FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE CARRIED BY IMMIGRANTS

U. S. Secretary of Agriculture
Says It Was Not Introduced
By Live Animals.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—That the outbreak of the foot and mouth disease now prevalent in several states was due to the importation into the United States of such animals as swine, with merchandise, or in the clothes or effects of immigrants, is the opinion of the Secretary of Agriculture. He gave this as the most plausible explanation in an appeal to-day to the house for an emergency appropriation of $200,000 needed by the department of agriculture to fight the disease.

It now seems clear that the present outbreak has its origin near Detroit, added the secretary, "and that the infection in the other states came thru that source." In view of the strict quarantine on imported animals, it does not seem possible that it would have been brought in with live animals.

METHODIST HERESY CASE AGAINST DR. WORKMAN

Appeals of Ex-Professor and Montreal Conference Both Disallowed.

Rev. Dr. Workman's appeal against his dismissal from the Wesleyan College, Montreal, on the ground of heretical teaching, was dismissed by the Methodist Council of Appeals last night. The court met at the Metropolitan Church at 7.30, Rev. Dr. Carman presided. Only the members of the court were admitted to the room. Rev. Dr. Workman, who had made a personal appeal, and Rev. E. R. Thomas, who presented an appeal on behalf of the Montreal Methodist Conference, awaited the judgment in the lecture hall. The points at issue were considered for several hours. At 11 o'clock Rev. Dr. Carman opened the committee room door and asked: "Are the litigants present?" Dr. Workman and Rev. Mr. Thomas were then admitted to the court, and were informed that the appeal on the personal issue, but the appeal on the heresy issue failed.

Rev. Dr. Carman said that a written judgment would be prepared to-day.

Rev. Dr. Workman said to The World that he felt that he was suffering a great injustice. He had been sustained by the deep sympathy which he had received from many friends.

Rev. E. R. Thomas said that he had no comment to make on the decision. So far as the Montreal Conference was concerned, that body did not make the appeal on the personal issue, but to ascertain if a professor could be dismissed by a college board in the middle of a college year, without a charge being made or the professor being given a trial, by a mere resolution of a college board.

The court of appeals will meet again this morning.

QUEBEC BY-ELECTIONS.
Voting to Fill Five Vacancies Takes Place Dec. 25.

MONTREAL, Dec. 10.—(Special.)—Writs were issued to-day for the provincial elections in the Counties of La-Val, St. Mary's, St. Ann's, Chateaugay and Quebec Central. The elections will be held on Dec. 23. In La-Val the Conservative leader, P. E. Leblanc, who was defeated in June last, is again a candidate, and his opponent is Mr. Leveque, ex-M.L.A., while H. Desrosiers, who was unopposed, is being opposed by H. Mercier in Chateaugay, who held the county as a government supporter during one session.

In St. Mary's, Montreal, the contest is a very interesting one, although there will be no Conservative candidate. L. J. Gauthier, who was defeated in the Assumption at the general election, and who is a friend of the prime minister, received the Liberal nomination, but Ald. Seguin, another strong Liberal, is also in the field, and his chances are good for election. The candidates in Quebec Centre are not yet chosen.

RUSH OF "SUFFRAGETTES."
A rush of suffragettes was a whirlwind of disruption to the dissolution of the mock parliament held last night by university students in the convocation hall. It was in a thunderous roar that Hon. G. D. Kilpatrick poured forth a volley of denunciation against the bill that had been introduced to give women votes and which evoked an attack from the rear of the auditorium of young men in Carrie Nation attire.

The speaker fairly well filled and the performance proved a most successful one, each of the members acquitting himself much to the satisfaction of the audience and creating great amusement. The local hits at many of their fellow students were well received.

The speaker of the house was Mr. Dyke, while E. F. Raney and J. H. Bull were premier and leader of the opposition.

CAPITAL FLOWS

"Beans good on trail," John interjected as he shoved up a mouthful with a chip. "Beans not heavy to carry. We go long way before we come back." The beans were like nectar to the gods to the surveyors and they started to sing "Down in the City of Boose." Billy Cameron afterwards related "O'ray's Elegy in a Country Churchyard."

Then came a surprise. Bob Smith's voice rose and he sang "The Arab Love Song" rang thru the forest. I did not expect to hear the words of a new popular air in the remote northland, and I said: "Where on earth did you hear that?"

"Why, I heard Marie Cahill sing that at the Princess Theatre in Toronto the first night of her engagement there," replied Mr. Smith.

That night I, too, first heard "The Arab Love Song" in the same theatre. The world is small, I thought, and Toronto is very close in sentiment to the northland.

Rain fell that night, lightly at first and then becoming a downpour. We were drenched to the skin, but slept till morning, exhausted as all were by the strenuous work of the day.

