The Outlines of Economics

By RICHARD T. ELY, Ph.D., LL.D., University of Wisconsin, Editor of this Series.

Professor Treub, of the University of Amsterdam, selected this text-book, after comparison with others in English, French, and German, for translation into Dutch; a translation into Japanese has also been made.

"The 'Outlines' contains splendid summaries of the subject-matter, questions, suggestive titles for essays, and a bibliography of the best writers of economics."—Journal of Education.

An Introduction to the Study of Agricultural Economics

By HENRY C. TAYLOR, M.S.Agr., Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Political Economy in the University of Wisconsin.

The factors of agricultural production and their economic properties are first studied; then the forces and conditions which determine the prices of agricultural products, and the principles to be followed in estimating the value or proper rent-rate of land and equipments.

The Economics of Distribution

By JOHN A. HOBSON, Author of "The War in South Africa: Its Causes and Effects."

The Political Science Quarterly declared this book a welcome addition to the literature of economic theory. "By its critical as well as by its constructive work it helps to force readers out of the deep rut in which Ricardian formulas have so long caused economic thought to run."

Economic Crises

By EDWARD D. JONES, Ph.D., Junior Professor of Economics and Industry, University of Michigan.
