FOR THE WOMAN OF TODAY

"We'll Ask Miss Grey,"
Is Everyone's Thought
When in Perplexity.

"A Woman Can Have a Beautiful Neck If She Will Pay as Much Attention to It as She Does to Her Face," Says Billie Burke.

You know how beautifully smooth the wearing of kid gloves at night, after you have rubbed them with cold cream, makes your hands. Well, the kid about your throat acts in the same way. It keeps your throat in a slight perspiration for hours.

You can take the end of a long kid glove that is worn out for this purpose. Always rub your throat from the chin back to the ears and from the chin down toward the bust and back to the armpits.

If you have a fat neck pick up little pieces of the flesh and roll it between your thumb and first fingers. Don't do this too strenuously, and after you have

MY
FRIEND

[BY BILLIE BURKE.]

Now has come the time when a girl shows even more of her throat than she has this summer, and she finds that it is tanned and ugly.

A very distinguished artist of my acquaintance, after glancing over an assemblage of women in evening dress, said: "I wonder why most women pay so much attention to their faces and so little to the remainder of their bodies?"

"Look about you," he continued, "and you will not see ten beautiful throats in this room, although, I will say that since the edict of fashion has been "no collars" there has been an improvement in the neck of the average woman."

It is harder work to take care of your throat than your face. Even if you patronize a beauty shop you will find that the operator only gives your throat the most superficial care while she expends a full hour on your face.

For the girl whose throat is scrawny and not smooth there is nothing better than to anoint it plentifully at night with cold cream and then pin a piece of kid gone over your whole throat in this manner with a cloth wet in spirits of camphor.

There is nothing better to whiten the throat than a pint of whey or sour milk. To this add a half-ounce of peroxide and ten drops of benzoin. You can add a little of your favorite perfume if you object to the odor of sour milk.

Don't think, however, that any of these remedies are worth anything if you only use them once or twice. Persistence in the use of a remedy means quite as much in the cure as does the remedy itself.

THE FISHERMAN AND HIS WIFE

AS TOLD BY AUNT GERTIE.

CHAPTER II.
"I should like to have a stone castle. This cottage is not nearly large enough. Go to the fish and ask him to give us a castle in which to live."

"But my dear wife," answered the fisherman, "he has already given us this nice cottage. We cannot ask for anything more."

"Yes, you can and must," said the wife. "Go!"

With a heavy heart, the fisherman started off toward the sea again. "Mr. Fish," he called for the second time, "Mr. Fish, come hither."

"This time the water looked blue and gloomy. But the fish appeared again.

not going to be bothered by his wife any more, she came to him and ordered him to go a third time to the fish.

"Why, what else can you possibly ask for?" asked the fisherman, in dismay. "I want to be king. I have the castle, but I haven't any power over the people who live around it. Go, ask the fish to make me king over his domain!"

"He will be very angry and, perhaps, kill me," cried the fisherman. "Go!" said the woman again.

This time as the fisherman drew near the water's edge it was overcast with curling waves and ridges of foam.

"Oh, Mr. Fish," he called, in a frightened voice. "Please come up once more."

"Well, what is the trouble now?" called the fish.

"Dear, dear," answered the fisherman, "my wife wants you to give us a stone castle to live in, Mr. Fish. She says the cottage isn't large enough."

"Go home, then," said the fish. "Your wife is in the stone castle already."

The fisherman went home and the fish disappeared under the water again.

"Now, wife, dear, you are very, very happy and can never want anything more surely," said the fisherman.

"Well, this is very nice," said the wife. "A few days afterwards, when the fisherman had just begun to think he was

"What can you want now?" said the fish.

"That wife of mine actually wants to be king now, Mr. Fish."

"Go home, then," said the fish. "She is king now."

With wide-open mouth and bulging eyes, the fisherman walked into the castle and found his wife sitting on a throne which was covered with precious stones. She wore a wonderful crown upon her head, and her subjects were kneeling at her feet.

"At last you have all that heart could desire," said the fisherman. "Not so fast, my dear husband," called the wife from her high throne. "I now intend to be emperor. It is a much higher office. Go and tell the fish."

"I refuse," said the fisherman. [To Be Continued.]

KATHERINE LESLIE'S HOME CHAT

THE BEAUTY DOCTOR'S RULES FOR THIN WOMEN AND GIRLS.

