Concentrated Beef Cubes Fortify Body Against Chills.

An Oxo cube dissolved in a cup of hot water is a splendid thing to take before going out in the cold or damp, or on coming in, if one feels the slightest ill effects. Besides its nourishing and invigorating properties, Oxo acts as a fuel in the body, generating heat at the system requires.

Oxo cubes—in tins of four and ten cubes—have endless possibilities. For soups, sauces, gravies, savory dishes and meat jellies, they do all that meat could do, and do it quicker and with less trouble. Use Oxo cubes with "left-overs" and eddiments for new, delicious dishes. There is nothing better than Oxo for building sturdy boys and girls.

TAKE LITTLE NOTE OF TIME IN SPAIN

Spaniards Never on Time for Engagements and Trains Are Always Late.

Madrid, Nov. 3.—Foreign visitors after a short stay in Madrid begin to doubt whether Spaniards are able to tell the time. There are scores of public clocks in government buildings and on church towers and nearly every Spaniard carries a watch, which he often looks at, but apparently these do not mean anything to the average citizen.

An invitation to a meal at a certain hour means that the host or the guest will appear half an hour or more late. An appointment for a fixed time and place nearly always finds both parties absent at the hour named. An interview arranged with an official involves usually a wait of an hour in the anteroom. The tailor will not be ready to try on your suit until at least two days after he has promised to do so. Trains rarely start and never arrive at the scheduled hour. There are some few indications of the little interest Spaniards show in the time.

It is either morning, noon, evening or night with Spaniards generally, and of course the eternal manana which never comes. The exact hour is nothing to them yet thousands of them will assemble on the Puerta del Sol to watch the fall of the globe on the Ministry of the Interior at noon every day.

DOMINIONS HEIR TO SAME TRADITIONS

Prince Arthur of Connaught Bids Farewell to People of South Africa

[Canadian Associated Press Cable.] London, Nov. 3.—Speaking at a farewell dinner on eve of his leaving England as Governor General of South Africa, Prince Arthur of Connaught said:

"It will be my earnest endeavor to follow the fine example of the prince of Wales who has certainly taught us all that the chivalry of this age is the performance of public duty, and right well he has done it. I trust that it may be my privilege to receive him in South Africa, where I know an enthusiastic welcome will await him. It is not for me to say whether the idea of Imperial unity is to be carried out along the lines of common interests as proposed by those who advocate trade preference, or whether by common duties and responsibilities as proposed by others. This question is fraught with tremendous difficulties, but the years 1914-1918 have at all events shown that the Empire can present a soft front when its integrity and existence is threatened, and if such an awful catastrophe were to occur again, I am convinced that South Africa would show the same indomitable spirit as in the past."

"If I were asked to describe the general idea of British rule during the past century, I should be inclined to give the answer in the words of Professor Cramb: 'To give all men within its bounds the high tolerance of religion which has marked this Empire from its foundation; to spread that love of free institutions, and that pursuit of an even higher justice and a larger freedom which rightly or wrongly we associate with the temper and character of our race, wherever it is dominant and secure.'"

"This is the conception of Empire and of England which prevails through the changing fortunes of parties and the rise and fall of cabinets."

"That ideal has been our guiding star through all the phases of our national life, and who can say that it has been a failure? Each of the five great self-governing dominions can, of course, retain its own individuality, but we are all heirs to the same traditions and responsibilities."

[Canadian Press by Leased Wire.] London, Nov. 3.—Queensland, Australia, securities continue to show general depreciation, although the Agent General a week ago issued a message from Premier Theodore assuring investors that the government would honorably meet obligations despite what had appeared in the press regarding the confiscatory legislation of the state.

Queensland finances have been a matter for discussion in London for some months. First, Premier Theodore failed to raise a loan for the state steel works, it being argued against him that the government had passed confiscatory legislation. Then during the recent electoral campaign the Premier stated that if money was not forthcoming from outside capitalists the state would borrow the interest payable to holders of Queensland securities.

PORTRAY PRINCE OF WALES AS A LOVER

Successful Comedy Put on the Boards at New York With Prince as Hero

[Canadian Press by Leased Wire.] New York, Nov. 3.—The tour of the Prince of Wales through Canada and the United States last year furnished inspiration to A. E. Thomas for a comedy entitled "Just Suppose," which opened at the Henry Miller Theatre here last night.

Though the prince of the play is called George, and not Albert Edward, there can be no doubt that an attempt has been made by the playwright to portray in his leading character the very agreeable and ingratiating character of the royal visitor to this country.

The story of the play deals with a romance between the Prince and a Virginia girl, Linda Lee Stafford, whom he meets on a motor car lark on the southern shore of the Potomac. The Prince, who is incognito, is obliged to make a brief stay in the girl's home because of a slight illness, with the inevitable result that he falls in love with the southern belle.

The girl also loves the Prince, but decides that she would honor him more should he go back to fulfill the duty he owes his country rather than renounce his royal title for her sake.

The part of the Prince is played by Geoffrey Kerr, a young English actor, who last night made his debut in the United States. While not a perfect physical likeness of the Prince of Wales according to one of the critics, he succeeded in giving "an exceedingly fine personation of a paragon of honor, honesty and sweetness, and a fun-loving companion without."

There are several other English actors in the cast.

The New York critics are practically unanimous in praising the play.
