Miss's Minaret is the Best.

Positive proof that K. D. C. is the best, and that the French artist has had by examining testimonials from a grateful people. Send for copies. Care promptly and promptly.

K. D. C. has cured Diphtheria who thought they were dying. See testimonials. Free sample to any address. K. D. C. Co., New Glasgow, N. S.

Take K. D. C. and, like others who have tried it, you will say: "It is the greatest Diphtheria Cure of the age, and worth the weight in gold."

"It is not enough for you" is a silly question; but if you meet a man who complains of suffering from the heat, too hot, too hot, on his head, that he does not use Ayer's Sarsaparilla to tone up his system and free his blood from irritating humors.

Mrs. Harriet A. Marble, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was for years a martyr to head-ache, and never found anything to give her more than temporary relief until she began to take Ayer's Pills, since which she has been in the enjoyment of perfect health.

If you want a reliable dye that will color an even brown or black, and will please and satisfy you every time, use Stocking-maker's Dye for the Whites.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT.

A GOOD STOMACH.—By constipation is meant irregular action of the bowels, often called costiveness, and commonly caused by dyspepsia, neglect, excess in eating or drinking, etc. It is a complaint and not to be neglected under any circumstances, as it leads to indigestion, headache, dizziness, fever, etc. A uniformly successful remedy is Burdock Blood Bitters, which is faithfully tried, never fails to effect a prompt and lasting cure in the worst case. The following extract from a letter from Mr. Jas. M. Carson, Brook N. W. T., will serve as a testimonial. "I have been troubled with constipation and general debility and was induced to use your B. B. through your advertisement. I now take great pleasure in recommending it to all my friends, as it completely cured me."

THE BYE-ELECTIONS. have passed off and we now consider the best protection against disease. There is an unrestricted reciprocity of sentiment between all people in Canada in pronouncing Burdock Blood Bitters the very best blood purifier, and a sure and headache remedy, and a general tonic renovating medicine before the public.

SANDWICH.—SIR,—For five years I suffered from lambrago and could not get any relief until I used Hayward's Yellow Oil, and must say I find no better remedy for it.

THE DREADED LA GRIFFE Eruption, this scourge of humanity, comes as a train of evils in the shape of obstinate eruptions, coughs, lung troubles, etc. There is no remedy so prompt, sure and effective as Hayward's Yellow Oil, as Milburn's Cod Liver Oil Emulsion with Wild Cherry and Sarsaparilla. It is a sure and reliable remedy. Price 50c. and $1.00 per bottle.

A Palace Steamer.

The S. S. Britannia, which has been purchased by Boston parties and will run on the North Atlantic S. S. Co.'s Line between Boston, Halifax, Port Haulbury and this port was built by the Halvorsen's Line, for the conveyance of mail and passengers, and is the largest and most luxurious steamship ever built in Norway and Great Britain, at a cost of $3,000,000, but owing to financial troubles of the owner, she has been run only about nine months, and has been sold as above.

"This vessel was built by the Laxvaag Shipbuilding and Engineering Co., of Bergen, in 1890, but engaged by Napier, Shanks & Bell, of Glasgow." She is the largest and fastest, and most luxuriously fitted steamship either built or owned in Norway hitherto.

The S. S. Britannia is a vessel of 3000 tons register, 275 feet in length, with a beam of 34 feet 2 inches, built under special survey. She is supplied with triple expansion, surface condensing engines, indicating 3000 horse power, driving the vessel at a speed of fully 16 knots an hour. The diameter of the engine cylinders is 25 1/2 and 72 inches, respectively, while the stroke is 45 inches.

Steam is generated in 4 large steel boilers, each with 3 furnaces, the boilers having a collective heating surface of 8250 square feet; the flues are led into 3 funnels.

The hull is of particularly handsome model, being designed on the fine lines of a yacht, with graceful, projecting bow, carrying a artistically carved figure-head, representing "Dama Britannia." The model adopted is altogether eminently adapted to secure high speed, along with a maximum of comfortable, steady, sea-going qualities.