The woman who is thin and who desires to give herself the plumpness that has always something youthful in it, should eat frequently and regularly, says the Beauty Doctor. It is a good thing to take milk and eggs between meals as well as at meals. Milk made up partly of rich cream is, of course, much more fattening than thin milk. When heated very hot, but not to the boiling point, it is more effective than when taken cold. One can beat up an egg in it when taking it between meals, or take the egg raw. A glass of hot milk is very good taken just before going to bed, and also just after waking in the morning. The glass taken in the morning is especially good for a nervous stomach. It will frequently start the day well for those who find the morning a trying part of the day. Two quarts of milk are not too much taken during the day. Cream should be poured generously over cereals and puddings, and into coffee, if the coffee is a necessity. Chocolate or milk is better for those who are thin than coffee, but if coffee is taken it should be made in the French way, largely of hot milk with some additional cream. Chocolate is both nourishing

Problems of the Fair Sex Solved by Cynthia Grey

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn. No letters can be answered privately.]

Who Knows How?

Dear Miss Grey: Will you kindly tell me how to paint a home-made rag carpet; there is some kind of a filler to use, but I am not sure what it is.

And what is good to drive away the green lice off my house plants?

Thanking you in advance, I remain, A. A. A. CONSTANT READER.

A—1. I must confess that I do not know how this filler is prepared; have, in fact, never heard of it before. I wonder if any of our reading housekeepers can give the information?

2. You can purchase insecticide of various kinds at a florist's, but if you prefer to try a home remedy, soak a piece of tobacco in water for 24 hours; then drain off the liquid, dilute it until you think it will not injure the plant, and spray the under-side of the leaves or the parts most affected by the lice. In three hours give a second spraying with clear water. Do this three times a week for two or three weeks should destroy the pests entirely.

Canning Pumpkin.
Dear Miss Grey: Will you kindly tell me how to introduce a mother-in-law. Also, would like to know how to can pumpkin.

With thanks, T. G. J.

A—1. You may say, "Mrs. A. I should like to introduce my husband's mother, Mrs. J., of—"

2. Pumpkin must be sealed perfectly airtight when canned, or it will sour quickly. After cutting it up, scrape out the seeds, and pare, stew until tender; dash with the potato masher through a colander; reheat until boiling hot, and seal in sterilized jars. Add no seasoning until opened for use in pies.

Monogrammed Paper.
Dear Miss Grey—What is the proper way to date a monogrammed paper. Should one abbreviate the dates? JOLLY.

A—Monogrammed paper is often marred by dating at the top of the page, so it is much more elegant to add it after the signature and not abbreviate it.

Shortbread Recipe.
Dear Miss Grey—Please print a recipe for Scotch shortbread, the real old-fashioned kind.

A—Here is a recipe for the genuine sort: Melt five ounces of butter with two of granulated sugar. Warm slightly half a pound of finely-sifted flour; make a hollow in the middle of it and pour in the butter and sugar, working all together until they form a smooth paste, which should be rolled into a ball. Divide into two parts, putting one into the basin in which the butter was heated. Cover and keep it warm. Flatten the other piece into a round cake on a molding board dusted with flour. Pinch the edges of the cake for decoration, and pour with a marker. If desired, other decorations of comfits and candied peel may be added, but many prefer it plain. Prick the paste before putting it into a rather slow oven in buttered baking pan or sheet. Mold the second piece in the same way when the first has been gotten out of the way.

Royal Good Time at Y.W.C.T.U. Rally on Tuesday Evening

Large Number of Girls Attend and Joining Classes—To Grow Buds, Too.

The W. C. T. U. rooms at 432 Park avenue were the scene on Tuesday evening of a most informal and enjoyable gathering, when the members of the Y. M. C. T. U. held a rally, and some 80 young business-women of the city were present.

The guests were cordially welcomed by the "Y." president, Mrs. F. Y. Miller, and the evening rapidly passed in chorus singing and other amusements, the girls being made to feel thoroughly at home. The program of the occasion was contributed to most pleasantly by Miss Scarlett, soloist; Miss G. Newbury, elocutionist; and Miss McDonald, pianist.

Practical Classes.
Mrs. Harrison was present, and explained to the assembly the objects of the proposed classes in English, music, military and dressmaking, and invited the girls to join any class they desired. Fully fifty gave in their names, and as a number petitioned for a course in home-cooking, this instruction will be added also for the benefit of those who wish.

Eager For Buds.
During the evening, Mrs. Miller told the girls about the Flower Mission work carried on amongst the sick and shut-ins by members of the "Y." A number of hyacinth buds had been procured, and any girl who wished to take home one or two, for the use of the Flower Mission when they had bloomed might do so. There was such an eager demand for the buds that very few were left.

The rally was an unequalled success throughout, the visitors all voting the "Y." members and their president, queens in the art of entertaining. The classes start next week.

LUNCHEON FOR MRS. ARTHUR SMITH.
Mrs. Arthur Smith, of this city, first president of the Lord Roberts Chapter, and also of Municipal Chapter, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, was the guest of honor at a luncheon tendered yesterday at the Hunt Club by Mrs. Ernest Smith, the present president, and other members of Lord Roberts Chapter.

