Air pollution seminar

Fundamentals of Air Pollution Control, a two-day seminar for practicing engineers and technologists, will be held November 21 and 22 by the University Department of Extension.

The seminar has been designed to introduce engineers and technologists to air pollution problems, control technology, and legislation. The emphasis will be on the fundamental aspects of the problem, the treatment of which will be largely nonmathematical.

Instructors for the seminar will be J. Lack, P.Eng., Head, Air Quality Control Branch, Pollution Control Division, Alberta Environment; F.D. Otto,

P.Eng., Professor of Chemical Engineering, The University of Alberta; and D.J. Wilson, P.Eng., Associate Professor of Mechanical Engineering, The University of Alberta.

Topics to be covered include sources and effects of pollutants; government control of pollution abatement; meteorology and stack design; control technology; control alternatives; stack and source sampling; and ambient monitoring.

Brochures outlining each topic are available by calling 432-5038. Registrations are accepted in Room 228, Corbett Hall, 82 Avenue and 112 Street. The fee is $100 including lecture materials. The seminar is limited to 30 participants.

Ass hole in the ground

Last week it was discovered that former President Nixon had referred to Prime Minister Trudeau as "that asshole" in a portion of the Watergate Tapes.

The following is an extract from last Monday's question period in the House of Commons and reflects the concern of some MP's whether the PM will enjoy the same opinion from President Ford.

GEORGE HEES (PC, Prince Edward-Hastings):

Mr. Speaker, I have a question for the Prime Minister.

Hope against Hope

With regards to the increase in the price of beer printed in last Tuesday's issue, a correction of information must be made.

The motion passed at Monday's council meet reads: "That the Students Union undertake discussion with the Department of Food and Housing and the office of the University Vice President Financing and Administration in hopes of securing a price increase of beer from 45 cents to 50 cents per bottle."

Student Council cannot, under its own will and power, raise the price of beer as the license to sell beer is held by the University.

Council only hopes to raise the price of beer.

As the Prime Minister will shortly be undertaking a very important trip to Washington to make the acquaintance of the new American President and discuss very important matters with him, does the Prime Minister feel confident that he will be able to bring about the same degree of mutual respect and warm personal friendship with Mr. Ford as he was able to generate with President Nixon, as evidenced by Watergate tapes?

MR. TRUDEAU:

Mr. Speaker, after sitting across the aisle from the hon. member for Prince Edward-Hastings for something like six years, I know that the friendship between us has not been impaired by the kind of foul language that he frequently uses.

MR. HEES:

Mr. Speaker, does the Prime Minister's unwillingness to answer that very important and serious question, one that is very important to the good of the country's future, mean that he does not believe that he is going to be able to evoke from Mr. Ford even the same appreciation of his qualities as he got from Mr. Nixon?

MR. TRUDEAU:

Mr. Speaker, my answer to that question is that it is obvious that the hon. member does not know the difference between razmatazz and a hole in the ground.

Services conf. begins Friday

For those students interested, and for those who aren't the U of A Students' Union is planning a Services Conference to be held November 1st, 2nd and 3rd.

The conference, to be held mainly in the University of Alberta campus, will involve delegates from University Students' Unions across Western Canada. The three day talks will cover a wide range of concerns to students on most University campuses.

Seminars will be held on topics such as Day Care Centers, of special concern to married students and single parents. Another discussion will investigate the critical housing problem faced by all students. A third of many planned discussions is slated for the topic of Student Media, a debate about campus newspapers and radios.

The wide scope of the conference is designed to be both informative and constructive in a philosophical sense. The overall purpose of such a conference is to discuss the problem of providing relevant services to as many students as possible, given the tight financial situation of most Students' Unions in Canada. The aim, is to resolve individual and group concerns, drawing from each other's experiences in the various areas.

Most delegates should be arriving at the University of Alberta on the afternoon of Friday, November 1st, 1974. It is hoped that many valuable projects will be launched as a result of this conference and that the students of the University and, ultimately, the Edmonton community will benefit significantly from it. The Services Conference should conclude its final seminar on Sunday afternoon, November 3rd.

For further information please contact Tony Melnychuk, VP Services at 432-4236.

The Connection catalogue replaces WholeEarth version

Carmel, Calif. (ENS) - Another successor to the "Whole Earth Catalog" has come along - but this one has one big difference. You can actually buy all the goodies in its 204 pages, at discounts of between 30 and 40 percent.

The catalog is called "The Connection", and it's being published by a national alternative buying collective in Carmel, California. The group has made arrangements with some 150 manufacturers of various products to distribute their goods at wholesale prices to individuals.

