RECENT DEATHS

Sackville, N. B., Feb. 17.—The death of Bliss M. Fawcett occurred tonight about 8 o'clock at his home, Upper Sackville, aged 47 years. He was a very highly respected citizen and always was a very energetic church worker. He was widely known in agricultural and other circles, having been treasurer of the Farmers and Dairyman's Association, assistant superintendent for a number of years for the Maritime Fish Stock Show, held annually at Amherst, and secretary of Sackville and Westmorland Agricultural Society for a number of years.

He survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Fawcett, Upper Sackville, four daughters and one son. The daughters are Mrs. Ashley Groves, Upper Sackville; Misses Corran, Margaret and Agnes, at home and a son Frank at home. Two sisters also survive, Mrs. William Secomb, Lindsay (Ont.), and Mrs. George A. Trueman, Stanstead (Que.).

John A. Fowler, for many years a resident of Upper French Village, Kings county, died on Tuesday at his home after an illness of nearly four months. He was in the sixty-ninth year of his age and leaves to mourn besides his wife, one daughter, Mrs. John Bosence, of Fairville, and two sons, A. J. Fowler, of this city, and R. E. Fowler, of Upper French Village. Ten grandchildren also survive.

Use only flat-bottom buttons on garments that are to be laundered. They stay on best and they do not wear the cloth when ironed. They are less apt to be pulled off in the wringer. Buttons that sew through are not so easily broken. Nor do they need quite as large a button hole. Buttons with metal shanks are apt to rust and ruin the garment.

Sew buttons on with double thread and put the thread through the eyes as many times as it will go. Place a pin under the button before beginning to sew. When eyes in the button are filled remove the pin and wind some thread around the threads between the button and the cloth. Put the thread through the cloth in wrong side of garment, cut off thread four inches from goods and tie several times.

Use a double thread and it will pass through the holes in the button much easier.

WEST INDIANS GRACEFUL DANCERS

Fred S. Lorraine, the manager of the Princess Musical Comedy Company, and Lewis J. Morton, the general stage director, last autumn took an English musical comedy company to play in English in the islands of the Caribbean Sea. The company started from New York early in September, and did not see Broadway again until six months later. In that time they visited and played in Panama, Colon, Jamaica, Port-of-Spain (Trinidad), Barbados, British and Dutch Guiana, Cartagena, Colombia and Venezuela.

"Probably one of the strangest theatres we struck," he continued, "was the Princess' Building in Port-of-Spain, Trinidad. This was built away back about 1858, at a time when the late King Edward, then Prince of Wales, was expected to make a visit to the island. The hall was built for his reception, but yellow fever broke out and he never saw it. It is a big rambling structure, something on the type of latter-day exposition buildings. It has a small portable stage, but no scenery, but that did not bother us any, as we carried all the scenery for every production. We had to build dressing rooms, install lighting, and rent chairs.

"The people of the West Indies are wonderful dancers and are absolutely noiseless when they dance. They danced the Tango and Maxixe and all the other latest dances, and believe me, lots of those I saw dancing in the different islands could earn big salaries on the stage if they were here. The people of those Caribbean Sea islands are absolutely the most graceful dancers I ever saw in the world."

THE POLICE COURT.

BEARS PREY ON ALASKAN SALMON

Bruin Can Eat 500 Pounds Of Them at a Meal

DESTRUCTION BY GULLS, TOO

Federal Agent Investigates Causes of Waning of Industry and Recommends Several Reforms

Bears that fish in shallow water and gulls and terns that pick out the eyes of their prey are destroying millions of Alaskan salmon, according to E. Lester Jones, deputy commissioner of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, who was sent to Alaska last summer to investigate the causes of the waning salmon supply. The bears, he says, are the worst offenders, because they haunt the shores of streams during the spawning season, and besides killing huge quantities of salmon for food, slay many thousands of others just for the pure joy of the sport.

