were we.
The silent moths flew round about,
And softly moved the air,
But softlier on my shoulder fell
The flutter of her hair.
And so we walked an hour or more—
How swift the moments sped!—
And then we parted—well-a-day,
What might I not have said?

I met the maiden that I loved
One sweet May morn again,
And, save the happy Sabbath bells,
No sound was in the lane.
But when I looked her in the face,
So fast the blushes flew,
No wild-rose blossom in the spring,
Had ever such a hue.
And so we wandered toward the church—
How swift the minutes sped!
And then we parted—well-a-day,
What might I not have said?

I met the maiden that I loved
Once more in after years,
And as she passed me in the street
I scarce could look, for tears,
For by her side a stranger walked,
And she might be his bride—
But oh! she smiled not as of yore,
Our daring village pride.
Then most I thought of one still eve,
Of one May morn now sped,
And how we parted—well-a-day,
What might I not have said?

NOTES AND NEWS.

UNITED STATES.

Well dressed ladies in Newark, N. J., under pretence of caressing babies in charge of children and half-grown nurses, rob them of their jewelry and embroidered garments.

Several coffins in a show window of a Hartford undertaker's establishment on Saturday bore over them a card on which was written "Tenement to rent"—probably ground floor apartments.

A district schoolmaster in one of the upper counties of Michigan was asked what algebra he preferred, and he replied: "Oh, I ain't particular—most any kind that will just peel the hide when you strike."

A Baltimore man thrashed his wife for pumping a dose of laudanum out of his stomach. She thought he had taken more than enough to kill him, and, in a spirit of false economy, undertook to recover the balance. Such women should not be encouraged.

Honor and fame await the first New York reporter who will go where glory awaits him and let a mad dog bite him, and will then write a daily record of his sensations for his paper. Times are dull now, and any morning paper could spare a man for the cause.

It reads quite like an Arkansas item. At Yonkers, New York, Tuesday, the defendant in a law-suit undertook to close up matters by shooting the plaintiff's counsel, right in court and under the nose and eyes of the Judge. He fired twice, both times with effect, and then handed his pistol to the Judge.

Bless us and spare us! Angels and ministers of grace defend us! A man named Winkel, an American at that, has invented a steam-singer and declamator which is now a Parisian novelty, and in due time will set us wild over here, we suppose. A steam declaimer, forsooth—and now every Cougressman will be getting one. Then, what will become of us?—N. Y. Mail.

All the smart boys and self-made men do not hail from New York it seems. For now we hear of a Malden, Mass., boy, thirteen years of age, who last winter took the job of cleaning his father's door steps for fifty cents, and sub-let it to two other boys for ten cents each, and the other day hired boys to pick one hundred bunches of violets for a cent a bunch, which he sold for two dollars and a half.

At the Christian Association Convention held at Dayton, the place of holding next year's convention was under discussion, and Richmond, Va., was named. The desire seemed to be to fraternize all possible with the South and "on to Richmond," one delegate remarking that he, with others, once tried four years to get into the city, but trusted that he, with the Y. M. C. A. to back him, could get right into the city and be welcomed to come.

This is the way Mary Clemmer Ames speaks in the Independent of the banker-Congressman who represents the Hub at Washington: White-haired Mr. Hooper, of Boston, slowly walks down the aisle, with a painful suggestion of gout. What his Heavenly Father may have in store for him in the upper mansions, I know not; but it seems to me he must say: Son, remember thou on earth hadst an unusual quantity of good things, including an amazing number of good dinners of a very gouty sort. I think, now, you must wait for Lazarus a bit.

He is going to get well; but it will only be to prove that all the fools are not yet dead. He wanted to dislodge a stump and, failing to do it with his little axe, undertook to blast it out with powder. So far, so good. But when he got the thing all ready to touch off, he found he hadn't any fuse. This slight deficiency he supplied with a roll of paper soaked in kerosene oil, which he lighted with a match and then himself lighted some distance off, after various aerial gyrations. This was in Jersey, on Monday.