The items range from teepees to stereo records to books, tools, musical instruments, camping gear, bulk foods, clothing, jewelry, and arts and crafts equipment. It's fully illustrated, with over 2,500 items at the wholesale prices.

(Note: This really is a bargain, and can be ordered from The-Connection, P.O. Box 7226-Z, Carmel, Ca. 93921).

Communications seminar

M. Craig Spencer, Counselling Psychologist, Wiancko Clinic, will conduct the seminar in which attention will be given to such areas as establishing rapport, developing listening skills, identifying patient feelings, communicating empathy and understanding, appropriately sharing one's own personal feelings, and recognizing nonverbal messages.

Case studies will be used to discuss topics such as dealing with distressed and dying patients.

Instruction will include demonstrations, group discussions, videotape, and practical exercises.

Registrations are accepted in Room 228, Corbett Hall, 82 Avenue and 112 Street. The fee is $20. Class hours will be from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. each day. Additional information may be obtained by calling 432-5069 daytimes.

Higher entry at U of W

Seattle, Wash. (I.P.) - Higher admission standards for entering freshmen at the University of Washington have been adopted by the faculty, Dr. J. Robert Long, Director of Admissions, announced here recently. The changes will be phased in over a two-year period.

Under the new program, prospective freshmen will be ranked for admission purposes according to a combination of their high school grade point average and their score in a college admission test, with the choice of admission to be offered to those students with the best combined scores.

In addition, the required number of "academic" subjects to be taken in high school by students planning to attend the University will be increased from 12 to 13 units, effective Autumn, 1975.

The admission examination will be an approved verbal-quantitative type. Initially, grades will be assigned about two-thirds and test scores about one-third of the total weight. Eligible applicants will be placed in rank order by their combined weighted score of grades and tests and offers of admission will proceed from the top until the freshman class is filled.

A combination of traditional grades and test scores from a college entrance aptitude test produces a more accurate estimate of students' success at the University than the use of either grades or tests scores alone, Dr. Long said.

Fridays fleas

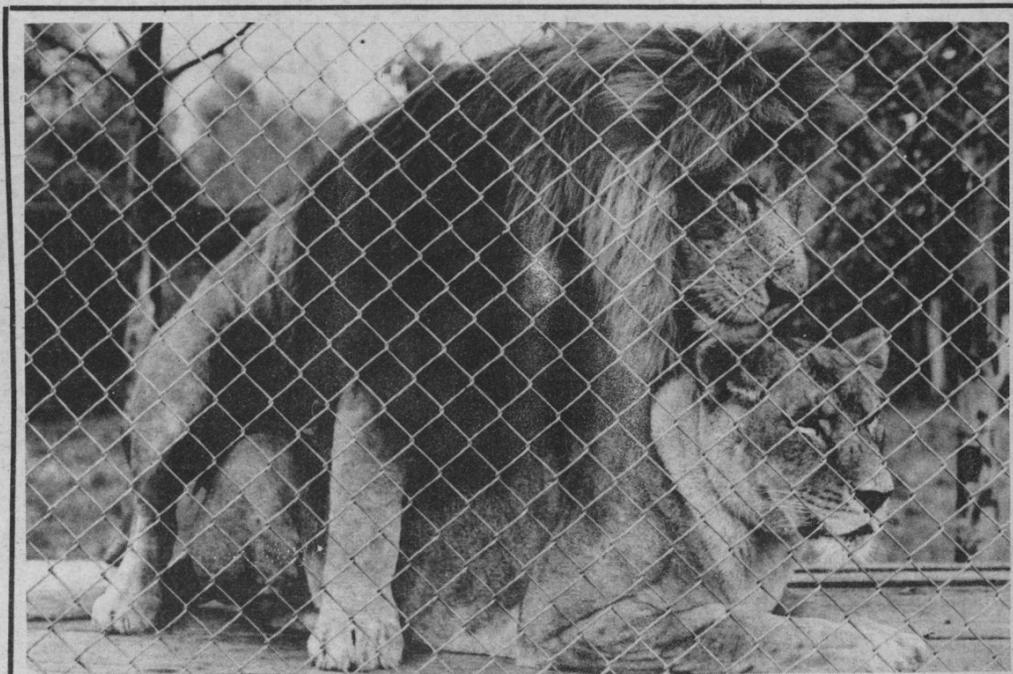

The first official enforcement of a last year's Building Policy Review Board decision will come into effect soon.

The flea market, a long standing attraction in SUB, will now be restricted to Friday business.

The move, instituted at Monday's Council meeting was made to uphold a contract with HUB merchants, with whom the flea market often competes.

Also, those selling food products will now be forced to hold a city licence.

Literature tables, not a part of the market, will be able to operate throughout the week.