The commissioner in his report tells how at Black Bear Creek in the Cleveland Peninsula he found the shores for 150 feet on both sides littered with hundreds upon hundreds of hump-back, silver and chum salmon that had been tossed out of the water by bears. Hardly any of the fish had been mutilated except the marks of the bear's claws on their backs. All that was eaten was the "chick" of the salmon, the bear, according to Commissioner Jones, being very fastidious and preferring that part to any other.

As the bears in Alaska are the largest in the world, and are noted for their ravenous appetites, it is easy to realize how much damage they can do. On Kodiak Island, where the full-grown bear weighs three-quarters of a ton, the deputy commissioner learned from a native that one of these giants could eat a third of his own weight in salmon in a single day.

While wolves and even eagles are also doing much harm, Mr. Jones found that still greater destruction was caused by gulls and terns. Describing his visit to Sierra Creek on a rainy day at low tide, he says:

"My attention was first attracted by a movement of birds in the water and along the banks. As I drew nearer I saw thousands of salmon fighting their way up the shallow stream, and among the fish were the gulls, picking out first one eye and then the other. I flushed this enormous horde of gulls, which I believed numbered at least 10,000. Going closer to the stream, I found humpback salmon flopping everywhere, with their eyes gone and otherwise mutilated from the picking and clawing of these birds. I estimated that on this creek alone there were within eight 5,000 fish either dead or dying that had never spawned."

To remedy this condition Mr. Jones made several novel suggestions. The ease with which the bears and gulls prey upon salmon, he says, is due in large measure to the number of obstructions in streams which they frequent in the spawning season. Besides the falls and other natural barriers, some of the timber have not been kept clear of timber and other obstructions, and are consequently providing ideal fishing grounds for the natural enemies of the salmon. Whole schools are halted on their way upstream by these obstructions, with the result that the fish fall back exhausted into shallow water, only to be preyed upon by bears and gulls.

The commissioner mentions a number of streams where this is especially true, and urges that the government appropriate sufficient money to have the worst obstructions removed. The falls in many places, he says, could easily be blasted to give the salmon a free passage. In other places, where dynamite is impracticable, the construction of "fish" ladders is recommended.

Provision for Future.

"The investment of a few thousand dollars on all of these streams," says the commissioner, "would mean a great return in the future as the result of opening up additional natural spawning grounds as yet almost wholly untouched."

The best way to stop the ravages of the gulls, the commissioner believes, is to remove the laws which now protect them. The birds, he says, are of no use except as scavengers about the cannery factories.

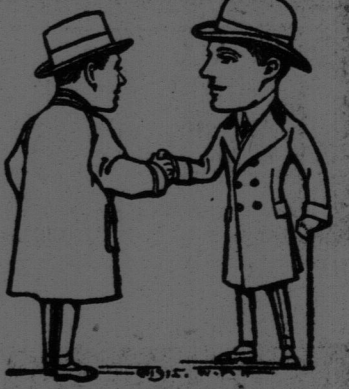

"It is beyond comprehension that this vast number of birds, so injurious to a great industry and so destructive to much valuable food, should be protected by law," he says.

The introduction of the power boat is a new evil which, he says, should be prohibited. Power-boat trolling results in great waste because the boats travel at such speed that most of the fish are caught near the surface and are too small for use. In addition, many of the larger fish, even after being hooked, cannot be landed, and are left to die. There are 200 power boats on the west coast of Prince of Wales Island which are "injuring and permanently ruining their business," according to the Commissioner.

Another reform suggested is the extension of the weekly closing season from thirty-six to forty-eight hours. At present all salmon fishing in Alaska is supposed to stop at 6 p. m. Saturday and cannot be resumed until 6 a. m. the following Monday. Commissioner Jones recommends that the hours be changed from Saturday noon to Monday noon. The present closing hours, he says, are not generally observed.

New Hatcheries Needed.

A further restriction of the season for commercial salmon fishing is also recommended, the new closing dates ranging from August 20 in the Juneau district. Five new government hatcheries are needed, and all existing private
