

SCRAPING THE STOMACH

Dangerous and Painful Operation
Avoided by Taking "Fruit-a-tives."

Guelph, Ont., Aug. 6, 1908.

I suffered for many months with dreadful Stomach Trouble, with vomiting and constant pain, and I could retain practically nothing.

My doctor stated that I must go to the hospital and undergo an operation of scraping the stomach and be fed by the bowels for weeks. All the medicine the doctor gave me I vomited at once. I was dreadfully alarmed, but I dreaded an operation and had refused.

I had heard of "Fruit-a-tives" and the great success they were having in all Stomach Troubles, and I decided to try them. To my surprise, the "Fruit-a-tives" not only remained on the stomach, but they also checked the vomiting. I immediately began to improve, and in three days the pain was easier and I was decidedly better. I continued to take "Fruit-a-tives" and they completely cured me.

Mrs. Austin Hainstock.

"Fruit-a-tives" are 50c a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, trial box 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

The Shoes Which Were Danced to Pieces.

There was once a king who had twelve daughters, every one of them was prettier than her sisters. They slept together in one room, where their beds all stood in a row, and in the evening as soon as they were gone to sleep the king shut the door and bolted it. One morning when he opened the door as usual he perceived that their shoes were danced to pieces, and nobody could tell how it happened.

The king therefore caused it to be proclaimed that whoever could discover where they danced in the night should receive one of them to wife and become king at his death; but whoever should attempt to do it, and after three nights and days fail, must lose his life.

In a short time a prince came and offered himself to undertake the task. He was well received, and at night led to a room which adjoined the bed-chamber of the princesses. There he was to watch whither they went, and in order that they might not slip out secretly their room door was left open for him to see. But the prince soon felt drowsy, and when he awoke he found that they had all been dancing as usual, for their shoes stood there with holes in the soles.

The second and third night it happened just the same, and on the morning the prince lost his head without mercy.

Afterwards came many more and attempted the task, but they all lost their lives.

One day it chanced that a poor soldier came upon the road which led to the city where the king dwelt. There he met an old woman who asked him whither he was going. "I do not know myself, at all," he replied; "but I have an idea of going to the place where the princesses dance their shoes to pieces to find out the mystery, and so become king."

"That is not difficult," said the old woman, "if you do not drink the wine which will be brought to you in the evening, but fair to be asleep." With these words she gave him a cloak, and told him that if he put it on his shoulders he would become invisible, and be able to follow the princesses. He then presented himself to the king as a suitor.

When the evening came he was led to his sleeping room, and the eldest princess soon brought him a cup of wine; but he had fastened a bag under his throat, into which he poured the wine. Then he lay down and began to snore, when the sisters laughed, saying—"He might have spared himself the trouble!"

In a few minutes they arose, opened cupboards, closets and drawers, and pulled out a variety of beautiful clothes, and presently began to dance, but the youngest sister said—"I know not how, but it is as if some misfortune were about to fall upon us!"

"What a goose you are!" cried the eldest sister. "You are always fearing something. Have you forgotten how many have lost their lives? Why, if I had not given this soldier his sleeping draught the simpleton could not even then have kept his eyes open!"

As they were now quite ready, they first looked at the soldier and satisfied themselves all was right, for he kept his eyes shut and did not move; then the eldest sister, knocking on her bed, it sank in the ground, and the princesses followed it, the eldest first. The soldier, having observed everything, put on his invisible cloak and descended with the youngest sister. About the middle of the steps down he trod on her cloak, and
