LITTLE BY LITTLE.

When the new years come and the old years go, How, little by little, all things grow ! All things grow-and all decay-Little by little passing away. Ripen the harvest of golden grain, Waving and flashing in the sun, When the summer at last is done. Little by little they ripen so As the new years come and the old years go.

Low on the ground an arorn lies, Little by little it mounts to the skies. Shartow and shelter for wandering h rds, Home for a hun leed singing birds. Little by little the great rocks grew, Long, long ago when the world was new; Slowly and silently, stately and free, Cities of coral under the sea Little by little are builded—while so— The new years come and the old years go.

Little by little old tasks are done; So are the crowns of the faithful won, So is heaven in our hearts begun. With work and with weeping, with laughter and play. Little by little the longest day And the longest life is parsing away, Passing without return-while se The new years come and the old years go.