The surveyors took a compass line thru the forest to Everett Lake, but we met again two weeks later, our canoes passing each other on Lake Gowanda.

A Reminiscence of Old Friends.
There was a strange reunion the next night on the trail near Miller Lake. Alfred Reeve, prospector and prospective millionaire, had joined us under the mythical banner on which was emblazoned the words "GOWANDA OR BUST." Reeve carried a great pack, which made him look for all the world like an apt dragging the body of a big spider. That pack was gorged with dynamite, candles, pork, bread, beans, canned goods, and all the rest of a prospector's layout.

As dusk commenced to clothe the forest in a mantle of shadows, we had our eyes open for a suitable camp site which would be near running water and where few standing dead trees would add to the dangers.

Eventually a curl of smoke was seen ahead. We called and got an answering response. Some people had set up camp ahead of us. We found two prospectors beside the fire preparing supper, and they welcomed us.

Suddenly there was an exclamation from Reeve and a response "Well, well!" from one of the strangers.

Reeve had met Franklin McKendry, whom he had not seen for six years, and with whom he had shared a gold mine in Southern British Columbia.

Truly, the mining game, if it makes strange bedfellows, effects also many interesting reunions.

That evening constituted a lesson in the geography of the mining fields of the Pacific Province.

Dynamite on Stable Floor.
Well, talking about surprises, there never was one so touching me so deeply as one I experienced in Esch City just an hour before we hit the trail for Gowanda.

There is a station at the rear of the Mattawabiki Hotel, where we had left our packs while waiting for the rain to stop before setting out on our long journey.

As I moved towards the stable door my foot kicked something round. Like a six-inch section of a crowbar, the contents of the black wrapping being a yellow-tinged white in color.

John, the guide, shouted: "Look out! It was dynamite indeed and several chunks of it lay about the stable floor, some of it almost under the feet of the horses.

The stableman gathered it up, piece by piece, gently, even gingerly, and threw it down to the river bank, hurled it far into the water.

How that dynamite got there no one knows. It was probably dropped by a careless miner, and possibly broken by the hoofs of the horses.

DETERMINED TO FIGHT DECISION OF BOARD

Mayor and Controllers Are in Mood to Battle for City's Rights.

From sentiments expressed by the mayor and controllers yesterday, it is evident that the decision of the Ontario Railway Board, giving the street railway the right to lay out lines on any street desired will be fought to a finish in the courts.

According to City Solicitor Chisholm, the only course open to the city is to apply to the court of appeal for leave to appeal. This right being given, the city can go to the supreme court, and, if again defeated, to the privy council.

Corporation Counsel Fullerton declines to give an opinion as to what the city's course should be beyond that there may be some hope for the city in the clauses of the agreement which say that the company cannot lay rails on any street until the plans have been approved by the city engineer.

Mayor Oliver has quite decided that the city should appeal. He says the city will not concede that the street railway has full control of the streets until some higher authority than the Ontario Railway Board says so. He doesn't think the order empowers the company to tear up the streets. The mayor has no doubt that the privy council's decision on this point will influence the board, but says that the privy council didn't rule that the city couldn't say where the routes should go.

Mr. George Hay, having announced his desire to retire from the presidency, a resolution was unanimously passed thanking him for his long and faithful services as Director, Vice-President and President. The former Directors were re-elected, and at a meeting of the new Board, Mr. David MacLaren was elected President, and the Hon. George Bryson, Vice-President for the ensuing year.

Need of Juvenile Court.
"You have not got a juvenile court in Toronto, in the proper sense," said W. L. Scott of Ottawa, speaking last night before the local council of women.

"You have no separate court. It is in a different room, because the law won't allow it to be otherwise, but you have the same magistrates and officials. You have not all the contamination of a court, but you have a great deal of it."

"You have not the probation officers, and probation is the kernel of it. If you have no probation you have no juvenile court."

"I talked for an hour with your senior magistrate and made no impression on him. He thinks the work is well enough done now."

"You want a special judge for children, and you want it in the worst way in Toronto. The magistrates have not time and won't do the work."

Mr. Scott, in an hour's address, described the work done in Ottawa. The delinquent children of to-day, he said, were the adult criminals of to-morrow.

Gourlay Pianos

THE NEW BOUDOIR STYLE
FOR SMALL APARTMENTS

This daintily designed new style upright piano is a splendid creation—the embodiment of those superlative characteristics which have in so few years brought prestige and reputation to the name GOURLAY.

The purity and sympathetic richness of tone, the responsiveness of touch and the artistic outline of its exterior, all commend it to the musician or music-lover whose desire is a piano of the highest quality, yet of a size small enough to suit the most modest apartment.

