ALARMING FRUIT OUTLOOK.

Hamilton, March 9.—Fruit growers at Grimsby and throughout the Niagara district are viewing with alasm the outlook for a good crop this year. The severe weather has greatly injured many of the trees and the latest danger is a plague of field mice. These are damaging the bark of the fruit trees, eating it away from the ground up, and they are destroying the trees.

woman is often referred to by man as "doubling his joys and halving his sorrows." That may be complimentary, but it would seem to be rather hard on the woman. For in plain terms it means that where things are going, well with the man his wife makes them go better. But when things are going ill with him, he expects the wife to share half his burden. And there's more truth than poetry in this presentation of masculine selfishness. Men don't appreciate the fact that the strain of motherhood alone is a burden bigger than all the loads that rest upon male shoulders. They see the wife grow thin, psie, nervous and worn without a thought that she is over-burdened. Among the pleasant letters received by Dr. Pierce are those from husbands who have waked up before it was too late to the crushing burdens laid upon the wife, and in the search for help have found in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a restorative which has given back to the mother the health of the maiden and the maiden's happiness. "Favorite Prescription" always helps, and almost always cures. It has perfectly cured misety-eight out of every hundred women who have used it when afflicted with diseases peculiar to women.

WIT AND SENSE.

Hunter's Unique Lecture to Teront spire Club on "The Futuous Inso-

The other day, Capt, Hunter, LL. B., son of Dr. Hunter of the Registry Department of Ontario, delivered a rather unique lecture at the Empire Olub luncheon on "The Fatuous Insolence of the Young Canadian." The World reported it as follows:

Capt. Hunter considered it one of the glories of the Empire Club that it was fitted by its organization for the beginning and ending of those lamily quarrels which make home life dear. He would not scorn the kangaroo, nor contenn the Airi-life dear. He would not scorn the kingaroo, nor contemn the Africander, nor dlate upon the imbeelity of the British, but wished to call their attention to "the fatuous insoience of the Canadian."

There were two elements in the ational question. The fixed one was Canada, the variable, the Canadian. They had many books on the makers and builders of Canada, some of which they had subscribed for and some almost paid for, but while the older part of Canada had been made and re-made, conquered and reconquered, there had never been made a conquest of Canada. They had only hacked and whittled at it. It was a proof of the singular things which men took pride in to hear people glorying in the boast that the Northwest could support fifty mil-Northwest could support fifty millions, when the scanty population there looked like tacks on a map which hold it to the wall. The wealth and resources of Canada, the locked storehouse of nature, were the ultimate prize of the ultimate masters of the world. They were familiar with a native wine sort of cestacy over the hyphenated This-Canada-of-Ours, its forests of immemorial age, and its business men of similar antiquity, but the day of the young country, which was to be mothered and nurtured, had gone. mothered and nurtured, had and there was not a man in Canada who would not back his opinion against that of any Englishman. Canada Had Assumed Insulesse.

Inspired by the heroism of a at Paardeberg, Canadians had a on the first requisite of a nation—insolence. There were great nation-insolence. There were two kinds of insolence—the benign and the malignant; the sustained and the fatuous. When Napoleon moved with 200,000 men at Jena he exhibited the sustained variety. men he presented an example of the fatuous kind. The French had not Batoche and Paardeberg to animate them, but they had Jona and Fonte-noy and the Malakoff and other little fights Great Need of Carefulness. It was unnecessary to point out the reasons for carefulness in face of this growing insolence. When a man thinks he can fight you need not go to Woodbridge Fair to arrive at the result. The same warriors that had been filling us with post-prandial valor have also been spreading abroad the glory of our possession wrought mines, which we make a pretext for selling each other worthless stocks; our boundless granaries, which somebody else will make haste to get us a tenant for if we cannot fill them ourselves. We have immense resources and nothing to defend them with Since 1812 we have had compilete peace and have have had complete peace and have forgotten the source of it. which was that nobody knew we had anything worth stealing. Manchuria had drawn the attention of brassknuckled peace, the emperor of the double-headed vulture. In an un-guarded time Christian nations had learned of the timber and coal and arable land in Manchuria, and we know the result. Russia had anore regiments in Manchuria than Canada had companies in the Dominion. We have been foolish chough to "show our wad," and now we must Protect it.

How England Might Lose.

We relied on England, but in a sea fight of five or six hours England might lose the command of the sea for six months. No nation would invade Canada with less than fifty or a hundred thousand men, and they would not give us time to prepare as the British did the Boers. In 1895 the Boers were in the same state of fatuous insolence which we now displayed. Every Boer was a heaven-born rifle shot. Instead of the two million doilars Sir Frederick Borden spoke of spending they had spent two million bounds. They had a rifle for every man. We had 40.000 for two millions. Greece, to whose military preparations in 1897 our own bear a singular resemblance had a navy and a toy-army. But they had nothing ready, as Canada has nothing ready. If we had a war we should be breasing into the stores for sporting rilles as the Greeks did. He supposed Larissa was Helenic for Bidgeway. They might say the Greeks were degenerate; but give Lord Kitchener the Greeks and the money and he would take Constantinople with the Greeks as he took Khartoum with the Egyptians.