There has been more or less dubiety in the minds of heiress-hunters as to the status (financially) of adopted daughters, but the Massachusetts Supreme Court came to the help of both parties with a recent decree that a legally adopted child is, by the statutes, an heir to property the same as if it had been born in lawful wedlock. This decision gives an adopted girl $100,000 held in trust, which was to be distributed at the death of a man to his heirs-at-law or "issue." The court decides that a will giving the property to the wife was void, as the maker of it could not revoke the original settlement to his "issue."

Rev. Mr. Parks won't preach at Moro, Cal., any more. He got away alive, to be sure, but it was a close shave. It seems he was an unreconstructed Confederate and couldn't enjoy a picnic because the old flag was around. He said as much. One of his auditors named Miller arranged things so that on the following Sunday the reverend rebel found the flag flying from his pulpit, with Miller in the front seat holding a cocked pistol, and advising him to let the rag remain as it was, and go on with his sermon, which he did, just like a lamb. After the benediction, the church voted that it had no further use for Rev. Mr. Parks, and this hint was also promptly taken.

One of those eternal gossipers, a New York correspondent, says that A. T. Stewart's life is insured for $70,000 and he inserts the fact in this extensive verbal frame: "It is probable that Stewart in his will has made explicit directions concerning his funeral, for to omit this would be out of keeping with his character. He is one of the most far-sighted of mankind, and this is shown by the fact that to provide against all the contingencies of the future and the risks of trade he insures his life for $70,000. This will give his wife an income if all the rest of the princely wealth should dissolve and, like the unsubstantial pageant faded, leave not a rock behind."

GENERAL.

The world is forgetful of its benefactors. Who knows the name of the man who invented chewing gum?

Dr. Cuyler wants all young ladies to band together and say: "No lips shall touch my lips that have touched a bottle." Rather rough this on the fellows that were brought up by hand.

A farmer gives this bit of advice, which contains a good hint: "If you want the boys to stay on the farm, don't bear on too hard when the boy is turning the grindstone."

One who makes human nature his study says that when a girl takes her handkerchief and moistening it with her lips wipes a black spot off a young man's nose, a wedding between the parties is inevitable.

Considerate—Old Stingy to errand boy, "My lad, have you a purse?" "No, sir." "Sorry; if you had I'd give you something to put in it." Next time same question answered, "Yes sir." "Glad; if you hadn't I meant to give you something to buy one."

Pius IX. has come into a fortune. The late Cardinal Falcinelli left him all his property, including jewels valued at half a million francs. The Pope accepted these jewels, but sent to two destitute nephews of the Cardinal the rest of the Falcinelli property, valued at 250,000f.

A Berlin paper says that within four or five months 500 Krupp cannon, 4 and 6 pounders, have been secretly landed at Alexandria, Egypt. The Porte knew nothing of it until after the guns were safely housed. Then Ariarchi Bey, the Turkish Ambassador at Berlin, got an inkling of it, and informing his Government, a special plenipotentiary was sent to the Khedive to demand the surrender of the ordnance.

George Smith has returned to London from his second Assyrian expedition. He arrived in England on Tuesday morning, June 9, in excellent health, having surmounted all kinds of difficulties in the course of his excavations and journeyings, and bringing home a very large collection of new cuneiform tablets and fragments, as well as a great many very interesting objects of Assyrian art, including the entire lintel in sculptured stone of one of the ancient palace gateways.

A priest, the other day, who was examining a confirmation class in the south of Ireland, asked the question: "What is the sacrament of matrimony?" A little girl at the head of the class answered, "'Tis a state of torment into which sowls enter to prepare them for another and better world." "Being," said the priest, "the answer for purgatory."—"Put her down," says the curate, "put her down to the fut of the class." "Lave her, alone," said the priest; "for anything you or I know to the contrary, she may be parfictly right."

