under Colonel Macdonell in Canada was the taking of Ogdensburg at a critical moment, and

The work of devastation had been success-fully carried on in the Highlands. Many a happy humble home, round whore fireside had sat the bravest of our soldiers, had been razed to the ground. The country in many places had become one vast waste, untenanted by human beings. A hardy race of renowned peasantry had been removed to make room for flocks and herds, more profitable to their grasping proprietors. Many of the Highlanders who had been ejected from their homes and setfled down in Glasgow to what seemed to them a most unnatural mode of gaining a livelihood. They were employed, for the most part, in the cotton factories They were utterly ignorant of English. Their good friend and pastor, the Rev. Alex. Macdonell, the first Catholic clergymen permanently stationed in Glasgow, who afterwards became Bishop of Kingston, Upper Canada, had often to act the part of interpreter between those sturdy Highlanders and their Lowland employers. About this time the Rev. Mr. Macdonell hired a storehouse, which he converted into a chapel (the only one then in (flasgow), but it was necessary to have two of the congregation always on guard at the entrance on Sunday. This somewhat improved condition of the Glasgow Highlanders did not last long. The distracted state into which war had thrown the Continent had caused a terrible disaster in trade. The poor Highlanders were the first to be thrown out of employ. They wandered all over the country to Protestants. The emigrants saw the immi-seek the means of livelihood, and not a few of nent danger to which their children would be the more humane Highland proprietors were the more humane Highland proprietors were the more humane Highland provision might abandoned our hills and glens, the homes of the more built that provision might abandoned our hills and glens, the homes of be made for those poor people if a Catholic regiment could be raised under a Catholic commander, and with a Catholic priest for its must move again, and under the protection of chaplain. The experiment was a bold one. A similar offer has been made to the Government some years before, and declined. How-ever, a meeting of some influential Catholic their fathers. One old matron, Mary Macleod Highland proprietors was held at Fort Augus- | was her name, a mother in that Celtic Israel, tus, at which it was unanimously resolved to express their gratitude to the Government for the indulgence recently granted to the Catho-lic body, and to make the offer of raising a said, " we may find a happy home, and raise Catholic regiment for his Majesty's service on Crois Christa, the Cross of Christ, and under certain conditions. The Highland dress was the patronage of the Mother of God in years to be adopted as the uniform of the regiment. to come there shall spring from our descen-Macdonell of Glengarry was proposed as the Major-Commandant. The regiment should consist of ten companies, each company of woman spoke truly of her descendants, five fifty-seven men, with the usual complement of officers and non-commissioned officers to be nominated by the Major. The meeting further expressed its regret that the urgency of the case had not allowed the Highland gentlemen time to communicate with their Catholic brethren in the Lowlands, but it directed that the report of their proceedings should be circulated among them as an invitation to cooperate with the movement. The minutes were signed by John Fletcher, Esq., of Dunans | the " faith of our fathers " in the land of their (the father of the present Lady Gordon of Drimnin), who, together with the Rev. Alex. Macdonell, the missionary in Glasgow, was the life and soul of the movement. The same two repaired to Edinburgh and there waited on the Lord-Advocate as deputies from the meeting. Afterwards the deputation proceeded to London, and was soon followed by Glengarry himself. There they found the Lord-Advo-cate and his uncle Henry Dundas, the Home Secretary, who presented the address of the meeting to his Majesty. Some days were required for a final answer and some difficulties were made. At last the Secretary of State in-formed the deputation that his Majesty viewed with much approbation this proof of the them." loyalty of his Catholic subjects in Scotland, but that under existing circumstances he felt it necessary to decline their offer. The deputies notwithstanding persevered in their application. They obtained an interview with Henry Dundas, who listened patiently to the Library at Washington, has completed a Nasposition of their views with regard to the | tional Catalogue of Medical Literature, which Highland emigration. Ten days elapsed, and he invited them to another interview, at the needed appropriation. It contains over which he received them with great politeness and after some further discussion gave them hopes of obtaining the command of a fencible regiment for the young Highland chief. The secret history of the refusal is curious. The graphy, entitled Index Medicus, which will then Duchess of Gordon was opposed to it because her son, the Marquis of Huntly, was ing medical journals and transactions in raising a regiment at the time, and as the English and other languages. It will be pubmajority, of his dependants were Catholics lished by F. Leypoldt. they would doubtless have preferred to enlist in a Catholic regiment. Another Highland proprietor, Sir James (Frant, was opposed to the scheme for the same reason. Glengarry with his faithful companions Mr. Fletcher, of Dunans, and the Rev. Mr. Macdonell, ultimately obtained their regiment, and recruited it partly from the Glasgow outcast Highlanders, and partly from the Highlands proper. The Rev. Mr. Macdonell was nominated chaplain of the regiment by a singular evasion of the existing laws. The regiment recom-mended itself to the authorities by volunteering for service in any part of Great Britain or Ireland. Several other Scotch regiments had refused to go on service even into England. In the year 1798 the Glengarry Fencibles were employed in Ireland during the Rebellion. The chaplain did all in his power to soften the rigours of military law in favour of the unfortunate rebels. When the yéomanry cavalry had too often converted chapels into stables, the Rev. Mr. Macdonell insisted on their being restored to their pro-per use. When the wars were over the Glengarry Fencibles were disbanded, and many of the men were ugain reduced to extreme poverty. Those who had joined the corps from the Highlands found that complications of various sorts had arisen during their absence respecting their lands and holdings at home, and, in point of fact, that they had no homes to return to. Here was again another opportunity offered to their beloved pastor for the exercise of his zeal and charity in behalf of his clansmen. He did not refuse the task, but manfully grappled with the difficulty until he overcame it. He applied for, and obtained a grant of many thousand acres of land, and forthwith promoted an emigration to Upper Canada, and even accompanied the emigrants himself across the Atlantic. After spending many years of missionary life among them he was raised to the Bishopric of Kingston, and finally returned to his native land to die. His death took place in the priest's house at Dumfries in the year 1840. When the Americans invaded Canada on the declaration of war in 1812, the Glengary Fencibles were again organized. Colonel Macdonell, through his own influence with his clan, supported by that of their pastor, Bishop Macdonnell, raised the regiment among his clansmen, and in this way the Colonel was partially : reinstated in his command of the Glengarry regiment. We say partially; because the conditions that were made with Colonel Macdon- is said to have been so great that 300 persons nell when he raised the regiment were not could find room, within its trunk ! fulfilled; and the command of the regiment, almost immediately after it was raised, was transferred to a Protestant and an Orangeman, which caused a mutiny, which was suppressed | but sometimes very fatal to him; for when the with difficulty: It must be borne in mind Arctic whalers are boiling down seal or whale. that the adhesion of the Catholic Macdonnells | blubber the bearscents the sayoury odourfrom went: far to determine: the attitude of the afar and will follow the line for immense dis-French Canadians also. quite contrary to orders, an act which had the effect of diverting the American attack on Upper Canada at a moment when it was utterly undefended. The assault was made under circumstances of the utmost difficulty : dcep snow impeded the assailants at every step, and the American marksmen from behind their fences kept up a heavy fire ; but the gallantry of the brave Highlanders overcame every obstacle, and the fort was carried with eleven guns, all its stores, and two armed University institutions of that country should schooners in the harbour. Thus it was that the Highlanders saved Canada for the British Government, as a small return for having allowed mean and greedy proprietors to turn them out from the homes of their ancestors. As Ogdensburg was a frontier town on the American side of the St. Lawrence, Sir, G. Prevost authorised payment for any plunder by the troops, but Colonel Macuonell received a certificate from the inhabitants stating that they had not lost a single shilling, which must be recorded to the credit of the Glengary High-landers under his command. After the war was over they labored hard for many years until, like the Acadians, by industry and perseverance they had converted the primeval forest of that wild country into flourishing fertile field and green meadow. They were beginning to be very happy in a temporal point of view. But many of them had removed so far into the country as to be entirely out of the reach of their priest. This to them was a great sorrow. Moreover, the surrounding country was being rapidly occupied by our Catholic ancestors, if we are to become Protestants here in the wilderness. No! we Heaven, and the guidance of our Mother, the Star of the Sea, we will seek other lands where was especially impatient. She constantly repeated to her sons and daughters that there are priests, and one, the child of her daughter Una, the venerable Archbishop Colin Francis Mackinnon, was until recently the spiritual ruler of the Gael in Arichat, Antigonish and Cape Breton. The good old woman lived to a great age, and saw her children's children to the fourth generation. These are the people of whom Catholic Highlanders boast, and with good reason, and we feel sure that they will not be behindhand in aiding the revival of ancestors. A. P. ### DESPATCHES.

