

SAY UNEMPLOYMENT IS NOT ABNORMAL

Social Service Workers Not Disturbed by the Conditions—Birds of Passage.

(Montreal Gazette.)
Social service workers whose duties bring them in close touch with the seamy side of life in Montreal are not dismayed by the possibilities which the coming winter is said to have in its train. As far as they are concerned, they say, there is plenty of work, of a kind. When it slackens in one direction, there are compensating opportunities in another. All that is required is adaptation; and this faculty is generally enjoyed by those who really are looking for and anxious to obtain some occupation, be it ever so temporary.

This view was expressed at The Metropole, maintained by the Salvation Army on St. Alexander street. Adjutant J. C. Harbour, who makes his headquarters there, said that the appeals for help, food and a roof were no greater than normal, and, further, that work was being obtained for almost every applicant.

"The jobs to which men are sent are not of a permanent nature," he said, "but in many cases they lead to definite employment. Sometimes a man who is really destitute is unable to secure employment at the regular bureau because he lacks the necessary personal equipment and the wherewithal to provide it. We put him up, give him food and find a few days work for him, perhaps putting up storm windows, cleaning a basement, or some such makeshift. With the money he earns he is able to buy himself an outfit, call again at the labor bureau, and is off to some good-paying job at the shanties."

Captain G. Pryde, who is directly in charge of employment at The Metropole, said that men were being placed at odd jobs at the rate of 150 a week.

There is, of course, the element who do not want work, and which is the last thing they have in mind when they apply for hospitality.

"As a rule," said Adjutant Harbour, "they are birds of passage, who travel at the expense of the railways; here today and gone tomorrow. We entertain a certain percentage, which is naturally increasing as the cold weather sets in, but they rarely stay more than a day. On Sundays we have our greatest number. They cannot travel so easily and are obliged to put up for the week-end."

Adjutant Harbour was inclined to be skeptical of the reports of large numbers of unemployed in Montreal at present. Where skilled labor was concerned, he said, there was always a chance of absorption in other directions. Many also, even if they are laid off and must rely upon the system of rotation in vogue in the unions for obtaining re-employment, had substantial savings. The necessity for adaptation to circumstances also applied in such cases and men should be prepared to take whatever employment was available, rather than to despondently accept the grim alternative. He, himself, spoke from a personal experience of work in the camps, and while the environment was not altogether favorable for exacting people, yet it provided temporary means of provision for a man and his family until conditions generally improved.

While enquiry at the Protestant House of Industry and Refuge, on Dorchester street, also indicated that the applications for assistance by destitutes was not any greater than is normally the case at this time of year, another charitable institution, the Welcome Hall Mission, on St. Antoine street, has been obliged to deal with an increasing number of needy cases among families of a superior class. The institution specializes more in the sphere. According to the superintendent, J. David Fraser, the unfortunately large number of such cases, which have been reported by the missionaries, is directly attributable to the slackening of industrial activity.

The officers of the Salvation Army working under Colonel Bettridge, who is in charge of field work, have also reported a large number of like instances. The relief work of this department will not begin fully until December and the extent of its efforts will, Colonel Bettridge stated, be governed by the amount of support accorded by the public.

"TRAFFIC COP" SCHOOL
CHILDREN'S NEW GAME.
Attempt to Teach "Rules of the Road" in Play to Become General.

Another phase of the teaching of hard and fast facts that will be of immediate use to the scholar is being urged by the textbook committee of the Highway and Highway Transport Education Committee of the United States Bureau of Education. This committee is urging school officials throughout the United States to include courses designed to teach children the "rules of the road." Some indications as to what these courses will contain can be obtained from studies which are already under way in Detroit public schools, as well as in others.

In Detroit, for example, the work starts with the kindergarten, where the child is taught to exercise care in crossing streets, always waiting on the corner until he is sure that nothing is approaching within a half block. Later, as the child progresses to the elementary grades, the course is broadened and the element of personal responsibility enters into the course, together with more detailed instructions as to rules of safety, always in language which is easily understood and which is confined to fundamental principles. As a supplement to the vocal instruction traffic games have been found a valuable teaching adjunct in Ohio schools, the child learning more readily in this way and also becoming more interested.

Thus, for example, in one kindergarten one child is selected as the traffic "cop." Others represent buildings, others machines, others are pedestrians crossing the street. The "cop" has a traffic sign with the words "go" and "stop" on it, and the pedestrians proceed according to the signs.

While no definite statistics are available to show all the causes of the many fatalities and accidents on streets and highways, it was the feeling of members of the Highway and Highway
