Iwo Favorites Win-Salvator's Son Laurentian in the Running Race-Three Heats Which Did Not Vary 1-4 of a Second.

The big four days meet of the London Trotting and Racing Association began auspiciously at Queen's Park yesterday. The crowd, for an opening day, was large, and included a fair percentage of ladies. The union busses and special G. T. R. trains proved more than adequate for the conveyance of the crowd to and from the park. At the track everything passed off smoothly. The stands presented a striking scene, enlivened by the gay millinery of the ladies. In the paddock, where the bookmakers and poolsellers were at work, a restless crowd held forth, and greenbacks were plentiful. Throughout the betting was lively. At no time, however, was the crush around the bookies so great that anybody was turned away disappointed because he had to keep his money in his pocket. The weather was delightful, and the track in perfect condition. A stiff breeze down the stretch af-fected the speed of the races slightly, de not agree with Expert Engineer yet some fast time was made. St. George, owned by W. J. The running event tion, the opinion was expressed that aroused the greatest interest. Associaroused the greatest interest. Associated with it were memories of the famous struggle in New York between the world's champion, Salvator, and Tenny, "the little sway-back," when Salvator did a mile in 2:05, establishing a record that has never been broken. In yesterday race was Salvator's 3-year-old son Laurentian, who was an easy winner. In the 2:20 pace Arbutthe dam had been responsible to a large extent for the floods. A committee was appointed to wait on the commissioners, and ask them to defer building the dam for nine months, on the ground that the effect of the dam on the floods would be shown in that time. The Street Car Strike.

To the Editor of The Advertiser: I beg to write a few lines in regard to this present street railway strike, hoping that I will not take up too much space in your valuable paper. I am a disinterested party, and as I have read both sides of the story, I think it is my duty to give my opinion. I believe that the men's cause is a just one, and hope that they will not get discouraged in the struggle for justice.

To see some people trying to encourage slavery by patronizing the cars is amusing. The men have taken an honest and manly stand. It is plainly seen that the majority of the people in this city are with the men. This is shown beyond a doubt by those empty cars, the majority of them being empty which stroll along so forsaken looking. A very nice pair for $1.25 Those empty cars will not entice me to ride, nor any of my friends. I may further say that I never will ride nor now existing trouble is settled satisfactorily. I think the time has come when Trunks, Valises and Grips every man and women should play a prominent part in trying to bring about a settlement. The company is losing money daily, where, if it wished, it might settle all disputes in a few hours. I can't see, if the company are willing to deal fairly by their employes, why they will not recognize a union. It is the only support the employes have. When the company say that if they recognize the union the men would be running the road, I do not see how this could be done if there was a board of arbitra-tors chosen to act in case of disputes arising, as then the public would be convinced by the decision of the arbitrators. Again, when it says that they could not hire a man by asking him before training that after thirty days's service, if satisfactory to the company, to be a union man. I don't see any to be a union man. I don't see any trouble in that, as I am sure any honest laborer would feel pride in himself in belonging to a union, as then he would know that he was respected by his fellows, and if trouble came he would not be destitute of support.

I may say arbitration thus lets the company choose an arbitrator; the men choose one; these two choose a third-a disinterested party. All the men are asking for is a fair wage and to be treated as human beings. As regards that statement which came to light on Friday again, which says: "In force six months, or as long as any one of the employes are in its service," I do not believe in such a statement, and I don't think any fairminded man or woman would. think that employes should be bound to work year in and year out under the same rules and wages, whether satisfied or not! If such rules as this can be made law, then God help the laboring class! As the old saying is, "You must live with a person before you know what he is," such is the case with an agreement; it must be given a trial before known to be satisfactory. Why was six months mentioned if it was drawn for an indefinite period? I think the public are aware of the company's good intentions when a strike had to be threatened a few weeks after the agreement was signed, that justice might be meted out to them.

Again, in the sheet issued on Friday, Mr. Carr asks would a woman allow herself to be dictated to as to who to hire in her employ. Well, suppose the working girls of this city had a union, and they were united, and arbitration was used in times of dispute. Do the public think that if a woman had good intentions towards her employes and practiced the Golden Rule, that she would care whether her employes were union or non-union? But as there are so many girls friendless and homeless, and as a union makes them kin, don't you think that a Christian woman would do all she could for their union? Surely the working class are entitled to some pleasure. I admire the stand The Advertiser has taken in defending Canadian organized labor. J. M. SCOTT.
