DOMINION DAY.

Thirty-five years ago, four provinces—Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia—entered into a confederation and there was formed what is now called the Dominion of Canada. Since, there have been added the provinces of Prince Edward Island, Manitoba, British Columbia and the North West Territories, together forming a compact and progressive state.

To-morrow Canadians observe the anniversary of Confederation and with peace and plenty within our borders have good cause for rejoicing and acknowledging their thanks to those early Fathers, who, in the face of great opposition wrought for a union of the scattered provinces and succeeding, laid the foundation upon which a solid and substantial national structure is being erected.

The census of 1871, the first Confederation after in 1867, showed that there were 3,485,761 persons in the Dominion. That of 1901 accorded the country a population of 5,371,051, an increase of about two millions in thirty years. Not a big increase when the resources and the desirability of the Dominion as a field for settlement are considered. Yet when it is remembered that the past thirty-five years mark a period of remarkable growth, development, and prosperity in the United States, which has drawn tens of millions of immigrants from Europe and a million from Canada itself, this young country has not done so badly even in the matter of population, and its quality makes up for quantity.

Turning to what Canada has accomplished as a nation since 1867, and the picture is most pleasing. Then our imports, entered for consumption, totalled $71,985,806 and the exports, which were the products of Canada, $48,504,899. For 1901, those imports had increased to $181,237,948 and the exports to $177,431,886. The revenue of the country has increased from $13,687,928 to $52,514,701. The number of miles of railway has grown from 2,269 to 18,294 miles.

In the first year of Confederation there were $204,588 in post office savings bank and now there are $39,950,813 on deposit, attesting the prosperity and thrift of Canadian citizens.

In Confederation year there were 3,638 post offices in the country. Now there are 9,884. At that time 18,000,000 letters were mailed in a year. Now 191,650,000 are sent. The net debt of the Dominion is $268,480,004 and represents the outlay for aiding the construction of a national highways from ocean to ocean, the building of canals on the great lakes and of public works on the country over. The Dominion may now be said to be well set up and ready for business.

In fact the Dominion has not yet had its inning. This is to come. When it does there will be a good score made. At present every province in Confederation is prospering and it would be difficult to say which is the most in the public eye. Nova Scotia coal and steel are known all over the continent; Quebec's pulp wood lands supply paper for many foreign markets; Manitoba's wheat settles from Europe and the United States; the mines of British Columbia and the Yukon have been proven to be rich in valuable ores and have drawn capitalists and miners from every quarter. Ontario, queen among the seven sister provinces, is the great workshop of the Dominion and has the natural resources to enable her to supply nickel, steel, paper and a dozen other manufactured products to the biggest markets of the world, as well as make almost every article required by the Canadian people.

The Land of the Maple has a good future before it and the next thirty-five years should witness a great growth. Much of course depends upon ourselves. If we exhibit faith in the country and back it up with our energy and our means, the result will be surprising and beneficial. The motto of the country should be "Canada for Canadians" and there should be no looking to London or Washington for aid. Let the men at the head of affairs cultivate a national spirit of self-reliance and exhibit enterprise and all will be well.

In Canada, as a Canadian poetess puts it:

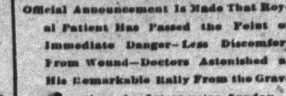

"As yet the waxen mould is soft, the opening page is fair; 'Tis left for those who rule us now to leave their impress there—The stamp of true nobility, high honor, stainless truth; The earnest quest of noble ends; the generous heart of youth; The love of country, soaring far above dull party strife; The love of learning, art, and song; The crowning grace of life; The love of science, soaring far through Nature's hidden ways; The love and fear of Nature's God—a nation's highest praise."

KING EDWARD'S PROGRESS

His Majesty's Physicians All Say It is Most Satisfactory.

Official Announcement is Made That Royal Patient Has Passed the Point of Immediate Danger—Less Discomfort From Wound—Doctors Attentive at His Remarkable Rally From the Grave—(Continued—An Interesting Sunday.)

London, June 29.—King Edward's physicians announced at twenty minutes of ten to-night that the Royal patient's progress was entirely satisfactory. No further bulletins will be issued to-night.

The King Feels stronger.
London, June 29.—(9.06 a.m.)—The following bulletin regarding the condition of King Edward was issued at Buckingham Palace at 9 o'clock this morning: "The King feels stronger, in spite of some discomfort from the wound. Nothing has occurred to disturb the satisfactory progress the King is making. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow."

Local Discomfort decreased.
London, June 29.—The bulletin posted at Buckingham Palace at four o'clock this afternoon said the King's progress was in every way satisfactory, and that the local discomfort had decreased.

Saturday's Bulletin
London, June 28.—The following bulletins on the King's condition were issued at the hours named from Buckingham Palace to-day:

10.45 a.m.—"The King had a good night and his improved condition is maintained. We are happy that we are able to state that we consider His Majesty to be now out of immediate danger and the general condition is satisfactory. The operation and wound, however, still needs constant attention and such concern as attaches to His Majesty's condition is connected with the wound. Under the most favorable conditions His Majesty's recovery must of necessity be protracted. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow, Smith, Laking."

6 p.m.—"The King passed a very comfortable day and his progress continues to be quite satisfactory. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow."

11 p.m.—"The King passed a comfortable day and his strength has been well maintained. The wound occasionally causes discomfort. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow."