Which Is Read First?

What department of your daily paper do you first turn to as the boy leaves it on your doorstep, day after day? If the question were put to ten people to answer, it is quite safe to say that from each one you would receive a different answer. One would say "the front page stories," another "the sports," still another would plead guilty to looking at the cartoons first of all. The businessman probably consults the market upon opening up his paper; or if he advertises (and what real businessman does not?) will likely turn to see that his advertisement is in proper place, and correctly printed. Cynthia Grey's column has its devotees among readers of the fair sex, and doubtless there are not a few who eagerly scan the serial story each night, even before reading the news.

But perhaps there is no section of the daily newspaper so intently studied as the "weather indications." In fact it is safe to say that seven out of every ten people never miss reading the "probs," not only to see what the weather is going to be "today," but also, what it is prophesied to be "tomorrow." And we hear another sigh as she hands the paper over to father. "Well, I guess that shopping trip will have to wait till next week. The paper says it is going to be rain, and sleet tomorrow." Or, perhaps, the young folks grumble, "It's no use planning the picnic for Tuesday, because the weather man says 'cloudy and cool,' and so it goes on.

Old Weather Proverbs.

But how many of us know how to read the weather signs for ourselves? Dr. W. J. Humphreys, of the United States Weather Bureau, says everyone ought to realize the importance of weather signs, and weather proverbs, and just to help folks out, he gives a few of the old sayings, popular in the day of our grandfathers.

Here's one about the direction of the wind:

"When the smoke goes west,
Gude weather comes fast.
When the smoke goes east,
Gude weather comes cast.
When the wind's in the south,
The rain's in its mouth;
The wind in the west,
Suits everyone best."

The moon, of course, comes in for a share of Dr. Humphreys' attention. He finds many proverbs and rhymes connecting moon and weather, thus:

"The bigger the ring, the nearer the wet;
When the wheel is far, the storm is far;
When the wheel is n'ar, the storm is near."

"Clear moon
Frost soon."

Regarding the sun, a familiar proverb is: "A red sun has hot water in his eye," and this couplet:

"If red the sun begins his race,
Be sure the rain will fall apace."

This famous indication is given us by Shakespeare:

"A red morn ever yet betokened
Wreck to the seaman, tempest to the field,
Sorrow to the shepherds, woe unto the birds,
Gusts and foul flaws to herdsmen and to herds."

TIT-BITS

THE SUFFRAGETTE'S DILEMMA.
I shall not vote for Mrs. Brown. I do not like her, and she is a bad mother.

And I remember well the days I got from Clara Brown. Jeannine Patterson Macree shall get no vote of mine. A horrid, stuffy thing is she.

And also I decline To vote for Anastasia Bunce. I fairly boil with rage When I recall that more than once She lied about my age.

And Mabel Jones and Agnes Carr And Clementina Ball I'll scratch because they never are At home the days I call.

At home the days I call. I cannot vote, you understand, For Angelina Pratt, Because she isn't stylish, and She wears a last year's hat.

Oh, goodness me! That brings me through The list. This ballot's small. There's no one left. What shall I do? I cannot vote at all! —Springfield Union.

When a man brings home a couple of new magazines, or a box of candy, for his wife, she may safely feel assured that he either has a confession to make, or is about to announce a little week-end frolic with "the boys."

Our ideal of a sweet-tempered girl is one who can actually smile with-out bitterness when her dearest enemy flaunts one of those new chinchilla coats beside her own three-year-old jacket.

Canadian Women

The W. C. T. U. and Local Council of Women, with other women's organizations of Regina, are endeavoring to have a police-matron appointed in that city.

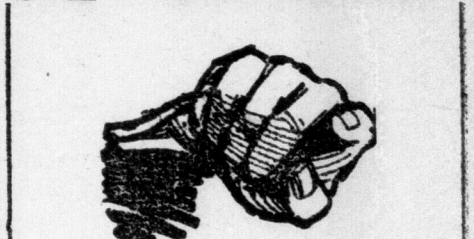

Ladies of Guelph, Ont., have been busy preparing a bazaar sale in aid of the Elliott Home there. A unique feature of the affair is that a Guelph man has offered them a dollar for every dollar realized during the sale, which opened this morning.

A cooking demonstration by some of the members present was given at the close of the regular monthly meeting of Kingsville Women's Institute.

Dr. Stephen Leacock, of Montreal, addressed the Women's Guild of Christ Church Cathedral Monday afternoon on "Social Reform in the Coming Century."

Mrs. Smith, M. D., of Verashoye, Ont., who was for some years engaged as a medical missionary in India, addressed the annual thanksgiving meeting of the Gordon Mission of Knox Presbyterian Church, Stratford, Miss M. Johnston, of that city, is president.
