At the last election Deazey was returned by a majority of 2.847, and the district is so strongly anti-Parnellite that when a vacancy occurred the Parnellites did not nominate a candidate. The anti-Parnellites placed Mt. Robert Ambrose in nomination and he was declared elected.

Scarcity of Small Change.

Scarcity of Small Change.

Ross, Aug. 10.—There is great scarcity of small silver in Italy owing to the rise in the rate of exchange. The continual illegal exportation of silver to France and Switzeriand has induced the firm of Gavazzi in Milan, to coin tokens, which are generally sacepted. Other merchants use liera notes and peatage stamps. With a view of remedying this evil, Signor Gavazzi, Minister of Finance, has ordered the issue of bronze cain to the amount of $2,000,000, and of liera notes to the amount of $6,000,000. This appears to be the only remedy, as the Latin Union convention does not allow the issue of such an amount of smaller silver.

TWO DIVORCES WANTED.

George W. Baker and William Barnes.
Mrs. Paker in her petition George W. Baker and William Barnes. Mrs. Baker states in her petition that the was married April 30, 1860, to George W. Baker in Washington county, Pennsylvania. Later they moved to Nerwada, Mo., where she lived with him until August, 1892. Of this union seven children rana, Mo., where she lived with him until August, 1892. Of this union seven children wete born, all of whom, but one son, aged 21 years, are dead. During this period Baker refured to support her and Mrs. Baker supported her family. In August, 1882, Baker left her and for five years she did not hear from him or know where he was. Finally she was told by her mother that he had been found dead on the public road between Smithfield and Uniontown, Pa.

Meanwhile Mrs. Baker had met William Barnes, of Wyandotte county, Kannas, and on learning from her mother that her husband was dead she allowed herself to be coutted by Mr. Barnes. Her romance culminated in May, 1888, when she married him. The two lived happily together for two years, when one day Mrs. Barnes was given a shock by her former husband walking in upon her. Baker explained that the man found dead in the road was his uncle and that he was very much alive. of Dr. McGlynn and Archbishop Corrigan is increasing.

Tuesday night about 5,000 people gathered at Washington Park in a picnic and festival of the Iriends of Dr. Edward McGlynn. It was a jubilee over the doctor's restoration to the priesthood. Dr. McGlynn was treated to an ovation, and in the course of his remarks said:

"I rejoice in no personal triumph. It is triumph of truth over misrepresentation. I have always asserted in teaching those doctrines which were so misrepresented at Rome that I was moved by love and truth. I felt a determination to preach the truth, come what might, even it it meant burning at the stake. I do not detract one iota of what I taught, neither did I in my letter to the Holy Father. When I was in Rome he demanded no retraction. He gave his blessing to me and my work. Nothing can justify calumnious misrepresentations of me to the Propaganda at Rome."

The speaker here mentioned the name of the Archbishop of New York. As he did so there was a storm of hisses. Dr. McGlynn raised his hand and remonstrated, and finally the indignation of those present against Archbishop Corrigan spent itself, and he continued his address.

AT THE GREAT FAIR.

(From a Correspondent.)
CHICAGO, Aug. 4. (From a Correspondent.)
Chicacoo, Aug. 4.

Nothing I have ever witnessed has given me so much pleasure and afforded me so great an opportunity to profit as the exhibit in Agricultural hall. The numerous designs and figures executed with such artistic taste are simply gorgeous, and their name is legion. The eye is never satiated for the reason that the variety in execution is endless. Grains and seeds and grasses from every part of the earth are interwoven and intermixed so prettily, and colors are blended so harmoniously, that a day spent in this building revails only a fraction of its many attractive features. Nor are all the displays of agriculture made here, for in the Horticultural building and in many of the State buildings are exhibits that are individually worth the price of many admissions, and among these the charming display in the looked or forgotten.

among these the charming display in the Illinois State building should not be overlooked or forgotten.

There is so much to be seen in so short a time by visitors at the fair that a systematic course of action should be adopted. I would advise readers who are coming to obtain information freely from the Columbian guards, who may be seen in any part of the grounds and in all the buildings. They will courteously instruct all who approach them for guidance. After entering the grounds at any point find your way to the Old Times Distillery building and obtain a map of the grounds which is distributed free to all visitors. It will save many an unnecessary step and enable everyone to locate the buildings on the grounds more readily than they could otherwise do. Next proceed to the terminus of the Intraumural Railway, near the Krupp gun exhibit and spend 10 conts for a ride around the grounds on an electric railway, from which an excellent view is obtained. Near the terminal station is the Canadian head quarters, and, after registering there, vieit the various buildings in any order desired, consulting the map daily until you have mastered the situation and made it possible to visit any part of the grounds without getting lost. If you bring your sweetheart with you stick closer to her than a brother or you'll lose her, and in such an event the biggest kind of a cow bell would not enable you to find her in a month.

I have spoken only of the display of kind of a cow but the kind of a cown the find her in a month.

I have spoken only of the display of agricultural productions. Besides this other immense and interesting displays are other immense in the Machinery and Transto be found in the Machinery and Transportation buildings. The Art Galleries cover an immense area, and it requires an endless amount of endurance to see the world's finest paintings and sculpture in its two hundred rooms. The Mining, Electricity, Fisheries and United States Government buildings cannot be appreciated unless they are seen and frequently visited. The Manufactures and Liberal Arts building alone covers 30 acres, and a week may be spent within its walls before its cosily and rare attractions can all be seen. The World's Fair is surely an unqualified success.