PUMPLE DENIES STORY OF BRIBE TO DETECTIVE

Magistrate Cressor Reserves Judgment in Liquor Trials—Campbell Found Guilty.

OWEN SOUND, Dec. 10.—(Special.)—One portion of Detective F. Stewart's story of his fight from Owen Sound on a freight train was proved to be absolutely correct when the liquor trials were proceeded with to-day. George Grimes, the conductor of the train on the morning of the detective's disappearance from town, said that when the train was leaving Shelburne he had discovered Stewart and another man in the caboose. He had given Stewart a loan of an old hat and had put them off the train at the next station which was Orangeville. He had not seen the detectives on the engine. Brakeman Palmerston corroborated this testimony in every detail.

George Pumple, the driver of the train, who was accused by Stewart of having helped Stewart and himself to leave the town and had given the former money while they were traveling on his engine, denied that he had ever had any part in the disappearance of the spotters from town. He had not seen them on the train that night and certainly they had not been on his engine.

Matthew Butler, fireman on Pumple's engine, said the detectives had not been on the engine that night and it was impossible for them to have been without his having seen them.

After other witnesses had been heard, Magistrate Cressor said that he would give judgment in the three charges against Charles Crook of the Duncan House to-morrow morning.

William Campbell of the Coulson House was found guilty of having sold liquor to the detectives and was fined $10 and costs with the alternative of three months' imprisonment.

The magistrate, in commenting on the case, said: "Since local option came into force there has been more perjury in this court than he could have thought possible."

The charges against Matthew Simmons of the Coulson House were then taken up, Simmons stating that since he got out of prison he had had nothing whatever to do with the Coulson House bar. It is probable the charges against Simmons will be dropped and laid against William Stevenson, who has stated in court that he is the manager of the bar in the Coulson House. The court adjourned till to-morrow morning.

CURIOUS CANVASSING.

"Is it Lawful to Do Evil That Good May Come?"

The World does not know what are the instructions given by the Citizens' committee on license reduction to its women canvassers, but if all the canvassers are selling according to instructions there is room for revision.

Two ladies, representing themselves to be members of the W.C.T.U., and representing the Citizens' Committee in favor of license reduction, called at the home of a woman voter in No. 5 ward on Wednesday.

They were using the usual arguments in favor of reduction which were told by the lady of the house that she did not agree with them, that she thought it unfair to cut off the licenses of forty of the smaller hotels, and give the bigger ones a greater monopoly.

The canvassers then told her that she was mistaken as to the intention of the bylaw, the purpose of which was to cut off the licenses of some of the big downtown hotels, which they assured her were conducted in an immoral way. They said that young girls were frequently taken into these big hotels and debauched, and urged that it was her duty as a woman to aid in the temperance people to close these places up.

They also assured her that the passage of the reduction bill would result in the closing of many of the big downtown hotels, which they assured her were conducted in an immoral way. They said that young girls were frequently taken into these big hotels and debauched, and urged that it was her duty as a woman to aid in the temperance people to close these places up.

Fortunately the lady to whom these extraordinary statements were made was not a woman who was able to contradict it, but for a time a woman voter had her mind made up to vote for reduction. Surely women professing to be Christian and moral examples might be better employed than in relating barefaced misrepresentations such as this.

Another instance of over-zealous canvassing has come to The World's knowledge. Two ladies representing themselves as did the other two called at a house on Macdonell-avenue, in ward 6, and canvassed the woman of the house in the absence of her husband. The usual arguments and appeals were advanced and made, and the woman was urged to endeavor to induce her husband to vote for reduction. The woman told them she didn't think it would be of any use, as she knew her husband's mind was made up to vote against reduction.

Then one of the canvassers said, "If you can't get him to vote for reduction, then get him to vote against J. J. Ward, who is being opposed by the temperance people."

The woman told her she didn't think her husband would vote against Mr. Ward, as he knew him and was his friend; "besides," she added, "all the men about here are voting for Ward."

"But," urged the canvasser, "perhaps your husband doesn't know that Ward is a Catholic. Surely, if you tell him that he won't vote for him."

"Oh," said the woman, "he knows that. He's one himself."

The conversation closed abruptly. But it appears that the canvassers were not altogether to blame for their mistake, since the wife is a Protestant, the husband is a Catholic, but his name appears on the list as a publican. The canvassers were probably misled by the men who prepared the canvassers' books.

Practical Education.
J. J. Tilley, inspector of model schools, speaking at Cobourg Wednesday night advocated that in rural schools instruction should be given an agricultural lines. He said also that instruction in these schools should stimulate interest in local surroundings and country occupations. He predicted that in ten years technical training would be introduced into
