Our esteemed contemporary, the Yorkmouth Herald, celebrated its sixtieth anniversary on Wednesday of last week. The Herald has ever since its foundation been under the editorial management of the present editor and proprietor, Mr Alex. Lawson. We tender the veteran journalist our congratulations, and hope he may yet be spared many years.

In another column will be found recorded the death of Miss Bell L. Godfrey, a most estimable lady of this place. She had been ill for over a year--a victim of the fall disease consumption--and passed away to her rest on Friday of last week--only mourned by a host of friends. The funeral took place on Sunday and was largely attended. Appropriate services were held in the Baptist church.

An exchange says: "All persons like favorable notices in their local newspaper. Take this warning: If you have frequent headaches, dizziness and fainting spells accompanied by chills, cramps, corns, hiccups, epilepsy and neuritis, it is a sign you are not well, but are liable to die at any minute. Pay your subscription a year in advance and thus make yourself sold for a good old-fashioned notice."

On Wednesday as the convict filed out of their respective cells in Kingston Penitentiary, one made a murderous assault on a comrade with a knife, which had secreted about his person, inflicting two wounds, one in the back, nearly reaching the lungs, and aimed one at the heart, which was warded off, and took effect in the arm. The guards were quickly on hand and overpowered the would-be murderer, who was conveyed to a dungeon. The victim was taken to the hospital. Personal spite is given as a reason for the assault.

Musical Reception.

On Friday evening last a very pleasant company assembled on invitation at the residence of Mr A. J. Woodman, of this town, the occasion being a reception given to Miss Ida M. Godbold, the talented contralto soloist of New York, who is paying a visit to friends in the county, and has been stopping at the residence of her uncle, Mr Henry Palmer, Lower Wolfville. The Wolfville band was in attendance, and rendered several selections in a most pleasing manner, eliciting praise in all quarters. Miss Godbold sang several solos, all of which received hearty echoes. She has a powerful contralto voice, which gives evidence of careful training combined with rare talent. The Ladies' Solian Quartette being in a most pleasing mood, all invited were present. By request they gave a number of pieces and delighted all who were present with their sweet melody, Miss Larson, the contralto, also rendered a few selections, and was heartily encouraged. During the evening ice-creams were passed around and were thoroughly enjoyed by all. Mr and Mrs Woodman are to be congratulated on their success in providing such a pleasant evening's entertainment.
