

Theatrical

"The House that Jack Built," a musical farce, presented by Broadhurst and Currie, was greeted by a full house at the Grand on Saturday evening. It is one of the best of its kind that has been presented in Chatham for some time. The show is a very humorous one and is characterized by numerous complications which are decidedly funny. Geo. H. Summers, who took the part of Willie Slab, the leading man, is an artist and performed his part faultlessly. Miss St. George Hussy, the leading lady as Mrs. Dooley, was also good. The other members of the company were all acceptable.

The local orchestra got into deep water on the "one" music, but their overtures were very good.

The comedy element of the new sensational melodrama, "From Scotland Yard," which will be the attraction at the Grand to-night, is provided by a much bank messenger, Theophilus Timmons and his wife Matilda. It appears that the wife is a disciple of women's rights and her particular delight is inflicting little unpleasantness on the head of the pater. The daughter Bessie is the ingenue. She is engaged to be married to a hard working locomotive driver, George Slagg. He is one of the bashful type and is ever getting into trouble. Cleve Ryley, a detective sergeant in the employ of the criminal detection department of Scotland Yard, provides the hero role, while Eustace Lee, otherwise Capt. Nero, is the bold and bad villain. Convicts, Scotland Yard officials, English cockneys, people of the provinces are other characters. From Scotland Yard is produced with a wealth of scenic effect and a fine cast of players is employed.

Local theatre-goers have, no doubt, long been waiting for a chance to see that much talked of play "Mistress Nell" that was made all the rage by Henrietta Crossman in New York last season and so the local playhouse is apt to be crowded next Thursday night when a specially equipped company under the management of Maurice Campbell will present the play for the first time here. Agnes Arden will play the part originated by Miss Crossman and she is said to be especially well suited to the part so that an excellent evening's entertainment may be looked forward to. The part of King Charles will be played by Mace Greenleaf, an actor of excellent reputation, and the other characters in the play will all be in the hands of reputable actors of acknowledged ability.

HURRY UP!

Everywhere one hears that expression "hurry up!" It is a genuine Americanism expressive of the "rush" in which we live. Nothing is swift enough for us. We race against steam and lightning and find them slow. We grudge the time given to eating, and rush through meals as though life depended upon our haste.

Life does depend on our haste, but not in that sense. Look at the obituary columns of the papers and see how many prominent men are carried away by "stomach trouble," "acute indigestion" and other related diseases. Their lives have in general been sacrificed to the haste and rush of business which overlooked the fact that food can only nourish the body when digested and assimilated and that the digestive and assimilative processes can't be hurried.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and the associated organs of digestion and nutrition. The source of all physical strength is properly digested and perfectly assimilated food. By enabling the perfect digestion and assimilation of food "Golden Medical Discovery" increases and enriches the blood supply and sends new strength to every organ of the body.

"I was at one time as I thought almost at death's door," writes Mr. J. S. Bell, of Leaside, Van Buren Co., Iowa. "I was confined to my house and part of the time to my bed. I had taken quantities of medicines but they only seemed to feed the disease, but I must say that 'Golden Medical Discovery' has cured me, and I today I am stronger than I have been for twenty years. I am now forty-three years old."

A CONTRAST.

Carlton Place Canadian.

It is pointed out that if Canada were as truly loyal as New Zealand we should have sent 50,000 men to South Africa instead of a trickle of 4,000. Our aspirations to help the empire have been suppressed by the passions of one single man. Only for the hostility of the country against the continued indifference of the Government none would ever have been sent.

Again the people are in insurrection and before the whirlwind the Government must yield. Even such a hide-bound Grit paper as the Montreal Witness is up in arms. We are sending bay and horses, but no men!

Canada spouts loyalty through its premier's great flume, but Australia and New Zealand, saying nothing, have sent one soldier to each hundred of their population.

MALATESTA AT HOME

SQUALID ROOM IN LONDON REFUGE OF THE ANARCHIST KING.

Arch Plotter Against Organized Society Meets Broken Down Bicycles and Studies Philosophy Over a Wine-shop—His Career as a "Red."

