

tions and lusts. Grant me to be more meek and lowly in heart, and to be more spiritually minded, which is life and peace.

Pitifully behold the sorrows of those who are filled with groundless fears lest they should eat and drink unworthily. Comfort those whom Satan would drive to despair; and give rest to all who are weary and heavy laden with sin. Convince of their guilt and misery those who will not come to the feast which thou hast prepared; and have mercy upon those who may presume to come without that preparation of heart which is from thee. Shew them their danger, whether they are madly living in sin, or vainly trusting in their own righteousness.

But, leaving the souls of others to thy righteous judgment, O thou Divine Saviour, who knowest what is in man, help me to judge, and try, and examine myself, whether I be in the faith. And when the tares shall no longer grow together with the wheat, then may thy holy angels gather me with all thy redeemed into thy kingdom, to rejoice in thy love, and to praise thy Name, for ever and ever. Amen.