The vessel was built and equipped bought him from time to time for his portrait, but Holness, ordinarily so compliant, ever contrived to elude these requests. Even the "Iron Chancellor," the great Bismarck, was unsuccessful in his request. A few years ago he sent Lumbach, the most famous portrait painter in Germany, to Rome with a personal letter to the Pope, requesting that Lumbach be permitted to paint His Holiness's portrait for the German Chancellor. In spite of this request all that Lumbach could succeed in obtaining was an authorization to see His Holiness during Mass, and to take sketches and photographs of the pontiff during the latter's daily walks in the gardens of the Vatican. More than that Lumbach was unable to obtain, and he never secured as much as a single sitting in the proper significance of the word. With Lumbach's portrait, executed under these difficulties, the Pope was only moderately well pleased, and from that time on he more strenuously than ever discouraged any further attempts at Holness's painting. More recently still Prince Luitpold, Regent of Bavaria, sent a painter to Rome for this purpose, but the artist was compelled to return without having met with any success in his mission.

That it was that when, in summer of 1891, Theobald Chartran, a French artist of reputation, presented himself at the French Legation in Rome and brought the French Minister to announce for him an audience with the Pope, his avowed intention being to seek sittings for a portrait, he was warned of the almost insuperable difficulty in the way of such an undertaking.

Mr. Chartran, however, was persistent. He explained that he had always been possessed of an over-weening desire to paint the portrait of His Holiness, and he was persuaded that, an audience being granted him, he could succeed where so many others had failed. In view of M. Chartran's great name in the artistic world, the French Minister consented to latest himself in bringing about this audience.

In accordance with this promise, on the morning of July 10th, M. Chartran found himself in the Papal ante-chamber, awaiting an audience with the Holy Father. Under his arm he carried a package, wrapped in green baize. Admitted to the Papal presence, His Holiness received the painter with a smile of interest, and he said: "To receive an artist whose name is so well known to me, and of whose talent I have seen such wonderful examples, I must warn you, however, that I have an inflexible rule—never to grant any sittings for my portrait. My advanced years and my feeble health to-day make the continuance of this rule the most imperative." "Permit me to suggest," replied the French artist, "that if you will only need a few brief sittings to convert into a picture. Will not Your Holiness grant me these few sittings?" And as the painter dropped on one knee, the better to lock his sketch to the light, he looked up imploringly at the Pontiff.

"You prevail, Your Holiness," he exclaimed, "I beg this favor of you on my knees!"

The Pontiff was evidently touched by the painter's great earnestness. Still, it was half-willingly only that he yielded.

"You must not expect me to grant you more than half an hour, then—three-quarters of an hour at the very utmost," he said.

"I will not ask for more."

"When do you wish to begin?"

"Whenever it may please Your Holiness."

"Let it be to-morrow, then."

And thus it was that on the following day, in one of the great rooms of the Pope's private suite, which had been arranged as an atelier, the French painter found himself face to face with his subject. Half an hour, an hour, two hours, passed without the Pope apparently recalling that he had placed a limit upon the time the sitting was to last. The artist cleverly managed so as not to fatigue the Pontiff, who at the close of the sitting expressed himself as highly pleased with the progress of the work. So well pleased was he, in fact, that this initial sitting was followed by five others. At the end of the sixth sitting the last stroke of the brush had been given to the painting, a great work of art had been added to the world's art treasure, and of this work of art the Pontiff was not sparing of commendation. As the artist was taking his leave His Holiness said:

"This picture looks to me as I appear to myself, and presents me as I would wish to be known and remembered. There is in the face a certain human kindness and good will unto all men which certainly reflects my inward sentiment. Such few portraits of me as have hitherto been made have invariably suggested a certain coldness, hardness and cynicism which I could not accept as a faithful presentation; and it is of this that I am complained. This work, however, I accept as a true presentation of me as I really see. It is a wonderful likeness. It is true that I wish my features to be looked upon and known among the people of all lands."