The appearance of the Devil in history and literature is to be fully set forth in a catalogue raisonée, with annotations, of a curious collection of books on his Satanic Majesty, now in the stock of Scribner, Welford & Armstrong, New York. The veteran Mr. Henry Kernot is acting as his Private Secretary for the purpose, and an edition de luxe, at fifty cents, is proposed, which will give twelve illustrations of his looks and gait at as many periods in his, or the world's history. The list will be arranged chronologically, so that it will be of real value as a contribution to demonology.

Little Johny B. wanted to go to church yesterday. His mother was afraid he would make a noise, but his father said: "Johny knows better than to make a noise in church." So he went. He kept very still till the prayer. By that time he had grown tired sitting still, and was standing on the pew cushion, with his back to the pulpit. When the lady in the next seat bowed her head for prayer, Johny thought she was crying. He leaned over and said to the lady in a tone that was meant for a whisper, but which was only too plainly heard: "Poor lady! What ee matter! Do oo stummut acee?"

The Baby.

From the N. Y. Tribune.

In July and August the baby becomes or ought to become a point of public interest. If grown men and women suffer from bad ventilation, uncleanliness, or indigestion, they have themselves to blame. But when the poor baby is the victim it is a matter of deliberate cruelty. Summer after Summer teething children fall in hecatombs, sacrificed to the ignorance or carelessness of their parents. This year, however, as last, instructions have been published by the Boards of Health in some neighboring cities by which the most uneducated mother may understand how to protect her child from danger as far as is possible during the season of heat and foul air. The directions are based upon plain principles of common sense, which we would suppose would be patent to anybody of ordinary intelligence, but which are unfortunately the very facts soonest ignored and neglected. Irish or German mothers, like Naaman of old, are usually willing to try any cure which any prophet may recommend—the more miraculous and difficult the better; but as for a steady washing of themselves or their children in the waters of Jordan or Croton to make them whole, they are apt, like the Syrian, to sniff contemptuously at the idea, and go faithfully on their way through dirt to death.

Washing, however, might be called the basis of a baby's salvation through teething; a thorough sousing of the little body in plenty of cold water every morning, and when the weather is extremely hot, a tepid sponge bath at night; washing, too, constantly of all clothes and cloths used by the infant, to afford it perfectly clean garments at all times. Whatever milk be given should be thoroughly sweet and cool; infants under two years should be restricted in their diet to milk, oatmeal mush or gruel carefully prepared, and beef broth or minced raw beef in small quantities. There is a popular prejudice among uneducated women against the "meanness of refusing food to their children which they eat themselves;" to which is owing one-half the deaths among that class of infants. The swarms of sallow, puny, wizened-faced babies which we see at the doors of tenement-houses are fed on morsels of pork, vegetables, unraised bread, and occasional sips of tea and lager-beer, which may fall to their mothers' lucky lot. It is not heat or malaria or teething against which the doctors have to contend so much as the obstinate ignorance of the parents. Fresh air is of course a tonic and cure superior to any medicine; every hour passed by the child under the trees in the squares or on the rivers gives it a new chance for life. No anodynes or soothing sirups should be given except under medical direction.

So far the doctors. There are other rules as practical in effect, but which only affection can suggest. One is the laying aside for the brief hot season the rigor of parental discipline. Many well meaning women feel it to be their duty to teach their children implicit obedience at the earliest age, and to punish any ill-temper or peevishness. Now an infant never cries unless when hungry, hurt, or sick; or cutting of the teeth frequently affects the brain and produces a nervous irritability, which relieves itself by peevish complaints or crying. To whip a child for such conduct is sheer cruelty, and simply increases what is an actual disease. Through these perilous two months, the helpless little creatures require not only the skilful care of a wise mother, but the brooding love of the most tender one. If they do fret and cry against the discomforts and pains of a world into which they come without choice and which shows them just now its roughest side—what wonder?