Had a Cafe Politician.

The Greeks had a sort of cafe politician who was ofuniscient, who talked of the indomitable courage of their ancostors and bragged of Marathon, which was a free translation of Paardeberg. Our climate did not permit of cafe politicians like the Greeks, but we had dining clubs in which the national glory was vaunted amid thunderous applause of our own making. That sort of greatness feeds upon itself. Something practical was needed. If Sir Frederick Borden had made it ten millions and got the job done sometime ago, we should now have more land and less Alyerstonian patronage.

The first step in the treatment of the chronic forms is to remove the scales and crusts and soften the skin, by warm baths with Cuticura Soap. The scalp, ears, elbows, hands, ankles and feet will require frequently a thorough soaking in order to penetrate the thick-ened skin and crusts with which these parts are often covered. Dry carefully, and apply Cuticura Ontment, lightly at first, and where advisable spread it on pieces of soft cloth and bind in place. Take the Resolvent, pills or liquid, in medium doses. Do not use cold water in bathing, and avoid cold, raw winds.

Newfoundland's Pictureque Coast Line Described by an Enthusiast-May Be in Canada Some Day.

Described by an Enthusiast May Be in Canada Some Day.

Newfoundland has a unique, important and commanding position. It is at no great distance from the North American continent, and practically stretches across—the Gulf of St. Lawrence. In shape it is quite roughly triangular, and its longest distance across in any direction—is only about 216 miles. In approaching the island one is impressed with the thought that it is pretty completely rock bound, which to a great extent proves to be a stubborn fact, but so varied in character as to render it exceedingly picturesque and interesting, says W. H. Yeamans in Country Gentleman.

The entire coast is indented with bays of various shapes and sizes—in some instances these extend so far into land as to almost meet from different directions, leaving only a very narrow isthmus for the connection of the land. In the larger of the bays there are many islands, giving in some instances as great variety and equal beauty as is found in the Thousand Islands of the St. Lawrence River. The general surface is as varied as the coast line, and presents, almost every imaginable condition of land surface; mountains, hills and valleys abound, gorges, guiches and ravines, through which rush streams of water; lakes and rivers are numerous, and add to the heauty of the general landscape. If there is enjoyment in traversing and exploring the fords of Norway, it can be duplicated in salling in and about the bays and coast indentations of Nawfouelland. can be duplicated in sailing in and about the bays and coast indenta-tions of Newfoundland. If the coast is rough and rugged, it

A. W. Wright Remisiscent.

Mr. A. W. Wright, Conservative organizer, who was a resident of Dufferin in 1854, half a century ago, was present at the recent annual gathering of Dufferin Old Boys in Toronto. President Kyles called upon Mr. Wright for a speech, and he regaled the audience with reminiscences of those early days, when the pioneers were hewing out homes for themselves in the woods. He remembered distinctly when the long-Pulaski county is to have a new jail at Winamac. It had one and the county decided to build the new one on the spot occupied by the old one. To do this, of course, the old jail had to be tera down.

Sheriff Wherritt borrowed an old box car from the Pennsylvania Ruilfroad, which runs through the town, and announced that it would be used as a juil.

The car was placed on a little-used sidetrack. The other nght two chicken thieves were arrested and locked up. The next morning the jail, prisoners and all had disappeared.

During the nght a freight train came along and stopped in Winamac to do some swiftling. The train crew, not knowing the story of the car, coupled the jail to the train and when they left town the 'jail went with them.

Sheriff Wherritt has been trying ever since to find the jail, but it is gone for good and all.

Rev. Abbe H. Raymond Casgrain, the well known author of valuable literary and historical works, and formerly president of the Royal Society of Canada, died at Quebec recently, aged 75. He was, according to Morgan, a son of the late Hon. Charles E. Casgrain, and brother of Senator Hon. Charles E. Casgrain. Born at River Quelle, December 16, 1881, he was educated at Ste. Anne's College, Quebec, and at the Quebec Seminary. He was for a time priest at the Basilica, Quebec, visited Europe in 1858, 1867 and 1873 in quest of historical material, and found many valuable manuscripts relating to early Canadian history, among them the journals and papers of Marechal de Levis, and some personal papers of Montcalm. In 1874 he was compelled, owing to a serious affection of his cyes, to give up m'nisterial work. In 1877 he received the degree of Canada.

The First Corset.

The first corset—not counting ancient modifications of the Grecian zone and girdle—was introduced into France by Catherine de' Medici. It was a strange affair and fashioned after the style of a knight's cuirass. The framework was entirely of iron, and the velvet, which decorated the exterior only, served to hide a frightful and cumbersome ar-ticle of torture.