The picture thus bearing the Pope's commendation represents the Pontiff exactly as said. His hands rest in an attitude of easy repose upon the arms of his chair. The most salient feature is the smiling face—a face full of the most remarkable blending of intelligence, benevolence and power.

The Pope's personal appearance is most remarkable. When the artist first enters the Papal presence he is apt to be almost startled by the way like appearance of the face and hands. In fact, the face would hardly seem that of a living man were it not for the animation in the deep, expressive eyes.

The Pope's Episcopal Jubilee.

The programme of fetes to be held in Rome in honor of the Episcopal Jubilee of His Holiness, in February next, has recently been approved by him. Pilgrimages will extend over several months, opening in October, 1893. The celebration proper will take place on February 19, when the Holy Father will crown the venerable P. Maffei with the Solenne High Mass in St. Peter's. Meanwhile Masses will be celebrated in several Roman churches, and daily in the private chapel of the Holy Father for the preservation of the venerable P. Maffei's life. All the Congregations of Rome have been called upon to organize and disseminate the several branches of the jubilee's fetes. The Episcopal tables offering to the Holy Father of the magnificent new auroch is announced. It will be dedicated to S. Joachim, the patron Saint of His Holiness. The programme is as follows:

1. The pilgrims of various nations, who travel to the Holy City for the due celebration of this great jubilee, will come in organized pilgrimages, commencing in the latter part of October of the present year, and continuing to the April of 1892. The reception of the said pilgrimages to be confined to the case of the Circolo San Pietro.

2. On the day of the Epiphany, 1893, the children of distinguished families in Rome will open a series of festivals, offering to the Holy Father, for their Christmas gift something purchased from their own earnings.

3. Towards the end of January, 1893, the Central Executive Committee will offer to the Holy Father through the Circolo Romano di San Sebastiano, the homage of several of the most renowned Italian scientific writers.

4. On the 11th day of the following February, on which day falls the Feast of Our Lady of Loretto, special prayers and devotions will be offered for the intentions of His Holiness under the auspices of the Circolo dell'Immacolata.

5. From the 13th to the 16th day of the same month the Spiritual Exercises will be given in several churches in Rome in preparation for the actual day of the Jubilee. The Societa Primaria Cattolica di Roma will be responsible for the good order in which the functions, etc., are arranged, and the Primaria A-ssociation of St. Charles for the diffusion of Good Literature will disseminate the homage of several copies of the life of His Holiness.

6. On the 16th, 17th, and 18th of February, the several receptions of the Italian pilgrimages from various districts will take place at the Vatican, in accordance with the regulations laid down at the time.

7. On the following day, the 19th, the actual day of the Episcopal Jubilee, the Holy Father has promised to say Mass in St. Peter's, and the pilgrims present in Rome and the faithful of Rome being free to attend without further permit.

8. On one or other of the preceding days the President of the Association of Catholic Countries, and of the Central Executive Committee for the Jubilee festivities, will present to the Holy Father a considerable sum as the obolus of St. Peter.

9. On the 20th, 21st, and 22nd of February a Solenne Vindicta of Thanksgiving will take place, by order of the Executive Committee, in the Church of San Lorenzo in Panis perna, in which the Holy Father received his episcopal consecration. The sermons preached will be by the most renowned orators.

10. The same Committee will give a dinner to one hundred poor persons, who suitable clothing, and the Catholic association will assume charge of visiting the parishes of Rome and its suburbs, dispensing to the children who attend the catechism classes school pictures, blessed medals, and six thousand small religious books, given by the Society of St. Paul for the Diffusion of Catholic Literature.

11. The Federations Piana and the other Catholic associations will give distinction marks of their final affection to the Holy See.

12. The scientific and literary Academies of Rome will give laureates in honor of His Holiness during the stay of the pilgrim.

13. A special account of charitable works commenced in Italy for the benefit of youth and of the working classes will be presented to His Holiness.—Catholic Review.