When Dr. Conan Doyle gave us through the medium of Sherlock Holmes that crafty, soft spoken, pleasant faced scoundrel Professor Moriarty, it is not impossible that he drew his picture from life. There sits today in a squalid room in that part of London known as Islington the incarnation of Moriarty in the person of the dreaded Malatesta, arch anarchist, about whom so much has been written, but about whom so little is really known. Now more than ever is a knowledge of Malatesta important to Americans on account of the whisperings that he could tell much if he would about the murder of President McKinley.

The Scotland Yard officials consider Enrico Malatesta to be the real leader of the anarchists of England if not of the world. He is known to be in close touch with the anarchistic movements throughout Europe and America and as a consequence is watched day and night. But clever as the Scotland Yard men are they can never identify him with any crime of the "reds," and with a serene confidence he works at his trade of plumber while the "shadows" pursue him in vain. If he lived in France or Italy, he would be quickly locked up on the theory that he was a graduate. Only by the influence of his family was he kept out of jail. After that he was downed by his parents, and he promptly plunged into all sorts of plots against the government of Italy.

By 1893 he had become recognized as a daring anarchist. There were some unusually violent riots in King Humbert's domain that year, and as one result Malatesta was clapped into jail. After his release he honored America with his presence, picking his intimates from such congenial spirits as Johann Most and Emma Goldman. Four years ago he went to London and has remained there ever since save for occasional mysterious trips to the continent, which, singularly enough, have been followed by attempts on the lives of rulers.

As already mentioned, he is a living Professor Moriarty. He differs from Mo-

riety in that he is a young man. He looks to be fifty years old, but cannot be more than thirty-five. He has heavily lined face, piercing black eyes and jet black hair and beard. Outwardly he is one of the most quiet, mild and inoffensive of men. His voice is soft and pleasant. He is extremely reticent, presumably because he believes that a "red" anarchist is one who acts instead of talks.

This singular man lives at 112 High street. Where his domicile is located the street narrows down into a dismal dirty little lane, with unpleasant looking shops and slatternly houses on either side. Malatesta does not find it necessary to pose as a householder. He lodges over a little wine-shop kept by a man named Defendi, also declared to be a revolutionary exile from Italy. Whether he is or not, a boy of seventeen, has been informally adopted by Malatesta and is the anarchist king's closest companion.

A 12 by 14 foot room in Malatesta's castle. It is at the rear of the second floor. A bed, a bookcase, a table and some cheap chairs that have seen much service are the only furniture. It is the bookcase alone that reveals the tenacity of a man out of the common run at Islington. It contains something like a hundred books, and, besides the works of Bakunin, the apostle of anarchy, and other revolutionary books in French, German, Italian and Russian, there are volumes by Huxley, Herbert Spencer, Matthew Arnold, John Stuart Mill and Carlyle.

It is rather a difficult thing to say how Malatesta lives. Those who come to know assert that he does not get a penny of salary from anarchists. He certainly cannot earn much at his trade, for all the odd jobs of mending bicycles, plumbing and so forth he gets are from foreigners who know him or are in the confidence of his friends. The neighbors will have nothing to do with him, and he will have nothing to do with strangers. It is said that he has inherited some money. This explanation of his source of revenue is probably the correct one.

However he lives, the fact remains that he does live, considered by friends and foes alike a menace to society. "What might have been" is sadly true in his case. If Malatesta had only cultivated his genius, which is no mean one, instead of spending his time promoting anarchy, there is more than a remote possibility that today he would be as honored and respected as his fellow countryman, Marconi, instead of being, as he is, hunted and watched by the keenest eyes of all Scotland Yard, the personification of Conan Doyle's "King of the Under World."

Its Foreign Name. A social club in Pennsylvania named Deutsch-Amerikanischer-Volkstempel applied for a charter of incorporation, but was refused on the ground that the name was in a foreign language. On appeal to the supreme court, however, the charter was granted, the court holding that there is no requirement under the statute that the title of the corporation shall be English.
