

SPILLING THE BEANS

NAWTHIN' TO IT!

"THE BEST BASEBALL STORY I EVER HEARD"

BY WALTER JOHNSON.

"The Greatest Pitcher in America."

Being a resident of Kansas, it is natural the funniest baseball tale I ever heard should have its setting in that state.

The incident dates back seven or eight years, and an umpire played the leading role. I wasn't a big leaguer when the stunt was pulled, and didn't appreciate the affair as I do now.

If my memory serves me correctly, Independence and Parsons were playing. Two games were played on the Fourth of July, in the latter city. The umpire in the morning game was Gorman. Around him centered the trouble of the morning.

That Gorman didn't like the way the fans treated him was proved when he didn't show up for the afternoon game. I am told he never held an indicator in another game, his lone experience causing him to lose any love he might have had for the job.

At the end of the ninth the score was a tie and the crowd was wrought up over the extra inning. Neither club scored in the tenth. In the first of the eleventh Independence got a man as far as third with two down, and the next batter hit a ball to deep short.

The umpire's first impression, as well as decision, was that the batter was safe and that Independence had put over the run that looked big enough to win the game.

The captain and manager of the home team, seeing that the umpire had waved the batter safe, made a rush for the official. All the Parsons players followed. About this time Umpire Gorman was thinking how much pleasanter it would be back with the old folks. Seeing the home athletes on the rush, he proclaimed the batter out.

The home team halted, but Independence took up the charge. In a minute Gorman was giving an imitation of a rear brakeman on a freight train, alternately making motions that he had declared the runner out and safe.

The crowd then took up the affair and started to make things pleasant for Gorman. About this time the official took it on the run, beating the crowd to safety by a good margin.

After reaching his hotel Gorman telephoned the ball park, got the manager of the home team on the phone and informed him that he had called the runner out and that the run didn't score.

I am sure this is the only case on record where the umpire telephoned his decision. And it stood. The contest was declared a tie, and played over.

A new umpire worked in the afternoon game.

LONDON PRESS SEES GREAT WAR

Nothing Can Now Avert a General Struggle in the Balkans.

GREATER PERIL LOOMS

European Capitals Fear That Austria and Russia Will Be Drawn Into War.

[Canadian Press.] New York, Oct. 15.—A London cable says:

The Daily Chronicle's Constantinople correspondent just before midnight that the ministers of the Balkan States had demanded their passports from the Ottoman Government.

Austria has issued an official communique, stating that she will not interfere in the Balkan States, but will not permit the Balkan States to annex any part of it, which may lead to complications between Russia and Austria.

Lord Morley announced in the House of Lords yesterday that the negotiations between Italy and Turkey have taken an unfavorable turn.

Consols yesterday reached the lowest point in years, 72½.

The Turkish troops, having attacked the Servians near Ristovatz and the Bulgarians at Chuklen, the London press this morning declares that nothing can avert war.

The Morning Post says: "It seems as if nothing can prevent the flames from spreading all over the Balkans. The replies at this late hour, but formidable though these dangers may ultimately be, they do not warrant the frenzied alarm of the financial circles in England or abroad. Small investors become frightened too soon."

The Daily Chronicle says: "War has been begun, but if the demands of the Balkan States had been enforced by the powers a month ago, peace and a reformed Macedonia would have resulted."

The Times says: "The prospective dangers of war are appreciated by the public even at this late hour, but formidable though these dangers may ultimately be, they do not warrant the frenzied alarm of the financial circles in England or abroad. Small investors become frightened too soon."

In Germany says the "Electrical Review" electrical apparatus and wires carrying high-voltage currents are marked by a warning sign consisting of a startlingly realistic lightning-bolt and the German word for "Danger."

The "Review" suggests that it might be well if the same warning emblem were adopted in America as a safeguard to all who may come near high voltage circuits or their supports.

BARTELL'S DEATH BEING INVESTIGATED

Taken Ill After Eating Sausage But Daughter Was Not Affected.

THE INQUIRY POSTPONED

Post-Mortem Said to Reveal Ptomaine Poisoning as Cause.

That ptomaine poisoning was actually the cause of death, is said to have been discovered by Drs. Reul and Bateson, when the autopsy was conducted on Monday afternoon on the remains of Leo Bartell, the Wilson avenue cigarmaker, who died Sunday night at St. Joseph's Hospital, an hour after being admitted in a delirious condition.

The inquest, ordered by Coroner Dr. Ferguson and Crown Attorney McKillop opened Monday evening in the undertaking parlors of Griffith & Willis, the evidence of Frank Bartell, of Detroit, brother of the deceased, and Mrs. Leo Bartell and her 11-year-old daughter, Rosezeffa, being taken. Mr. Frank Bartell, who is a cigar manufacturer in Detroit, merely gave his testimony as to identification.

Mrs. Bartell explained that on Saturday shortly before noon she purchased the sausage at the store of Mr. Wm. Mullins in West London. She was informed by the clerk that the sausages were fresh, and cooked them for use half an hour afterwards. The sausages appeared to her to be rather wet, and to overcome this difficulty she parboiled them before frying.

Becomes Violently Ill.

The meat then appeared to her to be of the ordinary variety, and comment was made as to the taste or odor afterwards. Twenty minutes after dinner Mr. Bartell complained that he felt rather dizzy, and was taken with spells of vomiting. Dr. U. E. Bateson was summoned and relieved his condition to such an extent that he attempted to walk down town. He returned within half an hour, however, again complaining. Mr. Bartell dozed during the night, and when he awoke in the morning stated that he did not feel any trouble at his stomach, but that his head bothered him. His condition rapidly gave way, and at noon he became delirious. In the evening he was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital in the police ambulance, and his death occurred there about an hour after he was admitted. He did not regain consciousness after his first lapse several hours earlier. When first stricken he stated that he did not think the sausage, agreed with him.

Daughter Not Affected.

Mrs. Bartell did not partake of the sausages, and neither did her youngest daughter, while the eldest girl, Rosezeffa, aged 11 years, ate two small pieces. After her father was taken ill she complained of a slight headache, but this passed off, and she lay down for half an hour. Rosezeffa testified last evening that her stomach was not affected in the slightest, and that her only trouble was a headache.

The jury then adjourned to hear the remainder of the evidence at the police station on Friday night. The jurors were Messrs. Wm. Wilcox, Fred Boyd, E. F. Walker, G. E. Turkey, John C. Schoff, Wm. Richmond, Percy Ashton, George Wilcox, E. H. Thompson and C. F. Reid (foreman).

According to Mr. George F. Morris, the effect that Mr. Bartell had always enjoyed excellent health, it is said that testimony showing that he had made frequent complaints to his friends during the past few months, will be offered.

ed at the adjourned session on Friday night.

Mr. Frank Bartell, who came to London yesterday, upon being informed of his brother's death, operates a cigar factory at 731 and 733 Medbury avenue, Detroit. He had arranged with Leo to enter into a partnership arrangement next spring.

The body had been embalmed before the post-mortem examination was conducted yesterday. The remains have now been forwarded to Detroit for interment in a Roman Catholic cemetery.
