Cause of Strike.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—The following article appeared in the Evening Herald of April 23rd.—"This morning twenty male employees of the Parker Monroe's Factory went on strike because a request to have the Union Stamp placed on the boots was not acceded to."
As this statement is not in keeping with the facts we feel that the real situation should be given to the public through your columns.
There are over thirty men and several girls on strike. At no time has a demand been made upon Messrs. Parker & Monroe to use the Union Stamp on their product.
For some time the employees have felt they were not receiving sufficient wages to properly maintain themselves. They recently submitted a bill of wages to the firm which provided for some increases and requested that the firm consider same. This request was completely ignored by the firm. In addition to this the employees felt that recent discharges of their fellow-workers was due to their holding membership in the Union.
Yours truly,
JAMES CAUL,
Sec. Boot & Shoe Workers Union,
St. John's, Nfld., April 23, 1913.

His Lordship Disillusioned.

One of Lord Wolsley's favourite reminiscences goes back to the time of his service in Canada and concerns his meeting with a great Red Indian chieftain. He rode forward to meet the chief, whom his fancy had pictured as a man of dignified and impressive demeanour, and arrayed in feathers and war-paint.
Great was his disappointment to find instead that the chief was a very unromantic person clad in a discarded dress-coat and a pair of very dirty flannel trousers.
At the end of the interview the guide who accompanied Wolsley hinted that the noble Redskin would most probably not be averse to drinking the distinguished white man's health. Thereupon Wolsley presented the chief with half-a-dollar, rather fearing that he might regard it as an insult and have him scalped. Any fears he had in this direction were very promptly dispelled, however, for the chief simply looked at the coin on the palm of his hand, and inquired: "Couldn't you make it a dollar, sir?"

This Season's Bride.

Was there ever a maid who did not admire a wedding dress of white satin gleaming through a misty veil of lace or tulle? Even a plain girl shines like a star in her bridal clothes. She is in the light, and she is white. She makes an unforgettable picture in it, which remains in the mind and heart of her groom through all the years.
The brides of this particular year are fortunate. Gowns were never more graceful in outline and never required less material to make them. Besides, the fabrics that are lovely and inexpensive are within reach of the most modest allowance for the trousseau.
Skirts are narrow, not more than two yards wide and often less than that. Therefore, only twice the length of the entire figure is needed in materials a yard wide, or three times the length in materials twenty-seven inches wide.
It is a season of filmy laces, and they are remarkably cheap and snowy white. They form the bodies either wholly or in part of nearly every dress. They are let in in plaatings in the split skirts and form the scanty lace of the bodice.
Besides the satin and silk fabrics which custom sanctions as most fit to clothe the bride, there are wonderful weaves in cotton which manufacturers have astonished and delighted those who wear much white this summer. These lovely cotton crepes, volles, mulis and batistes, not to mention the endless showing of frill embroideries, bring most beautiful gowns to be simply a matter of good planning and making.
Crepes and volles, made up with a little lace and hand-embroidered in large flowers, with nearly all sewing done by hand, cannot be excelled in either elegance or beauty.
Slips of thin silk are worn under them or pretty petticoats of soft, silky cotton fabrics.
Such gowns are more useful to the bride than a satin gown. They are appropriate for nearly every occasion which requires elegant gowning. They are without trains and, worn with dressy mid-summer hats and gay parasols, serve for nearly all the demands of social life. And summer time does not claim them solely for its own. Handsome white gowns are worn the year round for luncheons, card parties, theatre parties or anywhere, where silk might be worn— for May.

North Sydney, April 19—At last night's meeting of the council part of the plans of the Western Union Telegraph company for the coming season were announced by the mayor. It has been rumored for some time that the staff now employed at Canada was to be removed to North Sydney and the mayor stated this to be a fact. The move will bring fifty operators, some with their families, to town, and the local force will thus be increased to at least 125 men.
The new cable station to be erected on Court Street will be commenced shortly and will be one of the finest stations on the continent. It has not yet been decided whether the material will be brick or concrete.

Bonspiel Dinner.

As years go by the Curiers' dinner becomes more popular, and last night's dinner was easily the most successful of recent years. The British Hall was appropriately decorated and brilliantly illuminated and the display of choice bloom, imported by the Hon. President, was the best seen here for many a long day and appropriately in honor of St. George's Day, the red rose of England, was largely in evidence. The chief guest of the evening was His Excellency the Governor, who in responding to the toast of the Governor, told how the Crown Colony officials in the Transvaal, among whom he was one, were preparing the way for representative and responsible government there, even while hostilities between British and Boer continued. Chief among the decorations was a pretty design in colored lights of the rose, thistle, the shamrocks and the curling implements at the corners of a diamond with the initials of the St. John's Curling Association in the centre.
