The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

TWENTY-SEVEN nursery maids in a New York hospital for children went on strike the other day. Did they want better wages or shorter hours or improved conditions of housing and feeding?

No; as far as history relates they were quite satisfied with all these things.

The reason they struck was simply because the superintendent of the hospital refused to grant their request to be called Miss So-and-So, instead of merely Mary Ann, or whatever other cognomen their patrons had endowed them with.

Funny?

Doesn't seem particularly so to me.

Indeed, it seems to me like a very serious and very much worth thinking about sidelight on the domestic service problem.

I have recently been investigating the heartrending conditions of the girl who works in a shop or factory or office for four or five dollars a week, and manages to completely support herself on that sum.

When I tell people some of the pathetic facts I unearthed, they usually say: "Yes, that is all very sad, but why don't those girls go into domestic service? They would get much better pay there and be always sure of a comfortable home and plenty to eat."

Well, there's probably the most powerful reason why they don't, epitomized in that nurserymaid's strike.

In a shop or factory or office a girl is Miss So-and-So. In the kitchen or nursery she is merely Mary Ann.

And I don't mean just in title, of course, but in standing. The momentary and the lack of independence go far to make domestic service unpopular, but I don't believe they keep half so many girls out of the work as the feeling that a domestic servant is looked down upon.

I personally know a very fine, intelligent girl who has taken up domestic service because she likes the work better than office, shop or factory work, and because she can make more money at it.

When she meets new people she tries to conceal her occupation from them, and suffers agonies of foolish shame when they find out.

And yet she is continually restless and unhappy, simply because she feels that she is looked down upon because of her position.

When she meets new people she tries to conceal her occupation from them, and suffers agonies of foolish shame when they find out.

She is just the kind of girl most women want to have in their homes.

And she is just the kind of girl we women have had so much success in raising domestic service to the same level as other vocations.

And that "we" means every employer of a domestic helper.

How can you help raise the level of this vocation?

Simply by treating the girl in your kitchen, in so far as her personality warrants it, as an equal.

Treat her as respectfully as you would if you were a business woman and she were your stenographer.

Be interested in her affairs and her friends, not in a patronizing but a friendly way.

Introduce her to your friends when occasion arises, and show them that you respect her.

Instill upon your children treating her respectfully.

Above all, think shame on yourself and give yourself a mental scourging if ever you find yourself ever say down in your heart, looking down upon her just because she is a servant.

Are these things impossible?

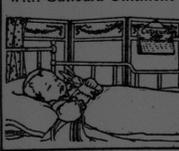

They ought not to be.

A STEP AT A TIME

Have you ever noticed how unreasonable the man at the bottom of the ladder envies the man at top? Not until success has been actually attained does the man appear at the top, and the consequence is that he gets scant credit for the step at a time climbing which has brought him there.

This, at any rate is the experience of the fifth story window and crashing through the roof of a street car in New York yesterday started the occupants who thought it came from Halley's comet. No one was hurt.

WOMAN'S REASONS FOR ASKING FOR THE VOTE

Under the heading "The Woman's Reason—Because," a circular favoring votes for women gives these "because's."

Because women have to obey the laws just as men do, they should vote equally with men.

Because women pay taxes just as men do, they should vote equally with men.

Because women suffer from bad government, they should vote equally with men.

Because women are in industry, and their health and that of our future citizens is endangered by evil working conditions that can only be remedied by legislation, they should vote equally with men.

Because mothers need every help in making their children's environment good, they should vote equally with men.

Because over 5,000,000 women in the United States are in industry, and their health and that of our future citizens is endangered by evil working conditions that can only be remedied by legislation, they should vote equally with men.

Because women need to be trained to a higher sense of social and civic responsibility, and such sense develops by use, they should vote equally with men.

Because women are the consumers, and the consumers need fuller representation in politics, they should vote equally with men.

Because women are citizens of a democracy, which is a government of the people, by the people and for the people, and women are people, they should vote on an equality with men.

Equal suffrage for men and women. Women need it. Men need it. The state needs it. Why?

Because women need to give their help. Men need to have their help. The state needs to use their help.

ANOTHER WIRELESS INVENTION

Robs High Seas of Many of Their Greatest Terrors, the Danger of Collision or of Running Ashore—It is Tested

New York, May 17.—La Providence, of the French line is in port equipped with a wonderful additional invention in wireless telegraphy, which her captain had tested all the way across and found to act perfectly. It is an invention that will rob the high sea of many of its greatest terrors—those of colliding with other vessels and running ashore. It is an attachment to the wireless telegraph invented by two Italian, Bellini and Tosi, and known as the radio-telegraph.

The immense value of the invention lies in the fact that, no matter how dark the night, how heavy the swirling sheets of snow, how thick the fog or how high the sea, the captain given wireless communication exactly how his own ship stands and just where neighboring ships and lands are in relation to his ship.

Read the Dial

When La Providence came up the bay she carried an unusual amount of wireless apparatus. In addition to the usual three strands of wire for her purpose of catching the telegraph flashes, she also carried an extra network of wires that were gathered at her masthead and then spread, cone-shaped, down through a hundred spools to the bridge of the ship where they were again gathered into a narrow strand. This was the structural work of the new invention.

The positions of the ship and danger points she may be near in heavy weather are ascertained by the captain through the medium of a small revolving dial in the chart room. The captain has only to read his dial at any time of the day or night when he is in communication with any other wireless point to learn all these hidden mysteries and to guide his ship away from danger.

Make Wireless Secret

The invention was also another advantage which hitherto has been one of the greatest problems to solve in wireless telegraphy; namely, it makes a wireless message secret. Heretofore wireless messages have practically been public property—that is to say, a message sent from one station could be read by any station within the radius of the message. This new invention makes it impossible for any station but the one the message is intended for to intercept it.

Captain Poncet said that he had given the new apparatus a fair demonstration on the way across and it had worked perfectly. "I was able at all times to determine my position in relation to other ships," said the captain, "and I was also able to get my angles with the land so that I knew my position every minute of the time. There were times when we encountered fog, and at these times I had ample opportunity to demonstrate the efficiency of the new invention. It did not fail me once."

Further tests will be given the new system, and if it still proves its efficiency it will be installed on all the large ships. Its cost, it is said, is not very great.

MORNING LOCALS

Dr. G. B. Cullen, president of Acadia University, arrived in the city yesterday from Boston, after a visit to Yale and other institutions in search of professors to fill vacancies on the faculty of Acadia.

He secured from Yale an athletic instructor, taking the lesson and dressing again. It should not require more than an hour of any boy's time, and we feel that the employers should willingly give three hours during the week, for the sake of the benefits received by the youngsters.

Mr. Corson was in Detroit last week and taught several hundred men how to swim. He was in Grand Rapids last week and there instructed a class of over 1,200. He says almost any boy can learn to swim in three lessons, if he can learn at all, and he has undertaken to instruct as many as come to him during the next two weeks.

Remember, this is the way to secure admittance to the course. Each boy must get his employer to telephone the Y. M. C. A. Cards will then be sent for distribution to the boys. On presenting these cards at the boys department, Y. M. C. A. candidates will be assigned to some swimming division. Each boy will inform his employer of the time the division meets, so that he may be excused from work. On reporting for his lesson, the boy must bring soap and a towel. The Y. M. C. A. and Mr. Corson do the rest.

For the next two weeks the Y. M. C. A. will be turned over entirely to the boys, and it is predicted that the splash will be the biggest in history.

The hardware clerks of the city will enjoy their half holidays from June until September this year, as merchants of the city have decided to grant them the usual week, except until that time.

TO TEACH 1,000 BOYS TO SWIM

Detroit Y. M. C. A. to be Scene of Great Week for Youngsters

Detroit, May 16.—At least 1,000 boys will be taught to swim at the Y. M. C. A. this week.

This is the statement of Eugene C. Foster, city secretary for boys, who has issued an invitation to all Detroit youngsters between the ages of 14 and 18, to take at least three lessons in the Y. M. C. A. swimming pool.

Through the efforts of Secretary Foster, George Corson, swimming instructor for the international Y. M. C. A., will spend two weeks in Detroit. During these two weeks it is hoped that boys who do not know how to keep afloat, will appear at the Y. M. C. A., and receive instruction free of charge. It is practically certain that the number will reach 1,000 and it is quite probable that the strong will number several times that many.

These lessons are free. Each boy will be expected to furnish a towel and a piece of soap. Otherwise there are no demands made on him, except attendance.

The movement is designed especially for the working boy, Secretary Foster is appealing to the employers to grant each boy enough time to take these lessons, and the request is being universally granted.

"We would like to have all employers of boys communicate with us," said Mr. Foster, "they will call the Y. M. C. A. We will be glad to send them cards enough to supply every boy. This card entitles the boy to a course of three lessons (more if needed), in the swimming school, and he will be assigned to a section to appear, say Monday, Wednesday and Friday, at 11.

Of course, in handling 1,000 or more boys it will be necessary for them to come at different periods. What we want the employers to do is to grant each boy the necessary time from work, so that he may come to the Y. M. C. A. and take his lesson. It is guaranteed that nobody shall remain in the building longer than thirty-five minutes, which includes undressing, taking the lesson and dressing again.

It should not require more than an hour of any boy's time, and we feel that the employers should willingly give three hours during the week, for the sake of the benefits received by the youngsters.

CAUSES SICKNESS

Good Health Impossible With a Disordered Stomach

There is nothing that will create sickness or cause more trouble than a disordered stomach, and many people daily contract serious maladies simply through disregard of simple rules of common sense.

I urge every one suffering from a stomach derangement, indigestion or dyspepsia, whether acute or chronic, to try Beal's Dyspepsia Tablets, with the distinct understanding that the pills will stand true without addition of quantity, if after reasonable use of this medicine they are not satisfied, a refund of the money will be made to my customers every day, and have yet to hear of any one who has not been benefited by them. Three sizes, 25c., 50c., and $1.00 a box. Sold in St. John only at my store, The Beal Store, Charles B. Watson, 100 King Street and 24 Oock Street.

THE FISHERMAN ANSWERS

To the Editor of the Times: May 14, 1910.

Sir: Kindly permit the following in answer to a letter appearing in your paper May 12th, entitled, "Is this Sport?"

In the first place, the paper has made an error for there were six in the party instead of four, and we were gone a period of five days, which taken
