FIRE DAMAGED HOUSE,

CHRISTMAS DAY IN THE TRENCHES

Day of Bounteous Plenty for Every Man in Action.

HOPES FOR NEW YEAR

Opinions Expressed That War May Be Over Next Christmas.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Associated Press.

With the British Armies in France, Dec. 25, via London.—Christmas has sent a throb of good cheer to all the British armies in the battle lines of France, and wherever a British soldier ate his Christmas dinner today, whether in the front fire trenches or whether in the front fire trenches or in the secluded security of the reserve camps, enthusiastic toasts were offer-camps, enthusiastic toasts were offered to King and empire and to the coming new year, which Britons confidently believe will bring victory to the allied cause.

The soldiers from overseas, the Canadians, Australians, New Zealanders, and South Africans, drank somewhat wistfully to the folks at home, but soon shock away any tendency. but soon shook away any tendency to homesickness in the sturdy work of war, for war, grim and determined, went forward today as relentlessly as yesterday, and as it will tomorrow.

The Christmas carols which rose up from all parts of the world were not The Christmas carois which rose up from all parts of the world, were not far-reaching enough this year to muf-fie the roar of angry guns or shut out the unceasing song of flying shells.

Bounteous Plenty.

It was a Christmas of bounteous plenty along the British front and the soldiers in the field were joyously im-mune from the three-course dinners prescribed for the British Isles. Each individual company of the vast army organization had a jubilant Christmas spread, and there was much rivalry in the elaborateness of the camp

The members of the various companies pooled their assets, both edible and monetary, and the canteens and small French shops which persist and prosper in the war zone, were called on for all their sweets and delicacies. Mess halls were spiendidly decorated, in many instances with holly and mistletoe and paper flowers made by the soldiers themselves, many of the flow-ers being worked into Christmas mottoes.

At various places along the lines bands visited the mess halls, giving concerts for the soldiers. The Young Men's Christian Association and other organizations arranged countless en-tertalnments, and special, programs prevailed in the movie halls and soldier theatres, most of the latter being battered French barns, with the shell-holes barricaded against the wintry blasts and the noises of battle waging blasts and the noises of battle waging not far away.

Every British soldier had his individual plum pudding, this particularly indispensable item of the Christmas bill of fare having been looked after by the London newspapers, which raised in the neighborhood of £100,000 for their purchase.

Where conditions permitted, as many

Where conditions permitted, as many of the men as possible were relieved from front line duty for dinner, but in the mid-ditches of the Somme and in other sectors, Christmas dinner, steaming hot, was carried up thru the communication trenches, sometimes under the pelting of shells, to the men held by duty at the outposts of war.
Some of the men serving the big guns chalked satirical greetings on the shells before firing them. "If it's a bad shell and does not explode," explained a gunner, "brother Boche can read what we think of him. On the other hand, if it does its duty, he'll know without reading."

This third Christmas of the British armies in France was vastly different from its two predecessors, especially the first, when only a pitiful handful of the original expeditionary force was left to form a thin khaki line against the gray-clad enemy. The field army was then so small that King George personally sent a package to every one The multiplication of that are of ens of thousands into the present fore of so many millions has somewhat altered the situation. The news of President Wilson's peace note itad not percolated thruout the army by today, but it cannot be said to have been favorably received. While it can truthfully be said that efficers and men alike realize the hardships of the coming winter, all appear eager for a new offensive in the spring and say they can make that offensive
