"CHECKERS," A RACING PICTURE OF THRILLS, SPEED AND SURPRISES, AT PATRICIA ALL NEXT WEEK

One of Screen's Biggest Features, Adapted From Henry J. Blossom Jun.'s Great Melodramatic Play — Other Features For Fair Week Include Special Vaudeville Act, a Screen Magazine and an L-Ko Comedy.

"Checkers," the big racing melodrama of the screen, will be shown at the Patricia Theatre all next week.

Checkers was a race track tout with an inexhaustible fund of bright slang that represented the wisdom garnered through years of life among men. "Push" Miller was his constant companion and his greatest admirer.

Another guest at the hotel where Checkers was staying was Arthur Kendall. He had won the love of Alva Romaine years before, but now was anxious to break off with her. He chose the night of a gay party at her apartment to tell her of his purpose, and left her heartbroken and humiliated before her guests.

Kendall had proposed several times to Pert Barlow, a Southern beauty and daughter of Judge Barlow, owner of a racing stable. Kendall's constant state of indecision was noticed by Sadie Martin, a friend of Pert, who summoned Pert and her father by wire.

Pert, anxious to save Kendall from himself, turned to Checkers for aid. This proved to be the beginning of a friendship which speedily opened into love.

But Checkers' proposal of marriage and Pert's acceptance were short-lived by the arrival of Judge Barlow, who ordered Checkers off the premises after Checkers had knocked Kendall down in self-defense. Judge Barlow hustled Pert to her room and locked her in.

This complicated matters greatly, for Pert and Checkers had planned to enter Pert's horse Remorse in the big race at Silver Dollar, another entry—even borrowing $20,000 from Judge Barlow to increase his investment.

Meanwhile Alva Romaine had taken the downward path and had become a frequent visitor at Sam Wah's opium den.

Checkers helped Pert escape by night, while Push took Remorse from the stable. But they were quickly followed by Kendall and his hired thugs. Checkers and Pert gained the box car in which were Push and Remorse, by a tying leap from their automobile; but Kendall's henchmen got on the car by the same method and uncoupled it from the train. Then followed a terrific fight in the box car, which took fire as a lantern was overturned, narrowly escaped a head-on collision with the Limited, and then plunged through an open drawbridge into the river. All in the car managed to escape, however.

While the party was trying to find a place to hide Remorse in the city, they were trailed by Alva at Sam Wah's instigation. Remorse then was hidden in a secluded shack.

Kendall had his thugs kidnap Pert. She was taken to Sam Wah's den.

Checkers and Push learned Pert's whereabouts from a girl whom Checkers had rescued from an attack by ruffians. Checkers and Push rescued Pert after finding their way into Sam Wah's by a devious underground passage and after a terrific fight with Kendall, Checkers, Pert and Push escaped from Sam Wah's by way of a sewer, and rowed out into the East River in a dory from which they were picked up on signal by a passing seaplane, which took them to the Belmont track.

At the race track they found that Pert's jockey had been blinded by Kendall's jockey; but Pert herself got into uniform and rode Remorse to victory.

Kendall and Sam Wah fought over Alva, the struggle ending in the death of both and Alva's decision to reform.

All ended happily for Checkers and Pert, who were forgiven by Judge Barlow.

This thrilling photoplay will be shown all next week at the Patricia, three times daily, 2:15, 7 and 9, daylight time.

CELEBRATED ACTOR

IN PRINCIPAL ROLE

IN RACING PLAY

Thomas J. Carrigan Has Leading Part in "Checkers."

Thomas J. Carrigan, one of the best known actors on the screen or stage, celebrated his war release from the navy by re-entering the motion picture field. His first play is "Checkers," a big William Fox special, in which he plays the title role, and which is coming to the Patricia Theatre on Monday for a run of six days.

"Checkers" is taken from the racing melodrama of that name and was directed by Richard Stanton.

Mr. Carrigan has had a notable career. A year ago he played in the leading role in "Mother Carey's Chickens" at the Court Theatre in New York, and also played opposite Lionel Barrymore in "The Coppenhead."

For years Mr. Carrigan has had an enviable position among screen actors. For a while he left motion pictures and returned to the stage. He played with Edith Wayne Mathison in "The Dead-End" and was under the direction of David Belasco in "The Girl of the Golden West." He also played the lead in "Going Some" and was with Lew Fields in "The High Cost of Living."

Additional attractions presented on the same program will be a Century comedy, entitled "Loose Lions and Lonesome Hearts," and "The Great Western Four," a big time singing act.

Music's Re-Creation

ON 28th of April, 1916, Marie Rappold, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, stood on the stage of Carnegie Hall in New York beside a new invention lately perfected by Thomas A. Edison. She sang in direct comparison with this new instrument's reproduction of her voice, and the audience composed of twenty-five hundred music critics were unable to distinguish this great prima donna's living voice from its "Re-Creation" on the New Edison. Next day the New York Tribune said:
