FIREMEN SAVE COTTAGES AT THE BAY SHORE

Miss O'Neill Pays Tribute to Good Work of Firemen

Tribute was paid by Miss A. O'Neill, Main street, this morning, to the good work of the west side firemen in saving a number of cottages on the Bay Shore, owned by her, when a large barn belonging to her, was destroyed with its contents, last night. The fire was first seen about 11 o'clock last night and a still alarm sent to No. 7 fire station. The men responded and had to stretch eleven joints of hose. As the barn was seen to be doomed, the fire fighters confined their efforts to saving the surrounding houses, which they were successful in doing.

The barn was a large structure and housed in it were a motor, the body of a seven-passenger car, two sleighs, a delivery wagon, a motor truck, a car and some farming implements. The loss will be heavy as only a small amount of insurance was carried, Miss O'Neill said.

MORE CLASSES TO BE STARTED MONDAY

Vocational Announcement—Regret at Courses in Trustees' Building Being Discontinued

The night classes for cookery, sewing and millinery at the Saint John Vocational School will open on Monday of next week it was announced last evening by the director, Fletcher Peacock. The first of the night classes in general education for those who have less than high school standard was held last evening with E. J. Alexander as instructor.

A number of the women and girls who had attended night school classes in general education subjects in the Board of School Trustees' building, decided that they cannot continue their night courses as the Vocational school too far from home to attend.

Mr. Peacock pointed out that one branch of the Vocational school work which has a big future is the night-time high school course. He pointed out that those who have left school in earlier grades and would like to obtain a high school standard. For those who complete the high school course in night study certificates will be given, standing equal to that of the high school graduate.

ARE BUSY ON RIVER

Steamers Handling Good Cargoes of Produce

The Saint John River steamers arriving at Indiantown at this season are carrying heavy cargoes in which potatoes and apples form the chief shipments. The Majestic, from the Washademoose route, arrived yesterday and carried a big cargo, chiefly of potatoes. The Hampton came from Moncton and had a full cargo. She carried a large consignment of barrelled apples as well as potatoes. The apples were not offered for sale at the wharf but were all consigned. Potatoes at the wharf yesterday brought $2.60 and $2.75 to $3 a barrel.

The recent heavy rains have raised the river by five or six feet above the summertime level and the high water wharves are being used at a number of stopping places. The Premier left at 2 a.m. yesterday for the Grand Lake route, making her first trip since she was laid up for the installation of a new crankshaft. She is expected to be back at Indiantown tonight.

As Hiram Sees It

"There's a regular 'fleet' goin' up," says I to the town feller, "plum' in the moonlight on Long Reach."

"Them," says he, "is the 'ghosts' o' Ben Church's an' Colborne Hawthorne's craft goin' in' up to attack Villebon's fort at Nash."

That was just two hundred an' thirty year ago this month. Think of five hundred men sailin' up Long Reach that long ago. Well, six-old Villebon was ready fer 'em. The feller, Chevalier, that was killed by Ben Church's Injuns had sent messengers up to tell what was happenin' at the mouth o' the river—an' Villebon sent scouts down river to keep watch while he got ready for a siege. He led only a hundred men in the fort—but he made a speech that stirred 'em up so that they was 'red-hot' in a light. Hawthorne an' Church got there all right an' landed their guns—but it was so cold they had to build fires that night to keep from freezein'. Both sides had Injun fighters. The French had the best of it with the big guns. The English didn't make no headway the first day or the second—an' the second night they got aboard their craft an' started down river agin. Old Ben Church had been agin goin' up at all—ter the men had no warm clothes—an' they wasn't no fun in navigatin' the Saint John late in October—an' hevin' no warm quarters ashore. They had four vessels of about sixty tons. Them was their 'ghosts' what I seen in the moonlight on the river."

Two notable gatherings of young people are to be held in the city during the next few days. He is a brilliant speaker and an enthusiast in boys work. He will be accompanied by his mother and they are to be guests of Rev. and Mrs. R. F. Fulton during their stay in Saint John. Rev. F. M. Strothard and Rev. M. S. Richardson. The sessions will continue throughout Saturday and a banquet will be served at 6 o'clock on Saturday evening when members of the C. C. L. G. groups of the city will have charge of the serving. The conference closing session will be held on Sunday night after the regular church service.

CHEESE BOARD HAS SEASON CLOSING

At Meeting at Board of Trade Here 456 Boxes Are Disposed of

The last meeting of the New Brunswick Cheese Board for the present season was held yesterday afternoon in the Board of Trade rooms, when there was a brisk demand and prices were advanced by 12 cents above those which prevailed at the last meeting, which was held three weeks previously. Frank Rowe, president, was in the chair and had charge of the auction. There were 281 boxes of twins which sold at 18 1/2 cents a pound and 175 boxes of triplets, which brought 18 1/2 cents a pound. The deputy minister of agriculture, Harvey Mitchell, attended the meeting.

During the season that has just closed the quality of cheese produced by the New Brunswick factories has been very good and the buyers yesterday expressed themselves as well satisfied on that score. In the dry cold weather of a few weeks ago, cheese production dropped off to a considerable extent but previously in this season the reckoning of the year's total will reveal a slight increase over that of 1925 but not so large as had been anticipated.

Prices throughout the season were a good average, although they did not reach the very high mark of the 1925 season. There were two more factories operating in New Brunswick this year, one at Petitcodiac and one at Portage.

Many At Religious Institute Meet

Those attending the Religious Education Institute in the German Street Baptist church, last evening, met for group discussion first and then from 8 to 9 o'clock they joined the congregation of the church in the mid-week prayer meeting and the large gathering filled the auditorium. There was a large attendance at the Institute growing keener each evening. The sessions will conclude tomorrow night.