Removed to a Couch.
London, June 28, 4.50 p.m.—The King was removed from his bed to a couch this afternoon, earlier than expected, and was placed in a sitting posture. He was feeling decidedly better.

ASTONISHED THE DOCTORS.

His Majesty Has Shown Wonderful Elasticity of Constitution.

London, June 30.—There is no reason to doubt that the King has astonished his physicians by his remarkable rally from the grave operation performed on him. Such confidence shown wonderful elasticity of constitution and a high recuperative power, such as are usually found in a man of his age.

His Majesty's progress thus far tends to discredit entirely the idea generally held that his manner of life had drained his store of vitality. It is unreasonable, of course, to jump at the conclusion of the British public that his complete recovery will be unassailable for a considerable time yet, and we have not been told officially whether a second operation is imperative after his strength has been fully restored.

Never Watches Outside.
Saturday night passed with less incident, and there were fewer watchers outside Buckingham Palace than any other night since the operation. The public apparently having accepted the official announcement that King Edward has passed the point of immediate danger.

The bulletin issued yesterday morning at 9 o'clock was not expected until 10 o'clock, consequently the few persons who were passing the palace were the only ones who saw the monarch. When the footmen had posted the notice, however, the crowds soon increased, early churchgoers stopping to read the latest news and passing with expressions of thankfulness.

Day of Intercession.
Sunday has again been a day of intercessional services for the recovery of King Edward throughout the Kingdom. In the morning a vast crowd of the general public gathered at St. Paul's Cathedral. Besides these, there were present a representative gathering of Government and military officials and uniformed colonial officers. The Duke and Duchess of Connaught, and the children, Lord and Lady Louise, sat in the front of the choir. An impressive service was conducted by the Bishop of Stepney, the Right Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, and at its conclusion, the whole audience sang "God Save the King."

At Marlborough House Chapel.
Queen Alexandra, the Prince of Wales, and almost all the other members of the royal family now in London, attended a similar morning service in Marlborough House Chapel, while there was a large gathering of peers and peeresses at a service held at noon in the Chapel Royal at St. James' Palace.

Sir Francis Knollys, the King's Private Secretary, the Right Hon. Sir Dighton MacNaughton, Prob. Keeper of the Privy Purse and Extra Equerry to the King, and almost the entire royal household, attended the services in Marlborough House Chapel, and the Queen, who had been seriously left the precincts of Buckingham Palace since the King was stricken, received a most sympathetic greeting. The public was delighted with such evidence of the King's continued improvement.

Where Mr. Wilford Attended.
Throughout the United Kingdom all religious denominations made similar intercessions for the Sovereign's recovery. Merry Del Val, the Papal Envoy to the coronation of King Edward, conducted a service in the Brompton Oratory yesterday afternoon, his congregation including Sir Wilford and Lady Laurier and other Canadians.

Palace Looks Gay.
Buckingham Palace was a gay appearance yesterday than for a week past, and the constant coming and going of royalty and streams of carriages bore testimony to the feeling of increased confidence that the King would recover. In the afternoon a party of princesses drove to Sheen House, Richmond, and the Prince and Princess of Wales paid a long visit to Buckingham Palace. Last evening the Queen and the Royal ladies dined within sight of the public through the windows in front of the palace. Thousands of people being gathered in the space in front of the building.

Again Transferred to Couch.
The King yesterday was again successfully transferred from his bed to a couch. The King, who has commanded that the Prince and Princess of Wales shall represent their Majesties at the India Office reception to be held July 4.

The King is rapidly getting better, and the moment, therefore, seems most appropriate for public rejoicing. As chairman of the boules committee, I suggest that bonfires, throughout the country be lighted Monday night.

THE CORONATION.

An Invitation From Queen Alexandra indicates Event in September.
London, June 30.—A despatch to the Daily Mail from Copenhagen says that Queen Alexandra has indicated the coronation of King Edward to return to London the end of September for the coronation of the King.

COLONIAL REVIEW.

Canadian Troops to Be on Parade Tuesday and Wednesday.
London, June 30.—No body of men were more keenly disappointed over the postponement of the coronation than the Indian and colonial troops who have come from all ends of the world to take part in an historic event. The colonial premiers, with the hearty support of Mr. Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, have now arranged, to the great delight of these troops, that an Indian and colonial review shall be held at the Horse Guards Parade on Tuesday and Wednesday next. Representatives of every Indian regiment are now here, including the Sikhs, Gurkhas and Feroes. With them will be the Canadian, Australian, New Zealand Maoris, the Hong Kong pig-tailed sappers, the barefooted Fijians and the fair, white, yellow, black and brown soldiery of every clime.

Queen Alexandra, as at Aldershot, will take the salute. The Duke of Connaught, the Prince of Wales, the Indian native rulers, the colonial premiers and other distinguished visitors will be present. The men even hope they may march up the Mall, past Buckingham Palace to be seen by the King, but herein they are foredoomed to disappointment. The holding of the review, of course, depends entirely on the state of the King's health.

Tribute From France.

Paris, June 30.—Gen. de Giffart, the ex-Minister of War, has written to the Journal Des Debats an extremely sympathetic letter on King Edward, which concludes: "We cannot forget what he did during the Franco-Prussian war in helping our sick and wounded. To him, by the way, I am sure, we should remain grateful. Moreover, whenever it was a question of good and noble action he, as Prince of Wales, was always powerfully seconded by the most charming and charitable of women. In this domain she reigned long before she became Queen Alexandra, the pearl of England."