LONDON, February 19.-The Fellows of Royal College of Physicians yesterday re-solved that the Bovernment ought to appoint a Royal Commission of eminent statesmen, medical men and specialists to investigate the plague.

Dr. Butt intends to move in the House of be so arranged that Irishmen of all religious persuasions should be able to obtain the benefit of degrees and the advantages of a University education without compromise of their religious convictions, and that in order to accomplish this object legislation on the subject is absolutely necessary."

It is stated that 70 members of Parliament, many Liberals and some Conservatives will support Dr. Butt's motion with regard to University education in Ireland.

CHICAGO, February 19.—Bishop Foley dicd his morning. The funeral will take place in this city on Friday. The remains are to be taken to Baltimore. Bishop Foley's last words were to Vicar-General McMullen : "I appoint you administrator. I have tried to do my duty. I bow to the will of the Al-mighty God." He bequeaths his personal property to his successor.

Last night Harry Sharpe, of Houston, Tex. spoke in the Workingmen's Lyceum on the subject of co-operative colonies as a remedy ov for the hard times. His project is to organize los the poor people in this city into bodies of about one thousand persons each, and to the settle them on 50,000 acres of land in Texas, gr capitalists finding means by advancing $10 per acre on the bonds, secured by mortgage m in on the entire State.

LONDON, February 19.—The chartered steamers from London, with a battalion of the 60th Regiment, and from Southampton with the Highlanders, sail to-day and to-morrow respectively. Several other ships will be ready for troops during the present week. A steamer is expected at Queenstown pri this week to embark volunteers. The last to sail of the fifteen chartered transports will probably be the steamers "Egypt," "Spain," "France" and "England," which are to carry cavalry regiments.

CAPETOWS, January 29 .-- Col. Wood's column was attacked January the 24th, by 4,000 Zulus. The enemy were dispersed with but tritling loss to Wood's command. Several attacks on Pearson's column and other columns have been repulsed, but the gravity of the situation has not been exaggerated. The enemy are concentrating towards Ekawe, where Pearson is entrenched. A grand at-tack is daily expected. Wood is failing back to cover Utrecht.

VERSAILLES, February 20 .- In the debate in the Chamber of Deputies, to-day, on the Amnesty bill, M. Louis Blanc, maintained that amnesty should be plenaay. The great republic of the United States had, at the conclusion of the civil war, understood the true character of amnesty. If the Chamber refused to grant plenary amnesty, it must expect wide-spread agitation. M. Andrieux argued that plenary amnesty would cause disastrous reaction. Minister Leroyer said it was impossible to grant amnesty to those who boasted that they would revive the Commune, and gloried in their misdeeds. He denied that the majority of the public favored plenary amnesty. He appealed to the Chamber not to refuse the Government its confidence. BERLIN, February 20.-In view of the indifference by Ministers relative to the arrest of Fritzsche and Hasselman, great indignation was expressed that an interior police agent should thus be able to affront the Reichstag, and waste its time with such a request. The debate, however, was calm. The principal speech, by Herr Lasker, charged that the Emperor having summoned all the members

The Cotton Trade.

A bill is before the United States Senate which, if passed, will affect our cattle trade as soon as the English embargo on cattle sailing from American ports has been re-moved. The bill is for the purpose of preventing cruelty to animals in transit. Animals are to be loaded in comfortable cars, fed once every seven hours, and unloaded once every twenty-four hours. The railroad companies are to see that the requirements of the Act are complied with if the owners of the animals neglect them. No cattle are to be received from the Canadian lines which have not been provided with food, water, and rest during the preceding twenty-four hours. The Bill was brought up last session, but then failed to pass.

Wheat Growing in England.

It would seem that the time must come, and that very soon, when English farmers will have to give up all idea of growing wheat for profit. Messrs Thos. Scott and H. Savory, exceptionally two good authorities on the subject, have been making in-vestigations, and they both state that wheat-raising by English farmers with the present prices must prove unremun-erative. Mr. Savory, who is the most pro-nounced in his opinion, after making a careful summary of the costs of production, shows that in order to pay back to the farmer his outlay in seed, labour, manure cartage, &c, the wheat must net him at least £2 8s per quarter, while the average price of wheat in England during the past four months has been only £2 per quarter. In other words, the English producer has, this season, lost one shilling per bushel on all the grain that he has raised, and as this has amounted to more than 80,000,000 bushels when the United Kingdom is taken into account, the outgo to the farmer must have been sufficiently large to cause him to look toward the future with serious misgivings.

" Do it! He fixed himself in position and aimed at a tree in front of him. The ball hit the tree, caromed, hit the corner of a house, caromed, struck a lamp post, caromed and flew behind Tom and nipped the button off as slick | PLANING, as a whistle. You bet he did it !"

" That was fine shooting."

"Yes, but I've seen Tom Potter beat it I've seen him stand under a flock of wild pigeons, billions of them coming like the wind, and kill 'em so fast that the front of the flock never passed a given line but turned over and fell down, so that it looked like a land of feathery Niagara. Tom did it by having twenty-three breach-loading rifles and a boy to load 'em. He always shot with that kind." " And you say you saw him do this kind of shooting ?"

"Yes, sir, and better than that too. Why, I'll tell you what I have seen Tom Potter do. I saw him once set up an Indian-rubber target at 300 feet and hit the bull's eye twenty-seven times a minute with the same ball! He would hit the target, the ball would bounce back right into the rifle barrel just as Tom had clapped in a fresh charge of powder, and so he kept her going backward and forward until at last he happened to move his gun and the bullet missed the muzzie of the barrel. It was the biggest thing I ever saw; the very biggest-except

" What was that ?"

one.

"Why, one day I was out with him when he was practising, and it came on to rain. Tom didn't want to get wet, and we had no umbrella, and what do you think he did?" " What ?'.

" Now, what do you think the man did to keep dry?"

"I can't imagine." "Well, sir, he got me to load his weapon for him, and I pledge you my word, although it began to rain hard, he hit every drop that come down, so that the ground for about eight feet around was as dry as punk. It was boautiful, sir—beautiful." And then the company rose up slowly and passed out one by one, each man eyeing Ab-iner, and looking solemn as, he wont by and when they had gone Abner looked queerly for a moment, and said to me :--"There's nothing I hate so much as a liar. Give me a man , who is a friend of the solid truth and I'll tie to him."
